BAB LEARNS OF A BUSINESS LUNCHEON—BLANCHE ORTON IS THERE CHAPTER XXII

I was stunned for a moment, then my good common sense, of which I had used to say I had more than belonged to me asserted itself. What if Neil and Blanche Orton were driving in a taxi? Either of them might have met the other and given them a lift. Yet, as I reasoned, it seemed strange that they should be in the park, so far from Neil's office. When Neil came in I had lost all desire to joke him about my visit to his office. In its place had come a great desire to know more of the business so luxuriously housed. So I told him at once that I had called on him, and how disappointed I was to find him out. He stared up immediately I began to question him: "What motive did you have in going to the office? To call or to spy on me?" he asked, "If you've got anything to say, why say it and get it out of your system. But either stop talking or tell me what you are driving at."

I sighed as I answered. I had hoped he would be nice about it and tell me things. "I saw you out driving in the park with Blanche Orton, so I know you weren't out on business." I had not intended to tell him I had seen them; but it slipped out without thinking. "I'm of age!" he snapped. "Then: "If I lunch with business men and there happened to be ladies there also, is it anything so very dreadful that I take them home?" "I didn't say there was Neil. Do talk reasonably. I am not finding fault, I just want to know things." So he had been lunching with Blanche Orton. I would not be in little and mean, neither would I let him think me jealous. There was a feeling that something had me by the throat, for a minute, but it passed as I added: "Please tell me about the things which interest you, dear. I feel so out of things when you refuse. Did you talk business at lunch?" I had been about to say before Blanche Orton but caught myself in time. "Of course we talked business!" impatiently. "Didn't I tell you it was a business luncheon? I have to go to Boston tomorrow. Most likely I shall go directly from the office to the train. Don't forget to send Tom down with my bag by noon. I'm catching the three o'clock, but I may lunch somewhere."

"Let me go with you, dear? I never have seen Boston, you know, never been there."

"It's a business trip. I couldn't take you about or be with you." "Neither can you be with me if I remain at home and you go. Please let me go." He considered a moment, then refused absolutely to take me. I pleaded and he coaxed, but it did no good. He was adamant. I wondered why he would take me. Expense had nothing to do with it; of that I was sure. But why did he not want me to go? There were a great many unanswered questions in my life at this time—I think many. I tried Neil was sorry for his brusqueness to me and tried to make up to telling me in extraordinarily optimistic tones of the great amount of money he was to make if he "pulled off the next deal," without in any way giving me a hit as to what kind of a "deal" it was. I tried earnestly to rouse myself to share his enthusiastic optimism, but in vain. My heart was heavy; I felt as if some evil impended. Whenever I asked a point-blank question, Neil cleverly evaded me, and I wondered at the unreasonable fear that had all at once possessed me. What was going to happen? That night I dreamed that my future had shaped itself into a horrid stretch of years, unhappy years in which Neil and Blanche Orton, Mr. Frederick and others were all mixed up; and in which I, in spite of incessant work and care, could not shield Neil from some terrible calamity. I woke sobbing. Neil was sleeping, but my hand found his and, comforted, I fell off to sleep again. Thus it was, always, that my love for Neil overruled my reason and persuaded me that my forebodings were foolish.

DISPERSAL SALE OF Holstein-Friesian Cattle AT BUNBURY FARM, CHARLOTTETOWN

February 26, 1919, at 1.00 p. m. (or next day, same hour, if weather is very unfavorable.

Terms—12 months credit on bankable paper, 7 p. c. discount for cash. STOCK FOR SALE.

4 pure-bred bulls. Almost all the heifers are sired by Sir Fairview Korndyke, a son of Pontiac Korndyke, out of a full sister of Rag Apple Korndyke 8th, who is at the head of the world's greatest herd. Nearly all over a year old are in calf to Sir Dekol Pontiac Jewel, a son of King Pontiac Jewel with over 70 tested daughters, who is sired by King of the Pontiacs with 235 tested daughters and 129 proven sons, twice as many as any bull of any breed. His dam's 7 nearest dams average over 28 lbs. butter in 7 days. A considerable proportion freshen in April. 4 pure-bred cows. 2 grade cows, 6 years. 1 grade cow, 4 years. 2 grade cows, 3 years. 13 grade heifers, 2 years. 2 grade heifers, 2 1/2 years. 3 grade heifers, 14 months. 8 grade heifers, 10 months. 6 grade heifers, 7 months. 3 grade heifers, 3 months.

The imported bull King Walker Pietertje will be sold. He is right every way and is heartily recommended to any group who purpose organizing a Holstein center. His place in the herd has been taken by the 10-month-old calf—Roycroft Pietje Echo, recently bought from W. S. Shaw, Newmarket, Ontario. There are no worn-out cows, reactors nor 3 teaters as far as known. The Bunbury Farm herd is tested, with the temperature test, spring and autumn for tuberculosis. Last test there were no reactors whatever. All animals purchased are tested before they come into the herd. The only reason for selling is that our barn is overcrowded and we intend to carry only pure bred cattle hereafter. We are holding some 25 head of registered stock for a foundation.

TRAIN ARRANGEMENTS. Bunbury Station is on the Farm. Those arriving from Southern points can get lunch at the farm house and return at 3.30 p. m. Teams will leave the Charlottetown R. R. Station at 12.30 p. m. to arrive at farm in time for the sale. ANSON W. JONES, Secretary. WALTER JONES, Proprietor. 4076-2-20m51.
