

Judging Program Provincial Exhibition

AUGUST 13th - 17th, 1946

-TIME GIVEN IS DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME-

HORSES

Tuesday, August 13th-9.00 a.m.-Classes 1 and 2
Wednesday, August 14th-9.00 a.m.-Classes 3 and 4
Thursday, August 15th-9.00 a.m.-Classes 5 and 5a

CATTLE

Tuesday, August 13th-9.00 a.m. Daylight Time - Guernseys, Ayrshires, Herefords and Angus classes.
Wednesday, August 14th-9.00 a.m. - Jerseys, Holsteins and Shorthorns.
Thursday, August 15 - 9.00 a.m. - Any unfinished classes.

SHEEP and SWINE

Tuesday, August 13th-9.00 a.m. - Swine
Wednesday, August 14th - 9.00 a.m.-Sheep.

POULTRY and EGGS

Tuesday, August 13th - 9.00 a.m. - First class judged will be the eggs.
Poultry classes as listed until completed.

Egg Supplies In Heavy Demand

In a general way, egg production is decreasing but there has been an increase at some points, reports Maj. F.M. Nash, senior Poultry Products Inspector. Pullet eggs are appearing but not in sufficient quantities to establish a price for this grade. Quality has not improved. This is deplorable when producers can supplement their returns by one to three dollars per thirty dozen case by paying greater attention to the feeding of flock and care of the product. Demand is excellent with supplies insufficient to meet requirements. P.E.I. stations are quoting for ungraded eggs, delivered:
A Large 42-6
A Medium 40-2
A Pullet & B 28-30
C 21-2
Graded shipments delivered Charlottetown:
A Large 47-8
A Medium 45-6
A Pullet & B 35
C 27
Specialized producers are receiving for cartoned pads:
A Large 56
A Medium 48
A Pullet 27
Poultry receipts continue light especially chicken. Quality remains the same. Birds arriving in an unfinished state. Prices unchanged. Some members of the P.E.I. Hatchery Exch. Shippers Ass'n. are making shipments of hatching eggs to Ontario.

Always Another Spring

By Adelaide Humphries

(Continued from Page 2)

"All right," she agreed, "but only for a few minutes." David. They could talk in the little summer house on the opposite side of the dock. Anne led the way through the willows along the bank. It was just such a night as the one when she first had been there with Giles. The moon was round and full, the music drifted from the clear night air, the water lapped against the shore. Anne wished, as she sat down on the curved bench, spreading her wide white net skirt carefully, that she had not remembered that night. Though maybe it was just as well. She must remember to think of Giles tonight, as she talked with David. "You look awfully pretty," David said. Anne was glad she was wearing a lovely new white dress, but she only said "Do I?" and smiled up at him. "That isn't what you wanted to tell me though, is it, David?" she asked. "You know it isn't," he said. He sat down by her now, abruptly, reached for her hand. "How can I tell you?" he said. "How can I make you understand, make you listen? You know what I want to say. I want to tell you how terribly sorry I am, how miserable I've been. . . .

"But there's no need of saying any of that," Anne interrupted. "Then you do forgive me?" His hold on her hands tightened, so that he almost hurt them. "You know how much I've suffered—paid? You know I'll go on suffering and paying all the rest of my life. I suppose you can see, Anne, how it is. Between Camilla and me. A ghastly mistake. A marriage that started with a dare. It's been nothing but a farce ever since. . . .

"You mustn't say that!" Anne protested. She tried to withdraw her hands. The big square-cut emerald of Gil's ring was pressing cruelly into the flesh. "It will come out all right, David, in the end." "You know it won't," he said. "I know I don't deserve your sympathy, especially from you, Anne. I know I brought it on myself, though God knows I didn't mean to. I fought it, as best I could. I knew all along, Anne, that Camilla had made up her mind—heaven only knows why—to marry me. I knew all along that you were the one I should marry, the right girl for me. . . .

"Please, David!" She could not let him talk like this. She must stop him somehow. I can't let you talk this way to me, Camilla is your wife, you must remember that." "She's not much of a wife to me," David said. "I know I shouldn't talk this way. But I had to talk to someone, and I couldn't to you, Anne. . . . I won't again if you'll say you've really forgiven me. If you'll promise to be friends. You've always been such a part of my life. I've always needed you. And now I need you more than ever before, as you can see. . . .

Yes, she could see that. It touched her more than anything he could have said to her. For Anne had to be needed. "Of course we'll be friends, David," she promised. "You mean that?" David cried. The eagerness in his eyes was a bright light. "You'll let me come to see you then—let me talk to you? You'll let me feel that you haven't gone entirely away, that I haven't lost you, altogether?"

"Of course I mean it," David said. What else could she have said? For there it was again, that old constancy of Anne's, that loyalty, that understanding. No, he had not lost her. He still was a part of her life since he still needed her. Whether she loved him or not, Anne did not stop to weigh or consider or question. She only knew that David had come back to her. That, indeed, he never really had gone away. Because David was married to Camilla—and Anne engaged to Gil—that could not destroy all that had been. It might be that nothing ever could. (To be continued)

NYLON NET FOR EVENING

NEW YORK—Nylon net floats across the scene in airy loveliness for evening. Velvets and velveteens continue their uninterrupted sway. Colors emphasize the tones of autumn foliage—browns, greens, reds, with an occasional touch of brilliant orange for excitement. Gray, too, is liked, as are beige and black consistently.

A doll's house made from 200 match boxes was shown at Darsham, England, Women's Institute, meeting.

IN YOUR PICNIC HAMPER REGARDED AS SACRED Mohammedans consider the summer time is picnic time. This praying mantis holy, and it is a summer plan to replace the tra-sacrilege to kill one of these additional sandwiches with potatoes. salad and crisp vegetables. thus freeing for shipment overseas WHITE FOR LAMPS for greater quantities of wheat. White-lined lamp shades reflect meat, eggs and cheese, those es-50 per cent more light than those sential foods for the hungry. with dark linings.

Carferry Service P. E. I. Old Home Week

Arrangements have been made by the Canadian National Railways to increase the automobile carrying capacity of the carferry "Prince Edward Island" by the use of flat cars on the rail deck during Old Home Week celebration, which this year will take place August 13-14-15-16, to take care of the increased traffic during that period.

In addition to regular scheduled trips of carferry leaving Cape Tormentine pier 10.30 AM, 3 PM and 7.30 P.M. extra trips will be made by the carferry from Borden and Cape Tormentine.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

5 DIVISIONAL SIGNALS (Reserve)

RECRUITING

Each Friday evening during August commencing 8th August -between the hours 7.30 p.m. and 9 p.m. at the Armouries - All officers so far appointed will be present on first evening.

The authorized establishment of this new unit is 21 officers and 488 other ranks.

The function of the unit is to provide all intercommunication within the 5th Division in the field by means of telephone, wireless, despatch rider and other means as required. To carry out this necessary function we require good officers, good NCO's, wireless operators, line telegraphy and telephone operators, switchboard operators, linemen, instrument mechanics, vehicle mechanics, drivers, despatch riders, storemen, cipher operators, clerks, batmen, cooks etc.

The type of men we require are returned veterans who served in R. C. Sigs. Men who hold qualifications in trades shown above. Young men of 17 years and above, these especially who have a desire to learn one or more of the trades listed above.

D. E. BELL, Lt.-Col.

O.C., 5th Divisional Signals (Reserve)

Our Plant Is Closed BUT-

IN ORDER TO GIVE OUR OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS AN OPPORTUNITY OF AVOIDING DELIVERY OF THEIR LAUNDRY AND DRY CLEANING PARCELS, OUR OFFICE WILL BE OPEN FROM 9.00 TO 12.00 EVERY MORNING OF THIS WEEK

Sterns LIMITED

GLAMOROUS HATS For AUGUST DAYS!

Come in today to the Millinery Department and see the hats that star for summer glamour! Bonnets, cartwheels, cloches, pretty panamas, crisp piques, every modern summer style.

Hats that are perfect companions for your summer cottons and all good travellers too.

Let our Millinery Department help you choose the perfect hat.....where latest styles are priced to please your budget.

MOORE & McLEOD Limited

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.

