Mr. Russel Younker, Darlington, has purchased a Chevrolet touring car. What might have been a very serious accident occurred on the Colville road, near the railroad crossing on Sunday evening, when a lady driving a spirited horse, was confronted by a two-wheeled young man driving a Ford touring car. The horse, getting beyond the control of the driver, leaped for the bank but was quickly captured by one of the young men who saw the danger and ran to her rescue. Fortunately the young miss escaped any serious injuries.

PETERS ROAD AND VICINITY

The weather-man, irrespective of picnics and other side issues is dealing out good growing stuff which is doing wonders with all kinds of crops, especially those on fertilized lands. Altogether the outlook is good for an all round crop in 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bears and party motored from Montague, quite recently and attended the services in the Peters Rd. Presbyterian church at 2.30 p. m. Incidentally they met many of their old acquaintances here.

Mr. Wilfred McLean spent the week-end visiting friends at Mt. Stewart. He reports excellent crops in that vicinity.

Mr. Stafford Macdonald, late of Sydney, N. S., accompanied by his aunt and Mrs. Calvin McFadyen, arrived home to spend the summer months with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Macdonald, Alliston.

Mr. Tyler Beck with party motored from Boston to his home at Alliston where he will spend his holidays the guest of his mother, Mrs. Vere Beck and Mr. and Mrs. John Beck and others.

Miss Annie Macdonald, Miss Mabel McLean, and Miss Lillian Johnston also from Boston, arrived at their respective homes in Alliston, and Peters Road, where they will take advantage of the healthful and bracing air of their native land.

Misses Arlie and Belle McLean, of Ch'town, are spending a few days visiting relatives and friends at Peters Road and Murray Harbor.

Mr. Cameron Reid, Murray Harbor North called on different parties here on flying trip through this vicinity in the interest of the Massey Harris Co., Ltd.

Mrs. John M. Johnston, Peters Road, who has been seriously indisposed for a considerable time, was removed yesterday in the car of Mr. Louis Johnston, to the Prince Edward Island Hospital for a special course of treatment. Dr. Lester Braithwaite accompanied Mr. Johnston on the trip.

Rev. D. V. O'Meara, Pastor of Murray Harbor North and Peters Road Presbyterian Churches, preached to large and appreciative audiences at Peters Road, on Sunday 24th inst. at 2.30 and 7.30. His subject in the evening service was a most interesting one and was listened to with rapt attention. The learned speaker based his sermon from St. Luke Chap. 21 Verses 25 to 28. He gave many proofs of the nearness of Christ's Kingdom on Earth when He shall come the second time.

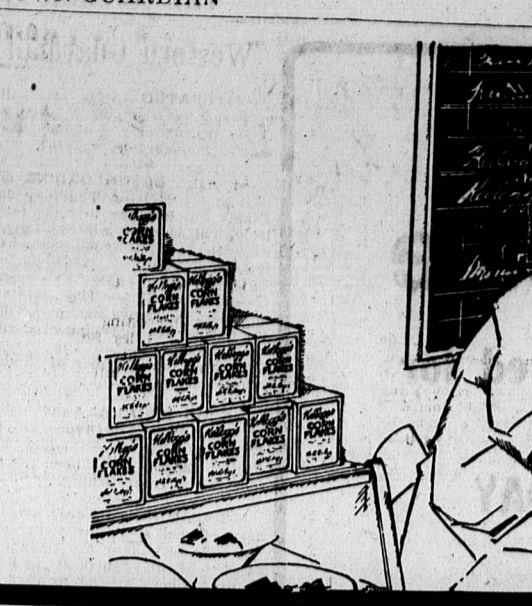

THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

In the heart of Jasper National Park, in the Canadian Rockies, Canada's largest National playground, is situated Jasper Park Lodge, the world famous mountain resort, owned and operated by the Canadian National Railways. Located in this Park are some of the mightiest peaks in the Canadian Rockies, the Monarch of them all, Mount Robson being some 12,922 feet in height. Mount Edith Cavell, with 11,033 feet, named in honor of the British Red Cross nurse, a martyr of the late war, is also numbered among the giants of the Park. There are lakes of crystal hue and mirror-like surface, which reflect within their depths the majestic snow-clad mountain peaks that rise up on all sides. For the golfing enthusiast there is a world renowned golf course and a game played on its links beneath the shadow of towering peaks is an experience not soon forgotten. Among the famous glaciers is the "Glacier of the Angles" on Mount Edith Cavell. The lodge consists of rustic log cabins or bungalows, with a main building where is enjoyed dancing and which is the centre of social life.

A descriptive booklet of the various attractions of the Park, and outlining the features connected with a holiday spent there, may be obtained on application from any Canadian National Agent, or by writing the General Passenger Department at Moncton, N. B. 8184-7-29-121

TUB FROCKS COLORFUL

The long, plain sleeve, which is left open at the bottom, closed with a short cuff or gathered into a simple wristband, and the plain slightly full skirt which has a cluster of pleats or gathers in front, are two details of summer styles that are easily adapted to the silk tub frock. If one observes closely many of the smart costumes that are worn about town and in the country, they illustrate a sophisticated simplicity which is their charm. Color is more than ordinarily important in these tub frocks of silk, voile, linen and cotton, for in this season, so magnificent in tints and shades, those selected for tub dresses must be not only lovely, but warranted to stand the soap-and-water test. It is almost incredible that in these frocks for every-day wear there should be washable crepe de chine, toile de soie and washable satin in such subtle shades as orchid, peach-blossom, Phyllis, sea spray—a delicate green—maui, slimist and ivory. These have a delicious sound which in itself suggests all the beauties of summer. Printed washable rayon in garconne and floral prints are among the soft fabrics that are used for lingerie as well as for the plain tub frocks. Some of them are weaves in very subtle silk and crepe de chine and crepe chenetie, crepe Ganymede, toile de soie-Cinderella, all of them in the washable class known as to color by the picturesque names of romany, admiral, marigold, polo red, turf and morning glory.

Clergyman's Widow's Luck

(By British United Press)

LONDON, July 2.—Somewhere in Norfolk the widow of a poor clergyman is rejoicing because an old vellum document which her husband prized (but did not value over much) has fetched nearly $3,000 at an auction. The story is also highly creditable to the London dealer who some weeks ago went to see the widow's "few things" at her request. He found nothing to interest him in her modest property, but as he was taking his leave the widow asked him to look at an old Elizabethan document on which he quickly espied the gold signature of the great circumnavigator, Sir Francis Drake, along with that of Sir John Norris, joint commanders of the expedition to the coast of Spain. It was the original appointment of John Martin to be captain of the bark Thomas. Being a shipper of six score tonne, and was dated April 13, 1588. The dealer might have had it for $25 but he refrained and told the widow that he thought it was worth at least $500 and that he would take it to London and do his best for her. He forthwith entered it for sale at Sotheby's and the bidding began at $500. A number of collectors competed for the historic relic, and in the end one of them secured the price at $2900.

Dragon Dresses

(By British United Press)

LONDON, July 26.—The Chinese influence which has been making itself so prominent on the stage and in other directions lately is now touching feminine fashion in a new way. Pierce and fearsome-looking dragons, with fiery tongues, are being used to trim frocks and coats with results fascinating and striking. A little sleeveless coat of heavy night blue displayed a large dragon on the back. The dragon was appliqued in black, orange and violet, and was so big that it almost covered the back of the garment. This particular coat was worn over a slim dress of thin primrose yellow silk made with the fashionable long, full bishop's sleeves, and the Chinese worked in fine black silk on the yellow sleeves.

A regular family of Chinese dragons was to be seen on a trim walking dress of fine cream kasha. These dragons were red and blue, and appeared on the skirt of the dress. Very handsome were the gold and silver dragons with touches of coloured jewels about the cing wrap or black satin. These decorative dragons seem literally to cover the coat, and, besides appearing on the outside, also wandered on to the gold lame lining.

CALLS FASHIONABLE WEDDINGS VULGAR

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, characterized fashionable church weddings as "of ten vulgar as well as pagan, and many marriages as based on 'stimulative sex appeal,' in an attack on the modern attitude toward marriage and divorce in the Year Book of the Trinity parish, made public today. He warned that the increase in divorce was threatening a breakdown in family life and that the propagation of freer divorce might bring this country to the legalization of trial marriages or the granting of divorce on mere application as in Soviet Russia. Renouncing "the progressive polygamy and respectable promiscuity" of American married life as striking at the home and children, he asserted that the legalized polygamy of the East at least preserved the home for the children.

"While I feel sure that the Christian Church is not losing ground in this time of readjustment and changing standards of thought and conduct," Dr. Stetson wrote, "and I am certain that definite progress is being made in many ways, I do think that we are falling to make any constructive or well-considered attempt to cope with one of the most serious dangers that face us in this country, namely, the danger of a breakdown in family life. This breakdown is in large measure due to the attitude of what seems to be the majority of the people in our land toward the marriage bond, and the subject deserves more consideration than most of us have given to it. To decree divorce as a growing evil does not get very far toward remedying matters."
