WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rain! to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, weak and the world looks pink.

A more powerful movement doesn't always get the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a liver, but have no calories or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Japan Threatened By Chinese Reds

(A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

TOYO. —Japan is "seriously threatened" by China's tendency toward Bolshevism, which may even excite China to declare war against Japan, Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita declared today in a broadcast address almost entirely devoted to defence of the anti-Communist pact signed in November by Japan and Germany.

The pact has been severely criticized by nearly all anti-militarist elements in the country. For a time it appeared this criticism might even compel resignation of the cabinet.

SECOND SERVICE OF WEEK OF PRAYER—The Central Street Christian Church was filled to capacity on Tuesday evening for the second service of the Week of Prayer in Summerside. Mr. Robert Gordon presided and opened the meeting with a few remarks. The church choir assisted by the hymns Rev. J. B. Wilson was the speaker of the evening and used the story of Zacharias from St. Luke, Chap. 19 to illustrate the "Difference that Christ makes" which is the theme of the Week of Prayer. In the course of his excellent discourse he pointed out that Zacharias, most hated of men and a tax gatherer, after he had found a friend in Christ Jesus, was more mindful of the needs of the lowly and wanted to make restitution against them. This was the difference that Christ made. Today people need to have more knowledge of Christ. People are not tired of religion as it relates to the life of Christ Jesus, but they are tired of the empty forms of religion. He stressed the need of people living good lives so that they would be an example for other men. The meeting closed with the Blessing by Rev. Walter MacLeary.—S.

SOUTH GRANVILLE CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT

The concert came off on Monday. The night was grand and fine, the school, looking bright and cheery. Was completely filled by nine.

The general Peter Morrison, Just acted Chairman good. He was given the best of order, As every gathering should.

The program then got started. With a chorus by girls and boys. And the way they sang together, Would remind you of Christmas joys.

The selections for recital, Brought laughter to one and all. These young reciters of Granville, Would be welcome to any hall.

The dialogues were acted quite clever, Those taking part did well. Did they practice much? Just ask Their teacher,—W.E. Waddell.

The step dancers were amusing, How lightly they tapped the floor, And when their parts were over, The audience wished for more.

The music by Philip and Charlie, On violin and accordion played, Was of high order—a real delight, So everybody truly said.

Oh! we were pretty high forgetting, Our thoughts in "Muss" employed, How the young folks sang so sweetly, Their songs were much enjoyed.

The Christmas tree in the corner, With gifts—an abundant supply For teacher, and eager children, Looked sparkling to the eye.

When Santa arrived on the scene, Impersonated by Herbie so jolly, He quickly unloaded the tree, Leaving the teacher and children happy.

justice and liberty they are sworn to uphold and defend.

"In this case I find merely that a circumstance of danger arose, the accused attempted to avoid the probable consequences by directing his automobile sharply across the road into the other ditch at the risk of his own life. Unfortunately his attempt was not successful. He appeared to be blinded by the lights of the approaching car. The visible reflector on the vehicle in which they were driving must have a substantial bearing on the result. From my consideration of the evidence adduced and without casting any reflection on such juries as have tried like cases in the past I cannot help but feel that in this instance no petit jury would attach criminal consequences to the non-criminal behaviour of the accused and would find him 'not guilty.' Such being my conviction I feel in duty bound to discharge the accused."

The accused was thereupon discharged from custody.

Eight Witnesses

The enquiry opened yesterday morning. Six witnesses were called for the prosecution and two for the defence. L. G. Lewis conducted the case for the prosecution and R. R. Bell for the defence.

Dr. R. D. MacNeill was the first witness and testified to the cause of death of the victims. John C. Duggan then told how he came on the scene of the accident and found a car lying on its side with head towards Charlottetown. The wheels were in the right hand ditch and the hood towards the road. A man was standing by. His head was bleeding a little. Ralph Connick was with the witness and Andrew asked assistance to help right the car. Witness asked him what happened. The man seemed dazed and did not seem to know what had taken place. In answer to question of witness, he said there was a car. It has gone on. The man did not appear to know what had happened. It was about twenty minutes after witness came on the scene that they learned that an actual collision had occurred. Witness thought a car had struck Andrew. The man was perfectly sober. The ground was frozen hard. The accident occurred on an up-grade.

John A. Douglas, Norboro, then gave evidence of being attracted to something unusual going on when he saw from his window a car pull up outside his place. He had the impression something had happened. He corroborated evidence of previous witness as to position and condition of the wrecked car. He went after a lantern and he and Ernest Seller went down the road to investigate the accident. He told of finding the man in the ditch and came to the conclusion: he was dead. Also the horse. He directed Seller to the nearest telephone. After Seller and Andrew had left he and the others searched around and found the woman. They decided they had better telephone the police themselves. Dr. MacNeill was directed to where the bodies were.

Ernest Seller was called and stated that he came upon the accident as he was returning to Charlottetown. He recognized Andrew, who he thought was in a terrible mess. He said he had passed a team and wondered where they were. Witness then told how he discovered the man. He then drove with Andrew to Kensington. From his conversation on the way he got the impression that Andrew had struck the bank on the left side.

Asked by counsel what he did if a car meeting him did not dim his lights he said he would pull out as far as possible to his own side and hope that they would pass by all right. He usually drove at forty miles an hour with good vision. He considered that safe at that time of night. Witness stated that on December 23rd, the day after the accident, he met 23 cars between Charlottetown and Read's Corner; 15 dimmed their lights and seven absolutely refused to dim.

Counsel: "What did the 23rd car do? You have only told of 22."

Witness: "The 23rd blinded me. I almost went into the ditch. Had I got him I would have had him arrested."

Andrew told him that he saw the team after passing the car with bright lights and pulled out to avoid it. Witness stated that he met two cars between Kensington and the accident. Witness was asked if he ever met carriages carrying lights or reflectors since it was made law for them to do so and he replied "Yes I have."

"What are the chances of seeing them when meeting a car?" Answer: "Very poor."

Witness in answer to question of Andrew's conditions stated that he was perfectly sober. He had no doubt of it. When he first saw him he seemed dazed.

Mr. A. J. Reardon was the first witness after recess, when he submitted a plan of the road. Constable Keyes was then called and gave an account of the accident and his conversation with Andrew that night.

Cross examined by Mr. Lewis he stated that he could find no sign of a light or reflector either that night or the next morning. He would say a car went to left and then came back on right side of road before it upset.

Mr. Duggan (recalled) stated that he did not remember meeting another car before he came upon the accident. This concluded the evidence for the prosecution.

Mr. Bell then called John Doyle, Charlottetown, who stated that he had known Andrew for many years. He often drove with him. For five weeks prior to the accident they had been driving together every day with the exception of that day and the previous day. Andrew drove his own car and sometimes the witness' car on these occasions. On Dec. 22 Doyle said he was in Summerside. Left there about 5 o'clock.

Remembered passing a wagon near Kensington with two people in it, a large and a small person. They had no reflector. Witness stopped at Kensington for a short time and came upon the same team just east of Kensington. He was quite sure it was the same team. Witness stated he often met carriages without lights. It is hard to see them at night. Asked what sort of driver he considered Andrew to be, witness replied: "Very careful and capable. I always let him drive in a bad place when we are together, as I consider him the better driver."

Witness then gave an account of the accident as he viewed it the morning after it happened.

Mr. Andrew then took the stand and stated that he had been driving a car for about 19 years. He had never been in a collision before. The morning of the accident he drove to Crapaud and after visiting several places was returning to Charlottetown and had arrived in Kensington about 5.45 p.m. About three miles out of Kensington met a car with blinding headlights. Witness dimmed his lights but other driver did not. Previous to meeting car was driving about 40 miles. Average 40 to 45. As he passed the car he turned on his bright lights. As he did so he saw the team, and pulled to the left to avoid the wagon. After that he did not remember what happened. When he came to his senses, he told, he was standing on the road. He realized he had had an accident but did not know that there had been a collision. He thought he had pulled over too far and hit the bank.

Witness stated that he knew Cummings used to drive travellers in the winter time through the country with horse and team.

Witness stated that since the accident he had been receiving treatment from the doctor for four displacements between the base of his head and his shoulder. He must have received them in the accident. He did not think he would have been more seriously hurt. He did not know how he got out of the car. Witness stated that he quite frequently met cars that would not dim. He also stated as his lights brightened they raise and that was when he saw the wagon. Had he left his lights on all the time he could have seen the wagon better. Have had experiences like this but not quite so close.

Would Preserve Beauty Of Niagara Falls

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—International action to preserve the scenic beauties of honeymooners' paradise—Niagara Falls—was forecast today. In Washington Alfred F. Better, New York State Congressman said he had drafted a bill for appointment of an international commission for this purpose. Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said his government was interested.

Its contours changed by recent rock falls, the falls are in danger of further erosion, according to experts. Particularly noticeable is tremendous pressure on the centre of the Horseshoe Falls where the water is more than 30 feet deep. The sides are shallow.

Engineers propose sinking piers in the upper stream to divert more water to the sides and lessen the strain on the centre. Also proposed is a program of landscaping and to be decided is the question of whether further diversion of
