Green Gables Golf Course Prince Edward Island National Park

The co-operation of the travelling public is most respectfully requested in the protection of the Green Gables Golf Course. To facilitate winter travel, this Department has provided for the passage of winter roads just within the Park boundary, by leaving gateways in the National Park fence, at such points as were considered necessary.

I would point out, however, that these gateways were not left for the purpose of providing shortcuts across the Golf Course, and that while this Department has endeavored to co-operate in the passage of winter roads just within the Park boundary, any traffic on or across the Green Gables Golf Course will be prosecuted.

(Sgd.) E. A. SMITH, Superintendent, P. E. I. National Park.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Polish Dictator In Diplomatic Balancing

Juggles Alliances Trying To Pick Winner In Europe's Scramble For Power

By MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON—It's an old adage that he who tries to sit on two stools at the same time is apt to fall between them, but Colonel Josef Beck, Polish Minister of Foreign Affairs is trying an even more difficult feat—that of sitting on three stools at the same time. And all Europe is intrigued, because those stools are democratic France, Nazi-tyrannical Germany and Bolshevik-tyrannical Russia. If Beck gets away with it, he will be one of the slickest ministers in the Old World.

FRENCH ARMS. FRENCH MONEY

France helped arm the Polish army and train it. French military advisers helped Poland when the Bolshevik armies were almost at the doors of Warsaw. French money paid for and French engineers largely designed the Polish wonder port of Gdynia. But in 1924 the French had a sudden and sad surprise. Poland and Germany signed a ten-year pact of non-aggression. The Poles French that this in no way vitiated the Franco-Polish pact, but since that time the French have not longed counted on Poland. His estimate was proved correct during the crisis of last September. When it looked like war between Germany and Poland, Hitler on the one side and England, France and Czechoslovakia on the other, Poland kept coolly aloof. Poland also notified Russia it could not permit Russian troops to cross Polish territory to help the Czechs. And when England and France agreed to the carving up of Czechoslovakia, Poland like Hungary, declined the vulture states and demanded its piece of the booty. It got not only the city of Teschen, but the valuable hinterland with great coal fields.

BECK HAS A VISION

So far the Beck policy had paid dividends. It took Poland farther

The three-way straddle of Polish Foreign Minister Colonel Josef Beck produced popular results—for a while—as is seen in this picture of Warsaw demonstrators cheering him after the cession to Poland of Czechoslovakia's Teschen area.

But Hitler blocked this. Beck was now genuinely frightened. With 700,000 people of Ukraine blood in autonomous Ruthenia, Hitler has a lever with which to stir up trouble in Poland and Russia. Polish territory contiguous to Ruthenia is largely inhabited by people of Ukrainian blood. Beck in 1926 promised them autonomy. It has never been granted. The 6,000,000 Ukrainians in Poland, who dwell in a territory one-quarter the area of Poland, are demanding autonomy with a special Diet and a territorial army made up of Ukrainians; creation of a Ukrainian university at Lvov; and colonization, not of Poles, but of Ukrainians on big farming estates when they are broken up.

RUSSIA HAS A HEADACHE

Soviet Russia is also worried. Hitler has always cast longing eyes at Russian Ukraine—a territory 175,000 square miles in extent and with a population of over 30,000,000 Ukrainians. It is about the richest land in Europe, teeming with oil, coal, iron, wheat and with some of the biggest Russian industrial plants. It also contains the big cities of Kiev, Kharkov, Odessa and Stalingrad, and juts out into the Black Sea. So now it is evident why Beck, overcoming his antipathy to Russia, suddenly announced the other day the signing of a new pact with the Soviets. They reaffirm their non-aggression pact which goes on till 1945, agree to settle all frontier questions and to do all they can to improve their trade relations. It means that Beck no longer counts upon France and that he fears Germany.

Russia and Poland are making a common front to resist a German grab of Polish and Russian Ukraine. To show they are in earnest, the Poles are making ready to spend about $300,000,000 more within the next three years to perfect their army and defense forces.
