KING GEORGE RATED BEST ALL ROUND SHOT IN BRITISH EMPIRE.

LONDON, Jan. 29—King George is reckoned not only one of the three best shots in England; his records extends to all parts of the world, and he is easily the greatest all round shot in the British Empire.

The recent tiger hunt in the Nepal jungle, of which some very good pictures have been obtained, has added another record to his long visit of successes.

Out of a total bag of thirty-nine tigers twenty-four fell to the King's rifle, and it has been reported that he brought down a tiger and a bear with a right and left barrel.

His records extent to almost all forms of game shooting—not only in England, but also in Scotland, Canada, Australia, and India. Unfortunately when he visited South Africa the war was still on, and he had no opportunity of testing his skill there.

In 1904, when he was Prince of Wales, he brought down 2,190 head of game on Lord Lathom's estate in seven hours. He worked three guns, and on more than one occasion there were four dead birds in the air falling together to his gun.

In a week's stalk at Balmoral twenty-two stags were shot, of which thirteen fell to the King. Once at Windsor he had a friendly shooting competition with the Kaiser. The wind at the time was high, the light was fading, and the birds were strong on the wing. The competitors made fifty-four alternate shots. The King missed only once; the Kaiser seven times. The King is devoted to all forms of game shooting, except pigeons in a trap—a sport in which he has never taken part.

When he toured the world a day's shooting was part of the programme of entertainment arranged for him in every country that he visited. Even after long and tiring ceremonials it was his never failing delight to get into his loose and comfortable shooting costume and disappear for a day among the game of the country. On one occasion he announced that he would have four days' strict privacy while stopping at Mauritius. None of his party saw him all that time. Suddenly one evening he turned up, beaming and happy, He had quietly slipped away for some deer stalking on Plana Raoul, and enjoyed excellent sport. Another time, in Canada, during a similar period of retirement he spent a whole day in a canoe with John Atkinson, the noted trapper, and shot fifty-two birds.

King George began to handle a gun when he was only eight years old, when his granduncle, the Duke of Cambridge, taught him to shoot and reported him a wonderful pupil.

A friend who accompanies the King on many shooting expeditions describes him as a shot with an original style of his own.

"It is not the style generally recognized as that of a brilliant shot", he says, "but it is his natural style which he has carefully developed and found to suit him best, much as some golf players do. Few men keep such a clear eye and steady, cool nerve after the age of forty as the King has done."

SHOT HIS WIFE, BURNED FATHER-IN-LAW'S HOUSE.

COLLINVILLE, Jan. 30—In an insane frenzy, John Kenefic, the former Hartford fireman, shot his wife in the arm and side with a rifle today, set fire to the house of his father-in-law, Arthur Johnson, where his wife was living, and held a posse of four men at bay with his rifle until his ammunition gave out. He was then overpowered and locked up. The wounds of his wife, while serious, are not expected to be fatal. The house was burned to the ground.

We plan on making the month of February the greatest money-saving period in our history. In doing this our object is not merely to keep up with the times but KEEP JUST A LITTLE AHEAD.

We have planned for the month of February to clear out thousands of dollars worth of stock at less than cost of manufacture, to make room for the new spring goods listed in our Big Spring and Summer Catalog, now in the hands of the printers. We are determined to have this CLEAN SWEEP SALE establish a precedent in true, conscientious value-giving. All we ask is for you to see the goods—we do not ask you to buy unless you are thoroughly convinced that this is an opportunity of opportunities; and after you buy there's certainly some satisfaction in knowing that you do not have to keep any goods unless they are perfectly satisfactory.

Less than Factory Prices on Fur and Fur Lined Coats

Every indication points to a sharp advance in the price of Furs, and as a natural result in fur garments. In the face of it all here are prices that are reduced below actual cost to us. We do not want to carry one Fur Coat over to next season, because it will pay us better to sell now at less than cost and put the money in new spring stock. It does not require any mathematical deduction to see what this special offer means to you. The fact of the matter is, you can buy a coat now at less than the manufacturer's price, and have the use of the coat the reminder of this winter, and have a coat that you may not be able to buy next winter at nearly double the price we ask at present. THINK IT OVER SERIOUSLY.
