ANNANDALE NOTES.—Farmers are putting in their crops some of which is now fairly advanced. The fishermen report better fishing fairly good, the catch is not large, but the fish are a good size. Among the visitors to Annandale on Monday last, was Mr. Thomas Kitchum and Mr. A. McQuaid. Mr. Walter Richards made a business trip to Annandale on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Captain Richards, Poplar Point, Mr. James Swallow, Little Pond, went west on Tuesday last. Mr. Wilfred Robertson had the misfortune of losing a fine cow. It is reported that she fled from the effects of wounds made by a shot-gun. This is a serious loss to Mr. Robertson, this time of the year.

NO PROFITEERING BY NEWSPAPERS

Enormous Increases in Costs of Production During Recent Years Have Affected All Publishers. (Minneapolis Tribune.)

The recent increase in subscription price and advertising rates of newspapers has put publishers on the defensive against the charge of being profiteers. The facts in the case justify their defence. Their production cost, the principal elements of which are wages and newsprint, has increased in a great or proportion than that of almost every other industry. A newspaper requires the highest class of skilled labor, including not only its heads of departments, but also its employees in its editorial, composing room, press room, stereotyping and other departments. Its pay-rolls have recently been increased by twenty-five per cent. to fifty per cent. or more. Without a substantial increase, this increase in labor-cost alone would bankrupt most newspapers.

But other increases in cost have to be met which are peculiar to the newspaper at the same time that they are exceptionally heavy. The cost of postage has been increased to that extent that the average newspaper is now delivered by mail beyond the second zone at a cost in some instances, of twice the subscription rate received; and many newspapers have been compelled to cut off their country circulation. Most metropolitan newspapers are now discouraging any extension of country circulation as against the previous persistent campaign for an increase in that field.

The greatest burden, however, of the newspaper, is the result of the recent unprecedented leap in the price of newsprint paper. Within the past seven years the price of newsprint under standard annual contracts, has jumped from $40 per ton, or less, to $100 per ton. But the increase in demand has become greater than production capacity. The allotments which paper mills can make to their regular customers at the standard contract price are increasingly insufficient to meet requirements and the market is inadequate to supply the required excess over contract quantities and at the same time to supply that great number of publishers who buy their newsprint in the transient market. The result is that within the last year transient prices for newsprint have gone to the present figure of $250 per ton, or over 600 per cent. increase on the price of seven years ago and 250 per cent. over the standard contract price fixed in December, 1919, for the year 1920. The result in newspaper production cost can be judged by the fact that a metropolitan daily with, say, 100,000 circulation, requires around 10,000 tons of newsprint per year, and that an increase of only $20 a ton raises its annual production cost by $200,000. The price of newsprint today is $200 a ton in England, $250 in Sweden and $300 in France, and for transient lots, $250 in the United States. As pointed out by B.S. Kellogg, secretary of the newsprint service bureau, in his discussion in American Forestry, the present shortage of paper is not due to decreased production, but to increased consumption, and with little prospect of relief in the near future.

CONVICTS SMILED IN DEATH CHAIR

NEW ORY. May 23.—Leo Jankowsky and Walter Levandowski, two dying and friendless men were executed in Sing Sing prison last night for the murder of a keeper in the Dannemora State Hospital. Neither was afraid to die. They wanted to die because neither had a friend in the world. During all the time they had been in prison no one ever called to see them. Both were in the last stages of tuberculosis. They welcomed the electric chair as a relief from their suffering.

"I was never so happy in my life," Levandowski told an attendant yesterday afternoon.

"But perhaps the governor will relieve you yet," the attendant remarked.

"I hope not," said the condemned man.

"But don't you think of the relatives you leave behind?"

"I leave nobody," said Levandowski. "All I leave behind is two shirts in a laundry in Brooklyn."

Levandowski was the first to die. Hollow-eyed and frightfully emaciated, the man hardly had strength to walk from his cell down the corridor and into the death chamber.

"But his weakness was caused by tuberculosis and not by fright," Both he and Jankowsky kept their nerve as few men have kept it in

HOUSEHOLD NECESSITY

Sing Sing's death chamber.

"I'm going over the top!" he said, as he walked down the corridor.

Actual happiness shone from the man's eyes as he passed through the little door and stood for a moment upon the threshold. He seemed to grow stronger as he saw the chair, and he crossed the room quickly and seated himself, helping the guards adjust the straps and electrodes.

"Gentlemen," he said, turning to the row of silent witnesses, "it is a pleasure to die!"

He was dead at 11.22 o'clock.

Five minutes later Jankowski slowly down the corridor. Like the other man he was eager to reach the chair and have an end to his career. He gained strength on the night of the death chair and fairly ran through the door and seated himself. He glanced towards the curtain behind which stood the executioner with his hand upon the switch.

"A good job!" said the doomed man. He flung both hands in the air.

"My God!" he cried, "it's fine I'm glad to die!"

Why is it—that you will invariably find Player's in the cigarette cases of your friends? Time and time again you will have noticed it!

Here is the answer! It is because smokers have found—both by their own experience and that of their friends and business associates—that Player's are the finest Virginian cigarette that money can buy.

No matter what price you are willing to pay, you cannot buy a better cigarette. Player's are the smoothest, mildest and most satisfying smoke in the world.

That is why men prefer PLAYER'S.
