At 8 o'clock the next morning the passageway to this man's outside office door was crowded with a motley aggregation of young candidates, who thought they could qualify. The superintendent was regretting the trouble of picking out the right boy from this crowd as he allowed his way on into his office. There he was surprised to face one bright looking lad, hat in hand, calmly waiting for him. "Why, what are you doing here?" exclaimed the superintendent.

"I came for that job," the boy replied. "I was here first and I climbed through the window there in order to get to see you first. The other boys know I'm here."

"Where was the last place you worked?" asked the superintendent, without showing the interest he really had in this lad of slight build, who had foresight enough to avoid the crush at the door, courage enough to climb in the window, and sufficient cunning to avoid the watchful eye of Jake, the janitor.

"At the Blank Company," the boy promptly replied.

"Why did you leave?"

"I was fired," was the equally prompt reply.

"Fired?"

"Yes; it was like this. Another boy and I were told to carry some packages from the shipping room and load them in the delivery truck out in front of the factory. My boss told me that the bundles should be down at the depot just as soon as possible. And he told me to tell the truck driver to start right out with them and not to wait for any more. But the truck driver didn't show up and I couldn't find him, so I jumped in. It was an auto truck and the driver had let me learn how to run it. I drove downtown and delivered the packages and was back to the factory in about twenty-five minutes. But when I got back the boss fired me on the spot. He told me that I had a lot more nerve than was good for me. That is exactly how it happened. But I want the job you advertised. I can make good."

The superintendent lost no time telephoning the Blank Company to verify the boy's statement. Then he asked him when he could come to work.

"Right now," replied the boy, showing eagerness to begin.

Then the superintendent stepped to the outside office door and told the other boys that the job was filled. "The best time to get habit of making good," says this youngster, "is in boyhood."

IN THE OPERA

No one should fall to hear the famous Grossmith tomorrow night.

THE OPERA.—A large number of citizens turned out last evening to attend the opera, The Arrival of Kitty, which was put on at the Opera House, Charlottetown. The play was in every sense a success and was very much enjoyed by the many in attendance.

OPENS LAW OFFICE.—W. F. H. Carvell, Barrister-at-law of this City who for the past two years has been associated in the law business with McLean & McKinnon has severed his connection with that firm, and has opened an independent law office at The Morrell House, 136 Kent St.

THE NORTHUMBERLAND.—Yesterday the Northumberland arrived at Pictou from Charlottetown at 12.00 a. m. She left again about 4.45 p. m. with passengers, express, mail and freight and arrived at 8.20 p. m. She leaves today at 8.20 for Pictou returning at night.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN.—The campaign under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. to raise $3,000 for building purposes has reached the half way mark. Up to last night $1500 had been raised. The committee have been well received and a liberal response made in most cases. There are many yet who no doubt will be pleased to aid in this good cause.

AN ENJOYABLE CONCERT.—The entertainment in St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown, under the auspices of the Royal Chapter of the Daughters of the King, last evening, was a most enjoyable affair. Music, instrumental and vocal, recitations and readings were furnished for the entertainment, of the audience who were highly delighted with the program. H. Weston Peake contributed largely to the pleasure of the evening with recitations and singing. He impersonated Lord Dundreary, the lisping, egotistical character and in his singing selections took the part of a french habitant. He was very much appreciated by his listeners.

THE LATE CAPTAIN MORAN.—The funeral of the late Capt. Richard Moran, which took place at 9.00 a. m. yesterday, was largely attended. Rev. Father Maurice McDonald conducted the services at the church and Rev. T. R. McLellan at the grave. High Mass was held for the repose of his soul. Capt. Moran came to this province about 48 years ago from Gaspe, Que., and when on land made his home at Charlottetown, where he married. He was well known on the high seas as a good energetic Captain knowing his business thoroughly and being always considerate of the men under him. The many friends he made during his extensive travels as a sea captain will bear with regret of his demise. He was 73 years of age and leaves to mourn besides a widow, two brothers and two sisters, Patrick, in Gaspe, and James, in Wisconsin, U. S. A., Julia, in Ottawa, and Mary, in Charlottetown, and a nephew Joseph Moran, besides a large number of relatives and friends who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

BOYHOOD THE TIME TO MAKE GOOD.—"Boy wanted—Not a common boy, but one with uncommon snap and courage, a boy knows the meaning of that big word 'initiative.' He must know how to use the talents he has without being told more than thirty-seven times."

"There!" said the busy superintendent of one of Chicago's smaller manufacturing companies, as he finished dictating his ad for a boy. "I hope I can get a boy who can do a few things without having to tell him each time. I certainly do need a bright boy to take an active interest around here."

Then he ordered his stenographer to telephone the ad to the paper, with instructions to set it in double space.

At 8 o'clock the next morning the passageway to this man's outside office door was crowded with a motley aggregation of young candidates, who thought they could qualify. The superintendent was regretting the trouble of picking out the right boy from this crowd as he allowed his way on into his office. There he was surprised to face one bright looking lad, hat in hand, calmly waiting for him. "Why, what are you doing here?" exclaimed the superintendent.

"I came for that job," the boy replied. "I was here first and I climbed through the window there in order to get to see you first. The other boys know I'm here."
