"Tough Break Al" ESPINOSA

WOULD HAVE MADE AN INCH BIGGEST HERO INSTEAD OF THE GOAT—IF THAT LAST HOLE HAD BEEN A BIT FARTHER AWAY JONES' TYING PUTT WOULD HAVE BEEN SHORT—IT ALMOST STOPPED ON THE LIP OF THE CUP!

JONES' LAST PUTT COST AL $75,000—AND BOBBY GOT NOTHING BUT THE GLORY!

8-9 AND 10

THE GOLD AND GLORY OF A BOXING TITLE HAS OFTEN HUNG ON THAT TENTH SECOND!

1 SECOND— IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN STARDOM AND MEDIOCRITY IN THE 100 YARD DASH—

BURNLEY 8-3

A nerve-testing putt of about twelve feet, which had just enough momentum to drop in the 18th hole on the Winged Foot course, late one Saturday afternoon last June, achieved for Robert Tyre Jones a tie in the United States Open Golf Championship. In the play-off, the next afternoon, Bobby Jones won the title by overwhelming Al Espinosa. That putt in a crisis was the most interesting stroke of the many made by the nation's best golfers during the Open classic at Mamaroneck, N. Y. Espinosa, one of the ablest, and most likable of professional golfers, was in the locker room, dressing when told that Jones had to hole a difficult putt in order to tie the 294. Bobby missed, Espinosa would be the new national champion for a year at least, and that Open title is worth from $50,000 to $75,000 a year to a "pro." Al knew this, as Jones was preparing for that most critical moment.

While a gallery of more than 5,000 watched Jones prepare for that fateful putt, hundreds crowded the clubhouse vantage points trying to get a glimpse of the drama at the 18th hole less than a hundred yards away. From a locker room window Espinosa watched the play. All the while he saw the crowd's head as the ball moved lazily towards the hole and drop in. He smiled while saying, "I knew Bobby would make it."

A tiny pebble or a stubborn clump of grass might have spoiled that putt which seemed to crawl and, hesitating on the lip, just manage to drop into the cup. A little too much tremor on the part of Jones as he gripped his famous "Calamity Jane" putter, a tiny obstacle on the green, and Al Espinosa would have been champion and richer by many thousands during the current year.

Both Jones and Espinosa had missed several easy shots during the three days prior to that all-important putt. What must have been their thoughts on how such "little things count" when the time came for that wear-or-woe 12-footer—and since then, for that matter! The play-off was an anti-climax. Jones was his superb self; Espinosa had one of those awful "off days." It hit Al's golfing prestige hard, but the grim defeat enhanced his fine reputation as an excellent sportsman under all circumstances.

Little things—such as a single second—count mightily in all forms of sport. Take the sprinters, for instance. Hundreds of unknowns can do the hundred in fractions of 10 seconds. But how many can run it in less than 10? Hardly more than a corporal's guard—since sprint records began under 10 seconds, a sprinter is a phenom; a wink over 10 seconds and he's just another fast boy!

The difference of a second is extremely important in the boxing arena. Firpo came within a split second of the world's championship when he thumped Dempsey over the ropes and out of the ring. Jack himself all but regained his title when he had Tunney blinking on the floor at Chicago. The several seconds which Dempsey wasted there while reluctantly finding the opposite corner were probably the most costly in all sport history.

Ring annals are studied with battles where a single second saved—and sometimes lost—titles. Little things, to be sure! But little things, when counted, often make the real difference between champions and near-champions.

SERVANT OF KING EDWARD IS DEAD

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Edward Miedinger, for 33 years chief personal attendant of King Edward, died today in hospital where he had been taken after being found at his Leyton residence with throat wounds. The wounds were apparently self-inflicted. Miedinger lost his wife some years ago and his daughter was killed in an air raid during the World War, but he always appeared cheerful at least until recently. It is understood he was in receipt of a pension from the Royal family. Miedinger's rooms were filled with mementos of his long service with King Edward. A telegram of condolence from the late Queen Alexandra, on the death of his wife was found in his pocket, almost obliterated as a result of being continually carried about.

LAST TRIBUTE PAID MEMORY OF WM. F. FRENCH

(Haverhill Gazette.)
HAVERHILL, Aug. 4.—William Fred French, who died last Monday in the Soldiers home at Hampton, Va., after a brief illness, was born in Haverhill, March 21, 1873, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Matthew French themselves lifelong residents of Haverhill and descendants of many of the old time families of the city. He was educated in the grammar and high schools of this city and at Williams college, early in life showing an aptitude for literature which made his success in newspaper work, which he chose as a profession, rapid and brilliant.

Mr. French began his newspaper career in Haverhill on the Haverhill Gazette, later going to Boston, where he held positions on the old Boston Journal, the Post Globe and Traveler, during which period he became known as one of the most brilliant writers of his day, covering many important assignments, including the historic trip of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company to England.

An inspector, who had just returned from the Isle of Man, was examining the girls' class in geography. "Can you tell me what island there is off the English coast, which from its name you would judge to be inhabited by people of the male sex only?" August Sale Price each ..... $97.50 to $195.00

Northern Muskrat Coats

54-F. Reflecting a trim smartness in every line, these coats are rendered all the more elegant through the skillful blending of the perfectly matched skins. The soft, silky, sheen has an engaging charm distinctly flattering. Diagonal stripings in the herringbone pattern, and straight cut skins emphasize fashions tenderizing trend. August Sale Price each ..... $147.50 to $197.50

European, Beaver

54-G. European Beaver (sheared lamb finished to resemble beaver) is heavy, silky, and becomingly feminine. Its warmth and comfort will protect you through the coldest winters. Cut in tailored style with large, Paquin shawl collar and deep cuffs in a slightly deeper shade, a luxurious brown of European Beaver. August Sale Price each ..... $50.00

Coats of Pieced Electric Seal

54-H. As soon as you see this coat of pieced Electric Seal (sheared and dyed hare) you will appreciate its excellent value, for rarely is one able to buy a fashionable fur coat at this extremely low price. Of course, its low price is only made possible because the smaller pieces of Electric Seal have been used in its development but they have been so carefully selected and blended that the coat has the appearance of a much more expensive coat. August Sale Price each ..... $39.50

Why You Should Buy Furs in August

Being made in the manufacturers' dull season, each coat has been given special attention as to workmanship. The designers embody the Autumn fashions trends in each garment.

Best prices for the price available because of the buying season. You have been passing up for quality and properly made furs.

Your furs should be stored until you need them in the cold weather. The cold temperatures in our vaults keep furs in perfect condition.

Coats of $100.00 or more are available on Deferred Payment. Terms as follows: 20% cash, balance, plus an equitable extra charge payable in eight equal monthly payments, providing purchase is made in August.

ROYAL MOUNTIES PIERCE THE NORTH

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—The north has been conquered by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrol. Inspector A. H. Joy and an eskimo companion have covered 1,800 miles in the Arctic midwinter to the Sverdrup Isles, the edge of the unknown, and back to Bache Peninsula.

Melville and Loughead Islands are near the edge of the unknown for northwest of these islands lies the vast wastes of Arctic ice and land exists between these islands and the north pole. There are lands eastward that reach further north but they have been explored.

Inspector Joy's patrol is considered here as strengthening the evidence of Canada's occupation of the Arctic. Constable Anstead patrolled to Axel Heiberg, a year ago, so that each winter the R. C. M. P. has left its imprint upon the farthest north islands. It is believed no land exists between these islands and if commander MacMillan wants to find unknown lands to which to give "good Yankee names" he will have to seek much farther north. Even then he will doubtless look in vain, for explorers are agreed that Arctic lands have all been "Canadian." Police are evidence of occupation.
