Alleged Island Woman Arrested In Murder Case

BOSTON, Feb. 1.—A woman, alleged friend of a former convict, today was arrested charged with being an accessory in the murder of Charles "King" Solomon, notorious underworld character, in a South End night club last week.

The woman arrested today was Mrs. Janet Lacey, 34, a domestic employed by a Newton physician. Police alleged that she is a friend of James Burke, a former convict, and that an automobile in which Solomon's slayers escaped was registered in her name.

Police further alleged today that Burke was one of the four men who attacked the slain gangster and that John O'Donnell, 20-year-old Boston youth, was the driver of the car in which the slayers made their escape.

Meanwhile, police revealed that six men, probably those sought in connection with the slaying, had been stopped by a police officer and questioned, 20 minutes after the slaying, as they drove their car on a one-way street.

Patrolmen Henry B. Carmichael and Francis Keane stopped the sedan containing six men and remonstrated with the driver for travelling in the wrong direction on the one-way street.

The driver, they said, produced a license in the name of John C. O'Donnell and the car registered in the name of Mrs. Lacey. The policeman, convinced of the genuineness of O'Donnell's papers, permitted the men to proceed and it was not until later they knew a murder had been committed.

Police said that Mrs. Lacey admitted allowing Burke to register an automobile in her name. The men sought are Frank Karas, a former suspect in a bank robbery; Burke, James P. "Skeets" Coyne, an ex-convict; James Scully, a former pugilist, and two other men for whom "John Doe" warrants have been issued.

Police said that Mrs. Lacey gave her home address as Mount Stewart, Prince Edward Island.

Dr. Theophilus Leigh (grandfather of Jane Austen) is credited with having been a university wit, whatever that may mean, and an example of this academic humor is cited by Austin Dobson. Some one told Dr. Leigh that So-and-so had been "egged into matrimony."

The little people in the audience enjoyed every minute and listened with rapt attention to the story told by Mr. Jackson in a very delightful manner. Mrs. Jackson presided and opened the program with the regular service of the Junior Auxiliary. Ven. Archdeacon C. de Wolfe White, D. —DEATH OF MRS. S. M. HICKS—There passed away at her home in Summerside on Friday night Mrs. Silas M. Hicks at 78 years and six months. Mrs. Hicks was one of Summerside's most highly esteemed citizens. In her death the Presbyterian Church has lost a valuable member as she had devoted all her life to the church and Sunday School. Mrs. Hicks was born in Bedeque, and before her marriage was Elizabeth E. Cole, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Cole. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks had been married for 54 years and were a very devoted couple. Their only child, Annie, (Mrs. William Wall) died in 1918. Since her death Mrs. Hicks has devoted her life to the care of her husband and home. She was very charitable and many needy people will remember her for her kindness and help. She was particularly fond of little children and many warm garments knitted by her found their way into homes where they were needed and appreciated. Mrs. Hicks was very fond of flowers and her garden was a picture at all times and her chief delight. Her record in the church was one of which the congregation might well be proud. Since the Sunday School was built she had taught there and many of her former scholars will remember her with kindly thought. She was responsible for the organization of the Young Women's Christian Endeavor Society. She was also a chartered member of the Women's Missionary Society. Besides her bereaved husband there are left to mourn two brothers, Douglas and James Cole in California, to whom much sympathy is extended. The funeral takes place this afternoon (Saturday) at two o'clock from the home to the Presbyterian Church.—S

Former Island Pastor Deals With Subject Of Biblical Prophecy

The following address, one of a series on divine prophecy, was delivered before the Young People's Society, Dunvegan, Ontario by Rev. D. M. Lamont former pastor of the Peoples Church (Church of Scotland) in this city. The report is from the Gleanery News, Alexandria, Ont.:

At our last meeting, we took into account some outstanding instances of ancient prophecies being fulfilled today before the eyes of all men. This should raise hopes that we might be able, from the same prophetic searchlights, to light up the future in its main movements. But the student who is humble and sincere enough to consult former divines, who have in the past labored in this field, will meet discouragement. The diversity of forecasts is disappointing. Of course it is human to differ. If it were possible we would have differing versions of the multiplication tables. Yet the fact that theologians differ on all questions does not prevent Christians from arriving at precious beliefs and holding them firmly. The same independence should apply on the field of prophecy.

In order to clarify some of the main questions involved I have selected out of many systems two opposite vistas of the future supported by two opposite schools. First consider the more pleasing and more popular view. Interpreters of this school claim to find in Scripture that the world is very soon to enter on God's promised era of universal peace and Gospel triumph. This optimistic school find their view of prophecy confirmed by science and present international tendencies.

FIRST, the Gospel is nearing the point of leaving the whole world and transforming the international mind to a disgust for war and a longing for peace.

SECONDLY, military science is inventing such infernal machines for annihilating human life, that very soon nations will hesitate to let them loose on one another. For example should another outbreak of war send forth air fleets freighted with poisonous explosives, and begin to wipe out whole cities, the few who might escape from the debris and the dead, would cry aloud for a world-wide peace.

THIRDLY, the over production of our human race which has been throughout history the chief cause of wars in the scramble for territory, is soon to be "controlled."

BUT FOURTHLY; and this is the chief hope for the near impending Millennium; the Second Coming of our Lord is drawing near. Palestine, that Holy Land, is being reconstructed and re-peopled—getting ready for the Advent! Christ will come to reign in ancient Jerusalem and will "take over" the government of the world.

But consider now on the opposite side a few unpleasant objections.

FIRST, regarding the international effect of the Gospel of peace, just hear the words of a heathen Hindu, at an open-air meeting in Glasgow, Scotland. It was in the terrible year 1917. When the evangelist in charge invited questions this Hindu student stood up and asked: "How is it that it is not we heathen but you christian nations that are carrying on this cruellest war of all history?—nations who have had your boasted Gospel of peace among them for more than a thousand years?" His question impressed us all with the fact that the mere possession of the Gospel is no guarantee of peace.

SECONDLY, that war in the future will become too destructive to be tolerated. We heard all that before. An "authoritative" at the British War Office declared in 1914 that this war cannot last more than six months; for there will be no soldier left alive to fight. He forgot that science that invents destruction gets busy at once to invent protection.

Lastly as to our Lord's Return, I fully believe in the real and glorious Second Advent. But prophecy clearly predicts grave and awful events looming between us and that coming glory. Mr. Lamont expressed his hope to discuss in a further lecture the closing events of mundane history.

Aerial Photos Aid Surveyors

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—(C. P.)—"Canada has contributed her full share in the amazing advance in Science, invention, and industry—Practical Science—which has revolutionized the world's work in many lines of human endeavor," stated W. A. Fletcher, to the Association of Dominion Land Surveyors in annual convention in Ottawa today. He was outlining the progress which had been made during the past 10 years in the use of the aeroplane for surveying, mapping and other lines of engineering in Canada.

"The introduction and application of aerial photography to this science has been the fundamental factor in its advancement," Mr. Fletcher said. "Indeed the method of mapping from oblique aerial photographs, which now cover such a large part of the field of mapping was first introduced and made practical by the Topographical Survey, Department of Interior.

During the last ten years this organization in co-operation with the Royal Canadian Air Force have covered many thousand square miles of country with aerial photography, which places on file in the official aerial library at Ottawa, hundreds of thousands of aerial photographs both of the oblique and vertical type," he continued.

From these photographs maps covering 221,715 square miles of country had been published and distributed to the public, and maps in process of publication cover 143,556 square miles. The maps cover areas of country in all parts of Canada from the Atlantic province of Nova Scotia to the Pacific Province of British Columbia and north to the Arctic ocean.

It was not only in the field of mapping that the application of aerial photography had advanced, declared Mr. Fletcher, but into all branches of engineering science. These photographs revealed to a large extent the surface geological features, and the Geologists, was finding them increasingly valuable in assisting him in his geological investigation in Canada's vast mineralized areas.

"In the field of Canada's water power and forest resources aerial photography is now recognized as a very important and economic means of recording necessary data which may be conveniently and efficiently studied in the office. In the field of transport the aeroplane is recognized as an important and efficient factor, and is used as a means of transportation for men and supplies to the field of operation in a country which has been classed as almost inaccessible, or where otherwise the cost of transport would be prohibitive," he concluded.
