Sane Laborites Fear Country At Reds' Mercy

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Trade Unionists of the old school, who are regarded as fossilized by the new leaders such as A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, are shaking their heads over the latest demonstration of power achieved by the unions in connection with the threatened strike of coal miners last week.

George Nicoll Barnes, who served as Labor member of the House of Commons for Glasgow from 1906 to 1922, and who for many years has taken an active part in the co-operative movement, told the Daily Mail that when years ago he helped organize the unskilled workers he never foresaw that they one day would "take the community by the throat."

Would Spill Blood

"In view of what happened last week," he declared, "the community must in some way assert itself and become the top dog. The Red element, although very small in number, has assumed the direction. It is represented only to a small extent among the positions of authority in the trade unions, but the leaders are being dragged along by it.

"Among the signatories of last week's order forbidding the transport of coal in the event of a strike were men who knew the goal to which they were heading and who would see blood spilled without compunction. The future course of events cannot be forecast; one can only think the country is marching to industrial chaos."

Doors Closed To Indian's Appeals

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Chief Wm Pierrish and the other two Indians, Basil David and John Chelpitza, from British Columbia, who are with the chief in London attempting to submit grievances to the throne with regard to the tenure of their lands and the trapping of game, have not made much headway so far.

They have failed to move the Colonial Office in their behalf and they have not yet presented themselves at the offices of the Canadian High Commissioner in London, Hon. P. C. Larkin, or the Agent-General for British Columbia, F. A. Pauline. It is thought they will not receive any recognition or assistance if they call at either the High Commissioner's Office or the British Columbia Agent-General's office.

Text of Bryan's Evolution Speech

by paralyzing the hope of reform, it discourages those who labor for the improvement of man's condition. Every upward-looking man or woman seeks to lift the level upon which mankind stands, and they trust that they will see beneficient changes during the brief span of their own lives. Evolution chills their enthusiasm by substituting eons for years. It obscures all beginnings in the mists of endless ages. It is represented as a cold and heartless process beginning with time and ending in eternity, and acting so slowly that even the rocks cannot preserve a record of the imaginary changes through which it is credited with having carried an original germ of life that appeared some time from somewhere. Its only program for man is scientific breeding, a system under which a few supposedly superior intellects, self-appointed, would direct the mating and the movements of the mass of mankind—an impossible system.

Evolution, disputing the miracle, and ignoring the spiritual in life, has no place for the regeneration of the individual. It recognizes no cry of repentance and scoffs at the doctrine that one can be born again.

It is thus the intolerant and unrelenting enemy of the only process that can redeem society through the redemption of the individual. An evolutionist would never write such a story as the prodigal son; it contradicts the whole theory of evolution. The two sons inherited from the same parents and, through their parents from the same ancestors, proximate and remote. And these sons were reared at the same fireside and were surrounded by the same environment during all the days of youth; and yet they were different.

If Mr. Darrow is correct in the theory applied to Loeb, namely that his crime was due either to inheritance or to environment, how will he explain the difference between the elder brother and the wayward son? The evolutionist may understand from observation, if not by experience, even though he cannot explain, why one of these boys was guilty of every immorality, squandered the money that the father had laboriously earned and brought disgrace upon the family name; but his theory does not explain why a wicked young man underwent a change of heart, confessed his sin, and begged for forgiveness. And because the evolutionists cannot understand this fact, one of the most important in the human life, he cannot understand the infinite love of the heavenly father who stands ready to welcome home any repentant sinner, no matter how far he has wandered, how often he has fallen, or how deep he has sunk in sin.

Your Honor has quoted from a wonderful poem, written by a great Tennesse poet, Walter Malone, I venture to quote another stanza which puts into exquisite language the new opportunity which a merciful God gives to every one who will turn from sin to righteousness:

Though deep in mire, wring not your hands and weep;
I lend my arm to all who say, "I can."
No shame-faced outcast ever sank so deep
But he might rise and be again a man.

There are no lines like these in all that evolutionists have ever written. Darwin says that science has nothing to do with the Christ who taught the spirit embodied in the words of Walter Malone and yet this spirit is the only hope of human progress. A heart can be changed in the twinkling of an eye and a change in the life follows a change in the heart * * * It is because Christians believe in individual regeneration and in the regeneration of society through the regeneration of individuals that they pray. "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." Evolution makes a mockery of the Lord's Prayer! * * *

Would Eliminate Love.

Our fifth indictment of the evolutionary hypothesis is that, if taken seriously and made the basis of a philosophy of life, it would eliminate love and carry man back to a struggle of tooth and claw. The Christians who have allowed themselves to be deceived into believing that evolution is a beneficient, or even a rational process, have been associating with those who either do not understand its implications or dare not avow their knowledge of these implications.

Let me give you some authority on this subject. I will begin with Darwin, the high priest of evolution, to whom all evolutionists bow. On pages 149 and 150, in "The Descent of Man," already referred to, he says:

"With savages, the weak in body or mind are soon eliminated; and those that survive commonly exhibit a vigorous state of health. We civilized men, on the other, do our utmost to check the process of elimination; we build asylums for the imbecile, the maimed and the sick; we institute poor laws; and our medical men exert their utmost skill to save the life of every one to the last moment. There is reason to believe that vaccination has preserved thousands who from a weak constitution would formerly have succumbed to smallpox. Thus the weak members of civilized society propogate their kind. * *

"The aid which we felt impelled to give to the helpless is mainly an incidental result of the instinct of sympathy which was originally acquired as part of the social instincts, but subsequently rendered, in the manner previously indicated, more tender and more widely diffused. Now could we check our sympathy, even at the urging of hard reason, without deterioration in the noblest part of our nature. * * * We must therefore bear the undoubtedly bad effects of the weak serving and propagating their kind."

Let us analyze the quotation just given. Darwin speaks with approval of the savage custom of eliminating the weak so that only the strong will survive, and complains that "we civilized men do our utmost to check the process of elimination." How inhuman such a doctrine as this! He thinks it injurious to "build asylums for the imbecile, the maimed, and the sick," or to care for the poor. * * * All of the sympathetic activities of civilized society are condemned because they enable "the weak members to propagate their kind." Then he drags mankind down to the level of the brute and compares the freedom given to man unfavorably with the restrain that we put on barnyard beasts. * * *

Notes By The Way

readers feel somewhat relieved. This gives us some hope that The Globe will in future prove itself better informed as to conditions and movements in the Eastern and Southeastern Provinces of the Dominion. That would be better than to attempt to escape from an awkward position "through a knot hole."

The opposing parties in New Brunswick are making loud clamor throughout the province this week, the last opportunity before the polling on Monday next. Reports of the numerous political meetings which are being held day and night show great confidence among the leaders and the rank and file of the Opposition, while the Government camp gives evidence here and there of a panicky condition. It looks at this distance like a close fight with no large majority on either side.

There would be little doubt of a sweeping victory for the Opposition were it not for the large bribing power of a promised immediate expenditure of millions of money by the government, the effect of which can only be determined on polling day. All three St. John daily newspapers are manifestly throwing their influence in favor of the Government notwithstanding the bitter attack made upon the Telegraph and Journal by Attorney General Rand. The newspaper in question evinces a forgiving spirit quite unique in political annals, the reason for which can only be surmised.

The Moncton Times is putting up a splendid campaign for the Opposition and so far as can be judged from the conflicting reports of meetings those held by the Opposition are decidedly the larger and more enthusiastic. Each party charges the other with having the support of the "big interests" but that is a matter of doubtful import. There are fairly big interests on both sides. Both parties have strong leaders and the decision rests with the electors who have heard the issues of the campaign discussed fully and presented from every point of view.

Ireland Sides With The Two Dominions

GENEVA, Aug. 6—In a note to the League of Nations, which was primarily intended to outline views on the Benes protocol, the Irish Free State joined Canada and Australia in favor of unrestricted arbitration. At the same time the note advises the league against further attempt to emphasize the Article X. sanctions feature of the covenant if it wants the future adherence of the big non-member nations.

The Irish Foreign Minister Fitzgerald emphasizes approval of the protocol as ideal, stating it is "by no means beyond the realms of achievement." Specific objections are voiced against those features which obligate signatories to use force.

Dublin further expresses the belief that European frontiers are not permanent saying:

"Many existing frontiers were fixed by treaties negotiated before the shadow of the great war receded. While the future may prove the delimitations equitable and convenient, it may also show the boundaries in some cases are provocative of renewed conflicts. As long as the more powerful nations refrain from participation in the league, the feeling of distrust which is responsible for armaments will continue."

The note again calls the attention of the league to the fact that Ireland became a member without accepting Article X and cannot be committed to participation in any war without the consent of its parliament. Consequently the fore-going observations were dictated solely by a desire that the league should realize the aspirations of its founders.

BRITISH MONEY MAKERS CLAIMED BEST COIN CRAFTSMEN IN WORLD

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The claim is made that the British mint on Tower Hill, where all the British and many of the foreign countries' coins are made, contains the finest craftsmen in the world. The mint has just completed an order for Poland comprising about 20,000,000 coins. Last year it coined a large order for Russia and minted a number of gold coins for Egypt. It now has an order on hand for Lithuania to the value of $50,000.

Copper coins can be turned out at a great rate, and in the case of silver coins, where much greater care is needed, as many as seven millions have been produced in one week. The designs on coins made at the mint are said to stand out more clearly than on those produced in other countries, and the dies are made from designs submitted.

HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ontario.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course I don't feel well every day because the baby is so cross. But when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES CARSON, 27 Forsythe Street, Chatham, Ontario.

Mrs. Carson is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from female troubles.
