Ability To See Comfortably

The object of a modern eye service is to enable patients to see comfortably. That means seeing without strain on the eyes. And also the avoidance of many bodily results of eye strain. That thought deserves the consideration of all who are not certain of the condition of their eyes.

GREAT BENEFICATOR OF HUMAN RACE

Writing of some benefactors of the human race, in "Health Magazine," W. R. Riddell says: "In the Royal House of England the eldest son of James II died of smallpox; his youngest daughter, afterwards Queen Anne, recovering from it infected her infant brother and he died of it; his eldest daughter, Queen Mary, died of it, as did his sister, Mary Princess of Orange—and all without comment at the time. The only reference to any of these deaths as unusual that I can find in contemporary writings is that of the celebrated French doctor Guy Patin, who suspects that the princess had some other affection.

While the pockmarked person was seen everywhere till the end of the 18th century, the writer declares that in his life of 80 years he has seen only one. "Why the change, Edward Jenner, born 1749, receiving his M.D. from St. Andrews in 1792, practicing at Berkeley, noticed that the Gloucestershire milkmaids who were infected with cow-pox never had smallpox. He tried experiments which were successful, and in the last decade of the 18th century, published his theory of vaccination. With no little opposition from the regular faculty, the practice made its way and now is almost universal."

He had a play produced by an amateur company the other night, I believe. Who was the hero of it, do you know?" "I was one; I sat through it."

Buchan's Views As British M. P. In High Regard

(By Thomas T. Champlon, Canadian Press Staff Writer) LONDON, Nov. 3.—Of middle height, with keen intellectual face and the high cheek bones that so often indicate Scottish origin, John Buchan—now Lord Tweedsmuir—carries himself with quiet dignity and warms his speech with humor. His departure from the Commons, where he represented the Scottish Universities, was typical. His appointment as Governor-General of Canada was signed by the King at 3 p.m. March 27. The House was in session. One minute before the hour Buchan rose, bowed to the speaker, walked across the floor of the chamber and crossed the bar of the house for the last time, shaking hands with a few friends in the lobby. In this unostentatious way he severed his eight years membership in the Mother of Parliaments. His career in the House was never remarkable for any great oratorical efforts in the chamber itself. He attended conscientiously, and was always on hand when university or general academic interests were being discussed. His influence, however, lay in putting his views before his fellow members in the lobbies or the smoke room. He enjoyed the direct friendship of such leading figures as Ramsay MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin and L. C. S. Amery.

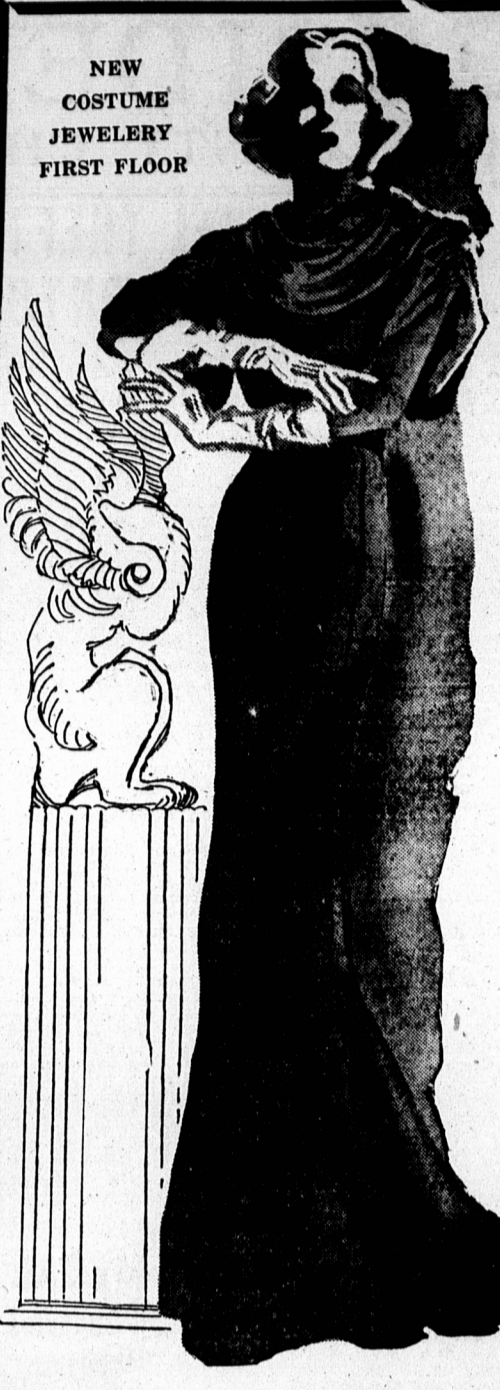

Like Beaverbrook and Bonar Law, two New Brunswick boys who rose to eminence in the mother country, Buchan is a son of the manse, born Aug. 26, 1875 at Broughton Green, Peebleshire. His father was Rev. John Buchan. From Glasgow University young John went to Oxford, took a sheaf of honors and was President of the Union in 1899. Two years later he was called to the bar, but his voice was little heard in the courts, for in the same year he became Lord Milner's private secretary. He married Susan Charlotte Grosvenor in 1907. They have three sons, and one daughter, now Mrs. Fairfax-Lucy, who with her husband lives in Scotland. The eldest son, another John, is 23 years old and in the Colonial service at Uganda. William is at Oxford, and Alastair will accompany his parents to Canada and enter McGill. "I think a year at a Canadian university will be a splendid preparation for Oxford," his father says.

In addition to the barony conferred on him another honor which has fallen to Lord Tweedsmuir in connection with his new appointment has been his selection to an honorary mastership of the Middle Temple. He is also a Freeman of Perth, his birthplace. Among his recreations Lord Tweedsmuir includes fishing, deer-stalking and mountaineering. His intimates know the acetic-looking Scot as one who can regale congenial company with an inexhaustible store of anecdote—mostly legendary.

At a lunch to the Canadian schoolboy cricketers who visited England this summer he confessed belonging to "a barbarous country where cricket was hardly played," and expressed the hope the tour would bring Canada, through cricket, into a partnership of inter-empire sport. "It might also teach people here that Canada is essentially a summer country, although it is true it has a bit of winter." Speaking at a Canada Club dinner he told his story of "the Australian and the Scot." The latter was a bit boastful. "You have a good many of our people in Australia," said the Scot. "Yes," admitted the Australian. "But they're not our worst plague. It's the rabbits."

Coach Excursions Aid To Travel

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—A train of coaches almost 60 miles in length would be required to accommodate the throng of passengers carried by the Canadian National railways on their low fare weekend excursions during the first eight months of this year according to A. A. Gardiner, assistant general passenger traffic manager of the company. The numerous economy excursions operated by the Canadian National Railways have provided opportunities of visiting numerous points across Canada, stated Mr. Gardiner, including attractive places in the west as far as the Pacific coast and in the east such centres as Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Quebec City, Lower St. Lawrence areas and the Maritimes, not to mention the many inviting places and beautiful territory comparatively near at hand. Hundreds of excursions between points in Canada have been operated so far this year by the Canadian National Railways, conveying, during the first eight months a total of 301,266 passengers from station to station throughout various parts of the Dominion, of these 234,746 were carried in the central region, 41,843 in the western region, 17,287 in the Atlantic region and 654 on the Grand Trunk Western lines of the company, extending from the Ontario border to Chicago. Included in this total were 3,482 passengers carried between Montreal and Toronto, some of these continuing westward as far as Detroit and Chicago while in the opposite direction were 4,543 conveyed eastward from Detroit and Western Ontario points to Montreal, some of whom went on to Ottawa, Quebec City, and the Maritime Provinces. Figures show that people in the Maritimes travel considerably, for excursions operated from those points to Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto conveyed 4,812 passengers, most of whom choose the metropolis as their centre of attraction. Coach excursions from Montreal to the Gaspé Peninsula and the Maritimes, in addition to other tourist excursions, carried a total of 2,155 passengers. Travel between Eastern and Western Canada also has a considerable appeal, for on two occasions 1,885 passengers were carried on these bargain excursions from east to west, while two similar excursions from west to east conveyed 2,775. Canada's ever green playground on the Pacific Coast also has its appeal for people of the Prairie Provinces, there being 1,587 passengers who took advantage of one excursion to visit the Pacific Coast, while 489 excursionists travelled in the opposite direction to various points on the Prairies, those being additional to 41,483 passengers carried from point to point in the west on low fare coach excursions. Providing a very low fare and generous return limit, the coach excursions have been the means of encouraging interchange of visits

S. S. Lady Hawkins Port Saint John

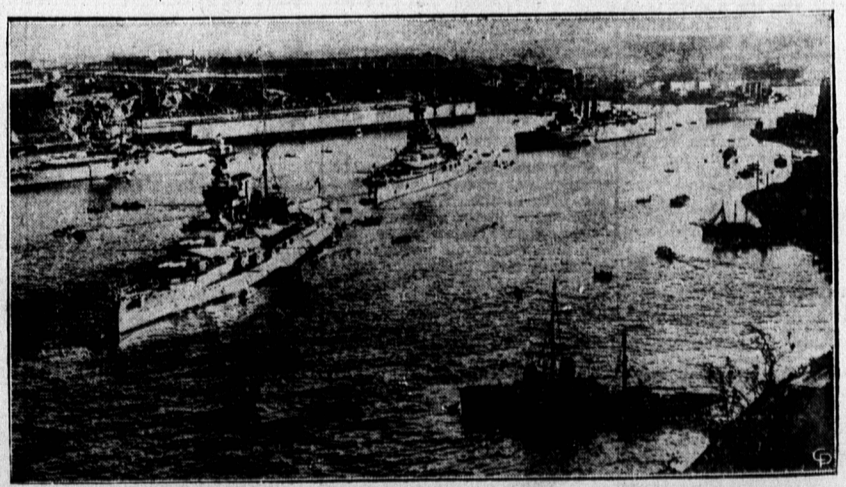

(Special to the Guardian) SAINT JOHN, Nov. 4.—Bringing passengers returning from a cruise to the sunny holiday islands of Caribbean and British Guiana, the liner Lady Hawkins, Canadian National steamships, Captain R. A. Clarke arrived at Saint John this (Monday) morning.

Besides the passengers the cargo consists of sugar, molasses, bananas, citrus fruits, cocoa beans, rum, corned beef and general. The Lady Hawkins will sail on return cruise to Bermuda, the Leeward and Windward Islands, Barbados, Trinidad (British West Indies) and British Guiana via Boston from Halifax on Thursday, November 7th next.

An absent-minded jewellery salesman was getting married. He was presenting his bride-to-be with the ring during the ceremony and he hesitated. "With ring," prompted the minister. "With this ring," nodded the salesman, "we give a written guarantee, reminding the customer that the price will be cheerfully refunded if not as represented." Use Minard's for Dandruff
