On the Ukraine front the Germans have been making rapid headway. As expected, the German army driving southeastward from Chernigov joined forces with the German army moving northeastward from Kremenchug and surrounded Kiev, forcing a loose net over 300,000 or 400,000 Russian soldiers. Berlin reports that the Germans are making headway with the annihilation of the surrounded Russian armies. It is possible that most of the surrounded Russian forces will be able to cut their way through to the east and make a fight in defence of the important city of Kharikov. German forces now are 125 miles east of Kiev and half-way between that place and Kharikov. On the map the shaded areas represent the most recent gains. The arrows indicate the direction of attacks. The Germans now are entering an area that provides the Russian armies with a very large proportion of their war supplies.
