Two Outstanding Examples Of Canadianism

Inhabitants of Montreal of the losing long fight of Adam Doucail and his men and the French Communists knew then what had caused the delay in the long expected Iroquois attack and have blessed the name of Adam Doucail. Today in one of the busiest sections of the thriving city of Montreal there stands a monument to Adam Doucail and his companions who by their self sacrifice were not afraid to lay down their lives that Canada might live; that is my first example of Canadianism.

Now my second example of Canadianism arises out of an experience of my own when I was in the Ypres salient in October 1915 and I want you to come with me in imagination comrades of the Legion and stand with me upon the little hill of Scherpenberg, five miles behind the firing line. Behind us at the top of the hill there stands one of those windmills which you and I know so well and at the foot of the hill there runs the road leading from Loene through Scherpenberg, La Clytte on to Diebusche to Ypres and on this road there stands a company of two hundred men equipped for modern war. Who are these men who stand there waiting for you and me to join them? I will tell you who these men are. They are men of that Battalion of whom I am so proud the men of the fighting 26th, and they stand there on the road waiting for us, and we go down the hill to join them and as we approach, the company's sergeant major reports all presents and correct, very good sergeant major, carry on, and we take post at the head of the column and give the order to march, down we go toward La Clytte over the cobblestone roads. Are there any of us here tonight who have forgotten the cobblestone roads of France and Flanders? The cobble stones in the centre with a stretch of mud on either side, then the deep ditches and outside of that again, the double line of trees, bearing branches to a height of thirty feet. Down we go into the little village of La Clytte and on our right hand as we enter is the Red Cross Hospital with its flag staff and the Union Jack. On our left are cottages and small shops, on our right again are barns and storehouses which are being used for quarters for the troops then billeted in the village. On our left stands the village church with its crowded churchyard and at the door perhaps there stands the black-robed priest, watching us as we march by. Further on, on our left is the village forge with the blacksmith working at some employment, then more warehouses and barns and then we come to the cross roads where stands a member of that very much abused corps, the Military Police and the M. P. with a little gesture directs us to our right, upon the road to Mt. Kemel. We leave La Clytte behind and go down into the valley where stands the water tanks of the 8th Brigade with its attentive armed guard. We mount the hill beyond and go down into the next valley and as we mount the hill beyond that, we halt and the men fall out on the right hand side of the road, sitting with their feet in the ditch, laughing, talking, smoking cigarettes, reading their last letters from home or perhaps adding a hasty line to the letters that they may want to send, but you and I comrades do not stand there upon the road and we enter a cultivated field and there we find a strange furrow; it is a trench of the previous month's fighting and there we can still see the sandbags rotting in their places and we move along the trench line until we come to the angle of the trench and that is where I wish you to stand with me tonight in imagination comrades of the Legion, for there in the angle of the trench are two mounds much larger than an ordinary grave and capable of containing at least a dozen men and at the head of these mounds there stands a cross made of biscuit boxes broken in pieces and the cross arms bound to its standard by a piece of spun yarn and we stop and read the inscription on the arm of the cross and these are the words that are roughly inscribed there. "To the unknown British dead," and we stand and look about us and what do we see, a lovely warm day in October 1915 with the farm sunlight pouring down on us and larks singing in the sky and around us is an apparently peaceful farm scene of peasants working in their fields, old men, women and children for their able bodied men are at the front. An apparently peaceful scene, but we are only one mile and a quarter from the firing line and through it all and in it all we hear the rattle of mus-etry and the thunder of the guns, and we look out from where we stand on Mt. Kemel and we see at a distance of three miles or so the City of Ypres which even at this time has had its cloth hall still standing and its two towers standing out gaunt against the sky and we look beyond Ypres and we see the battle ground of the earlier months of this year 1915. Do the names of Langmarck St. Julien, Hill 60, have any meaning for you and me? Can we imagine what took place there on the 22nd of April 1915, Let's try? Four o'clock in the afternoon of April 22nd, 1915 another peaceful scene and yet when we look closely we see a strange sight, we see men leaving their trenches and as they approach us we see that they wear a strange uniform and that many appear to be in extreme pain and are trying to obtain relief by violent vomiting. Who are these men? They are the French Auxiliaries, the Algerians Zouaves and they appear to be in great alarm behind them there rolls a strange cloud slightly tinged with yellow. What is that? You know as well as I do what that cloud is. It is the first cloud of poison gas that has just been launched by Germany upon her enemies though she has several years before signed an agreement that she would never use it. The cloud rolls on and the Algerians retreat leaving a gap of four miles or so in the advance line and behind that cloud, complete to the last button on its uniform and the last buckle on its equipment there marches the flower of the German army and their objective is the thing desired, Calais and the channel ports and by all their rules of war as they know it, by all their text books which they have studied for the last forty years, they have won and they march toward their objective unopposed. But who are those men who are suddenly flung into this four mile gap, who dare to stand up before the might of Germany? Who are these men who form this thin khaki line who dare to say to Germany, "thus far shall thou go and no further." I will tell you who these men are, though probably you know, for they are the men of the first Canadian division and they have been flung into this four mile gap and they are to hold Germany. Astonished Germany hesitates and then royals up her power against this thin khaki line, which bends and bends, but it does not break. Thwarted in her purpose Germany again royals up against the khaki line like a tidal wave, it bends and bends, but it does not break and for three days amidst sounds of slaughter and unmitigated Hell, from trench line to shell hole, from shell hole to the open ground, we club heavily a bayonet, we boom a machine gun, the Canadian Battalions fight yes, even with bare hands and they hold Germany and Germany unwillingly digs herself in on the new trench line and after three days battle, where worn, decimated, but unconquered men of Canada are relieved. Well did Sir John French in his telegram of congratulation express it, "this day Canada has saved the situation," and as you and I stand in October 1915 beside those two unknown graves in the Ypres salient, we ask ourselves the oft repeated question, for what cost did our comrades die? Was it for civilization? Yes. Was it for the British Empire? Yes, and it was for home and country too. Our comrades have died for Canada and we are asked to live for Canada for today you and I by the grace of God and by the lives of our comrades laid down overseas, are home in Canada once more to carry on the life of Canadian citizenship. We find it hard no doubt, we find it irksome monotonous; I myself know what that means. No longer do we have brass bands to play us to our work, no longer do we have cheering crowds to send us on our way; those things belong to the years 1914-1918, but we are nevertheless called upon to undertake the everyday duties of Canadian citizenship and it is by the way in which we solve our duties, our daily tasks as they come to our hand that we shall prove ourselves to be worthy members of the Canadian Legion and shall by our trying solve our problems with the help that God has given us, that we shall go a long way to raise our country to the place which she belongs in the front rank amongst the nations of the world and when we do that, then and only then shall we be able to say with pride that is wholly justified, we first saw the light in Canada, the land beloved of God. We are her narrow and her blood and we the men of Canada can pass the word and brag that we were born in Canada beneath the British Flag. Comrades, I have spoken.

Burglars at a Kirk Ella, England, house recently stole the watch dog. Berlin, Germany, will have 15 ex-nibitions this year.

-HIGHEST PRICE FOR PAIR OF SILVER FELTS—Mr T. D. Caruthers and Mr. J. S. Wright of Summerside, returned home on Wednesday evening from Montreal where they have been attending the Fur Auction Sales. They report a fair average sale with a brisker demand for the lower grades of skins. A pair of silver fox pelts which were sold through the co-operative marketing Department of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders Association fetched the highest price during the sale, having realized $320 each.—S.

-ISLAND POTATOES FOR THE WEST—Mr. Ray Schurman of Dodsland, Saak, but former of New Annan, brought to the Island recently a car load of western potatoes which he sold privately at a good figure. The horses were all in excellent condition and were rated as first class farm animals and found a ready market. Mr. Schurman has just bought and shipped from Summerside several car-loads of Island potatoes to different parts of Saskatchewan. He says the P. E. I. potatoes are much favored and find a very ready sale in the West. Mr. Schurman who had been an extensive farmer in Saskatchewan, has recently sold several sections of his farm and although now returning to the West he has a notion of disposing of all his property there and coming to Summerside to reside permanently.—S.

-DEATH OF MR. JAMES CONNOLLY—The death occurred at his home in Middleton on Wednesday of Mr. James Connolly at the age of 68 years after an illness of a few weeks. The deceased was a very prosperous farmer, having one of the best farms in the Middleton district. He was a man of sterling character and took a keen interest in all matters pertaining to the betterment of the community and he will be much missed by his neighbours and many friends. He was a staunch adherent to the Roman Catholic Church. There are left to mourn besides his sorrowing widow, formerly Miss Elizabeth McBride, daughter to the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McBride, one son, Adrian and one daughter, Inez; also four sisters, namely: Mrs. Patrick Connolly of Bedque; Mr. Thomas Murphy of Middleton; Mrs. Phyllis Murphy of Freetown and Mrs. Albert McGuigan of Kinkora, to all of whom the sincere sympathy of the community is extended. The funeral took place on Friday morning from his late residence to the Kinkora Church and Cemetery, Rev. Mr. Smith officiating and was very largely attended.—S.

-ALBERTON INSTITUTE — The regular monthly meeting of the Alberton Women's Institute was held on Tuesday, April 1st, in the Institute Room with the president, Mrs. H. J. Larkin presiding. Meeting opened with the Ode and roll call was responded to by twenty six members. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. The Treasurer reported the following receipts: Government Grant $8.75; rent of hall for movies, $20.00 and dues $1.00, leaving a balance in the Bank after bills were paid of $18.94. The following bills were presented and ordered paid: light reflectors, brooms, coal, electric light. The sick committee reported visiting four sick members. A hearty welcome was given to Mrs. Leavitt and Mrs. Wilson, who were present for the first time since their illness last fall. The concert, which was postponed from March 17th, was left in the hands of a competent committee who expect to have it held shortly after Easter. It was decided to hold a Pantry Sale on Saturday, April 16th, in the store of Mr. H. J. Larkin. Various ways of raising funds were then discussed and Mrs. Burke suggested a rummage sale, one was held last year, which was very successful and she felt quite sure we could make a greater success this year with the co-operation of all. It was then decided to hold this sale early in May and it is hoped that all will co-operate as funds are greatly needed to apply on the building fund. Correspondence was read by the secretary and it was decided to help in making up linen for the Sanatorium. Committees were appointed as follows: Sick, Mrs. E. A. McRae and Miss Fielding; Program, Mrs. Tanton, Mrs. Champlon and Miss Dunn; Refreshment, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Wil-

Announce a Change in Their Business

This will advise our customers that we have decided definitely to discontinue the giving of credit and to confine our business strictly to the selling for cash.

Competition is so keen nowadays that to get the best price we find that we must pay cash for our goods and our customers realize this also. Many of them have told us that they would rather deal at a cash store as they are less liable to pay a credit price for what they buy.

It is unnecessary to tell you that we will as heretofore buy everything from you that we can turn over, and that everything we have to sell will be sold as cheaply as possible.

We wish to advise all those who have not paid their last years accounts to come in and do so. This is most imperative. Your account will be rendered within the next week, and must be settled as we do not purpose to keep books hereafter.

We thank most sincerely all those who have helped to make our business what it is, we also hope that you will still be our good customers and help to make this new venture a success.

In Memoriam

MRS. ANNIE L. BEARS

On Friday last, there passed away at Tewkesbury Hospital, Lowell, where she had been treated for some weeks past, Mrs. Annie Laura Bears, widow of the late Thomas Bears, of Lee Street, Cambridge, in her forty-sixth year. The deceased lady was born in Prince Edward Island, the daughter of Donald Martin, and the late Mrs. Martin, of Belle River. Twenty-seven years ago, she became the wife of Thomas Bears, who predeceased her last June. After leaving P. E. I., the family resided for a time in Attleboro, Mass., moving later to Cambridge, which has been their home town for the past seven years. Mrs. Bears was a very patient sufferer for the last two years and her latter days were peaceful and happy. Besides her aged father, two brothers, William and Peter, and two sisters, Mrs. Christina White and Mrs. John McCrae, a family of six survive to mourn her loss; four daughters, Marian, Caroline and Ellen at home and Lucy, Mrs. Carroll Compton, of Cambridge, with two youthful sons, Benjamin and Donald. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon from Fudge's Undertaking Parlors, Somerville, the services being conducted by Rev. J. W. S. Lowry, of the Scottish Kirk, of whose congregation the deceased was a member.
