

Miss Rose Kennedy, well known as a actress and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and society quite freely and would be readily called. I thought I had some trouble some months ago, while menstruating, and this caused inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well.

"I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was." - Miss Rose Kennedy, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky. - 40000 for full original of above letter printed on request cannot be reproduced.

A SCOUT'S HARD LIFE.

That Must Be Faced. An unfortunate, poor Leslie, 18 months of age, was sent with a dispatch by one of the smaller outposts in the far north-west. It was toward spring, when the midday sun thaws the surface of the snow and the light frosts harden the melted crusts to a glaze of ice as dazzlingly bright as the blinding flames of sunlight from polished steel. The snow had crusted over the trail, and the scout had to keep a sharp eye on the way not to lose the path. Suddenly the midday sun developed extraordinary hues. Magenta, purple and black patches began to dance on the snow, alternately with wheels and streaks of cheese colored fire. The light went out altogether, though the man knew that it was broad daylight. The horse stood stock still. The trail together or the brocho would have followed any visible path. The wheeled horse about. It kept on to go on, and then the man inquired that the crust of ice had been so hard that the horse could not follow. The way it had come. That night the trooper slept under saddle blankets, with the faithful horse standing by. For five days the trooper wandered blindly over the prairies, losing his count of time, eating snow to quench his thirst and sleeping in the folds that the broncho had paved through the ice crust to the under grass. The trooper was now too weak to mount and keep the saddle. As a last hope the thought struck him that if he unaided his horse and turned it loose it might find its way back to the fort, and so notify his friends that he was lost. He did this, but the faithful creature refused to leave the man lying on the snow and stood over him in spite of all his efforts to drive it off. On the sixth day the mail carrier found the pair. The trooper was severely frozen, but the rider and horse lived to see many another day's service.

FROM LAST TO FIRST

People used to take plain cod liver oil for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles after other remedies had failed. Scott's Emulsion is the modern idea of cod liver oil—the first instead of the last resort when such ailments appear. The taste of the oil is no apparent and the oil itself is digested—makes it easier for the stomach. Scott's Emulsion is a quick, reliable help in all ages. Will send you a sample free upon request. TRUBLE FOR EUROPE.

Paternal Events Predicted. The Chicago astrologist predicted that after the death of a great statesman with his letters in his name (which indeed Gladstone) there would be a war in Africa, sensational in its features and direful in its results. It is foreseen that the days of the present British empire are numbered; that her power is passing away and that her glory will be dimmed. The empire will become dismembered, and the United Kingdom will be for a time at the mercy of the nations which so long have hated and feared her. When the great struggle comes England at first will be victorious, but in the end will be defeated and sink very low in the scale of nations. While going down, however, and departing she will deliver India and possibly other possessions to the United States, and then America will take England and partition it, and will thereafter march on together, dominating the world, and England will once more regain her prestige. The same astrologist predicts that the German empire is liable to get into trouble before long, and before the trouble ends France will regain Alsace and Lorraine. Furthermore, Emperor William will not live very long. But the Gallic cock should subdue the anticipatory crowing for new troubles that also stored away in the stars for that emotional land. They are also predicted in the Bible, says the astrologist, and the evil influences that overhangs her destiny in the Napoleonic, Prince Louis, now commanding as an officer in the Russian army. Through Muscovite influence, intrigues and aid he will overthrow the French republic and re-establish the empire of his Corsican ancestor. But his reign will not be a long one. "He will lead Europe into a hornets' nest, but he himself will be stung to death. He is the man on horseback that imperialists are looking for, since the so-called right heir, Prince Victor, has got out of the way. But he will get a fatal fall. These events are not far off."—Successful American.

PICKINGS FROM FICTION.

Prisons are the infernos civilization builds in which to hide its mistakes.—"The Under Dog." It's plumb foolishness to try to lay down rules for other folks to live by.—"The Substitute." A man's faith in himself is often the chief cause of a woman's faith in him.—"Round Anvil Rock." A woman who has discarded a man is perhaps nearer loving him just afterward than ever before.—"Gordon Keith." Those whom we most resemble are the very ones who are most annoyed to see themselves reproduced.—"His Daughter First." There is a gravity of words; they descend and never climb; they must, like a stone, come tumbling from above to do an injury.—"Peggy O'Neal." The sin and sorrow of despotism is not that it does not love men, but that it loves them too much and trusts them too little.—"Robert Kingling." No woman of sense objects to her husband's simple admiration of another woman, but when it comes to another woman being a factor in his life and thoughts a wife must and should resent it.

The Way to Identify Her. Agnes and Ethel are the kind of twins it is difficult for intimates of the family to distinguish apart. They are four years old and a source of despair to mere acquaintances. A friend of the family met one of the twins on the street the other day and asked: "Now, which are you, Agnes or Ethel? I simply can't tell you apart." "I'm Agnes," giggled the small maiden, and then she put one of her chubby little fingers in her mouth and mumbled: "You can tell me easy. I'm the one with the loose tooth."

In Russia many of the peasantry bury their dead in grottoes and caves, just as their princes and noble men were accustomed to do centuries ago. In Constantinople, as in other Turkish cities, bodies are placed in the ground as soon as the last spark of life has fled. The Mussulman believes that as long as the body is unburied the spirit is in torment and that it is a crime akin to murder to molest a grave. Accordingly the cemeteries around many of our cities far exceed in extent the bodies of the living.

The fair young thing was telling about how happy she was when she saw her brother's baseball team win the intercollegiate game. "Oh, she giggled, 'it was so delightful that I just hugged myself for joy!'"

Here the grave professor of psychology looked up with an air of interest. "Hugged yourself?" he asked. "Indeed, you must have been very happy, for a hug is a very good thing."
