SHE KNEW.

Little Margaret's Answer to a Question in Religion.

Little Margaret had given her dog the dignified and not generally bestowed upon dogs name of Stephen. This being rather difficult for everyday pronunciation, much coaxing and various tidbits finally induced Stephen, the dignified, to come in answer to the more intimate and endearing term "Teevie." There came a sorrowful day when Teevie could not be found in any of his accustomed spots.

That night before sobbing herself to sleep Margaret finished her prayer, "O Lord, please find Teevie and bring him back."

After repeating this for several nights her mother thought she would save the child's faith from too severe a strain, so suggested that she stop praying for Stephen's return, but wait patiently. She imagined time might efface the idea and leave her little girl with a faith still implicit. Some three weeks afterward she sat down to teach her the next Sunday's lesson.

"Who is God, Margaret?" she asked. "God is our Father," replied the child.

"And where is God?" the mother continued.

The child's face wore a puzzled expression for a second; then she exclaimed delightedly:

"Oh, I know! He's off hunting Teevie."—New York Times.

Know His Lines.

"Did I understand you to say that our old friend Barnstormer was married?" asked the low comedian.

"Your understanding is still doing stunts," replied the heavy weight sourette. "He married the daughter of a poultry dealer."

"Barnstormer always did have an eye to business," rejoined the low comedian. "He knows the value of eggs."—Chicago News.

The New Fad.

"What did you do with my samples of pyrography?" asked the girl who had just returned from college.

"What is pyrography, darter?" queried her rural pa.

"Why, pyrography is the art of burning wood."

"Gosh! Then I helped you. I put all the samples in the stove."—Brooklyn Life.

Frequently the Case.

"Yes," she said bitterly, "he's a bigamist."

"A bigamist?" they cried.

"Alas, yes!" she said. "Although I didn't know it at the time, he was wedded to his business at the time he married me, and the worst of it is that he still deems that first wife the more important."—Chicago Post.

His Complacent View.

Cadleigh—Pardon me, but it must be pretty tough to be married to a strong-minded woman.

Henpeck—Oh, it has its advantages! When my wife thinks she hears burglars downstairs she won't trust me to go down and investigate.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Getting Rid of Him.

"I am fixing up a surprise for John, but I am afraid that if he stays around the house he will discover me."

"That's all right. You just tie the towel around your head and ask him if he can't stay at home today and help you take up the carpets."—Baltimore News.

Past the Other Ages.

"Miss Passay, I believe, declares she hasn't yet reached the proper age to marry."

"I suppose she considers dotage the proper age then."—Philadelphia Press.

Injudicious Intellectuality.

Victoria—Our club papers are too long.

Virginia—I think so. Twice, now, I've had to come home before refreshments.—Detroit Free Press.

A Limit.

Chequely—Money, young man—money can do anything.

Frank—Excuse me, sir. It can't get a fellow into our college eleven-Town and Country.

Mistaken.

"Wasn't that horse of yours a race horse once?"

"Not exactly, but I thought he was."—San Francisco Examiner.

Such Aspects

Hunter—What a nuisance that it is the closed season for bears and I can't shoot.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why, of Course.

Stella—What would you say if Charles gave me an engagement ring? Bolla—I'd call it a left handed compliment.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Six Doctors Failed to Cure Him.

ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM WAS THE TROUBLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

DID MORE THAN SIX DOCTORS COULD DO.

Mrs. Theo. Newell, Argyle Sound, N.S., expresses her opinion of this wonderful blood remedy in the following letter:

"It is with the greatest gratitude that I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. For years my husband suffered terribly with Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. He was so bad at times that he could not sleep on account of the itching and burning. He had been under the care of six different doctors, but they failed to do him any good. I had read different times of the wonderful cures being made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so advised him to give it a trial. He did so, and after taking five bottles was cured without a doubt. I would strongly advise any person troubled with blood disorders to give B.B.B. a fair trial for I am sure it will cure them."
