GIRL GUIDE NEWS

2nd CHARLOTTETOWN GUIDES AND BROWNIES

A joint meeting of the Company and Pack was held last Friday evening in St. Paul's Parish Hall with over fifty Guides and Brownies present. Each Brownie was presented with a tie by the Guides who showed the Brownies how to tie them on with the reef knot. For the Brownie investiture ceremony the Company formed the horseshoe and the colours were paraded. The Brownies then made their Fairy Ring inside the horseshoe with the eight "Little Lost Fairies" in a pow-wow circle in the center. One at a time these little recruits made their promises, received their pins and became Brownies.

The Brownie song was then sung as the Pack danced around in a ring. The eight enrolled Brownies, as their special privilege, gave the Grand Salute, after which the Fairy Ring disappeared and the Guide Company was dismissed from horseshoe formation.

At her investiture a Brownie makes two promises: 1. To do her duty to God and the King. 2. To help other people every day, especially those at home. Their motto is "Lend a Hand."

CHILD BRIDE NOW WANTS DIVORCE

PARIS, March 6.—The youngest bride in France, married last October at the age of 12 1/2, is divorcing her now 16-year-old husband for "incompatibility of temperament."

A special dispensation of the President of the Republic had to be granted before the child, Adrienne Delamarre, now a mother—she was allowed to marry her sweetheart, Henri Pinteau. The wedding in the little Picardy village of Castillo, was attended by the whole countryside.

A salvo of guns greeted the bride, and the village cafe was turned into a banquet hall to accommodate the guests.

After a few weeks, however, the happiness of the young couple became clouded and it was whispered that the two mother-in-law were creating trouble in the new household.

Today little Adrienne is in her mother's cottage deserted by her husband.

The boy has returned to his father's house, although M. Pinteau has published a notice that he will no longer be responsible for his son's debts.

ANSACS WILL IMMORTALIZE "MAN WITH THE DONKEY"

"The Man with the Donkey" is to be immortalized in Australian marble as typifying the spirit of the Anzacs, those great soldiers who won fame in the Gallipoli campaign, according to a Canadian National Steamships captain who recently returned with a cargo of Australian and New Zealand produce. The "Man with the Donkey" was a private soldier known as "Murphy" but his real name was Stimpson. One day he found a donkey which had strayed from the Turkish lines and conceived the idea of using it to bring in the wounded. Told by his officer to go ahead, he worked quietly day and night for three weeks, dodging bullets and shrapnel, rescuing the wounded from a zone of intense danger. He seemed to have a charmed life, but one day his donkey came back alone. Later the Australians wanted to present the donkey to the King, but search showed it had been left behind at the evacuation of Gallipoli. The Red Cross in Australia is collecting funds to build a monument to a simple hero, and his tough old donkey will be a feature of the design.

OVER THE HILLS OF OLD QUEBEC

By a country road that went winding away, Away from an emerald lake, Through shadows and sunlight, Through woods that were gay Where chorused the birds in the brake; That old fashioned village back over the hills How plainly I see it today, With pastoral rills and shrines to the Saints by the way. Through wide open doors on the white washed floors, That whiter yet gleamed in the sun, We saw the wee things as they crawled on all fours While grandmothers gossiped and spun. Then spreading away from the one village street Moved slowly the waves o'er the grain To merge where the trees in their shaded retreat Would welcome their oncoming train. How lazily droning the bees drowsy Came floating along on the air Till nature's perfection of fullness alone Would dissipate every care. How solemnly toning the evening bell Came clearly and gently o'er all, Till sweet benediction were casting a spell To Venerate Gable and Wall.

Beecham's PILLS The World Famous Remedy for LIVER & STOMACH TROUBLES

HEALTH

Grandparents BE WARNED! Because tuberculosis takes the greater part of its toll of human life during the early adult years, we are apt to overlook the fact that there is no period of life which is free from this disease. In one year, in Canada, over 750 deaths from tuberculosis occurred among those over sixty years of age, of which number just under 300 were more than seventy years old. It is generally known that tuberculosis is, in most cases, a chronic disease. What may be so well known is that the older the patient, the more likely is it that the disease will be of a chronic type, causing little or no distress, and showing none of the obvious signs which we associate with tuberculosis in younger people. As a rule, there is some cough and expectoration. These older people usually believe that they have bronchitis or asthma, or that they are suffering from a winter cough. They may be thin, but they have likely been thin for years. In any case, some loss of weight is not unusual with advancing years, and such an explanation is accepted. Yet—and this is the important consideration because of its practical significance—the germs of tuberculosis are in the sputum of these individuals. Grandparents are naturally attracted to their grandchildren, and they delight in giving vent to their affection by kissing the youngsters and playing with them. The fond grandparent, with the germs of tuberculosis in his or her sputum, will, under such circumstances, pass them on to the child. We are not saying this with any idea of frightening older people into keeping away from children. The purpose is to tell those who are not only willing but anxious to do everything for their grand children and other children that if there is any suggestion of a chronic cough, no matter how long it has persisted or what name has been given to it, it should be looked into because it may be tuberculosis. Of course, while most chronic coughs are not tuberculous, we have to face the fact that some are and the only way to solve the problem is through a proper medical examination which will reveal the true situation. If tuberculosis is present, then the proper steps must be taken to prevent the spread of infection to the child.

CUPLE DEVISE BRAND NEW MARRIAGE RITES

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Mar. 4.—Brides have been known to die the word "obey" from their marriage vows but Mrs. Rex E. Burton, University of Michigan co-ed, went a step further and devised a brand new ceremony. Mrs. Burton and her husband, who also is a student at the University, will return to their class here Wednesday. The Burtons explained that their wedding ceremony embodied their own idea of what modern wedlock should be. The phrases "to obey" and "I do, death do us part" were among those eliminated from the conventional service. Rev. Charles D. Allen of Detroit officiated, reading the regular Methodist marriage service, which was supplemented by the vows selected by the bride. The service opened with a short outline of the duties and responsibilities of marriage, read by Mr. Allen, which included, among other things, the assertion that "marriage is no real union established by a vow. 'Marriage,' the service continued, "is a relationship between two personalities functioning together in progressive integration. 'It is merely that Rex and I do not believe we should take any vows we might not be able to fulfill permanently," Mrs. Burton explained.
