enbourg, N. S., the skipper, as a result of wounds from coastguard fire, brought the incident into international prominence.

Off Ambrose Lightship, New York City, January 24, 1931, coastguard ships surprised the Josephine K. while it was unloading liquor on a scow. The scow, as well as the tug Dauntless, was seized, but a speed boat assisting in the work escaped.

The owners of the Josephine K. the Liverpool Shipping Company, agreed with the American authorities to forfeit the cargo and a settlement was effected by a consent decree, under which the Josephine K. was released.

This was considered by United States officials as a plea of guilty and obscured the international problems raised by the seizure and the slaying of the captain. The Canadian government let it be known at the time that the acts of the owners of the ship would not affect the investigation of the facts and legal questions involved. However, further steps have not been taken.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel. That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Dr. Leonard's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

THE EPILEPTIC CHILD

The vast majority who suffer from epilepsy experience their first seizures early in life. This is a matter of extreme importance for parents, because parents must know that there should not be any delay in securing medical attention for the condition. Treatment should begin at once. Unfortunately, the disease is usually incurable, but treatment is successful in some cases, and if it is to be most helpful, it must start before the disease has become chronic.

Some cases of epilepsy are due to brain injury, following fracture of the skull for example. Cases of this type are often helped or cured by surgical treatment. The cause in the vast majority of cases is not known. Heredity is an important factor. The disease appears in two main forms, the major and the minor.

In the minor form, there may be simply loss of consciousness for a moment or two. The child stops what he is doing, and sits or stands with his eyes fixed and staring; the face is somewhat pale. In a few moments, however, he starts again when he left off. He may fall or may make certain movements. From this mild type the disease grades out into the major form.

The major form has two outstanding symptoms, muscular spasm and unconsciousness. The attack is sudden, although many patients experience a warning sensation, or "aura," which precedes the attack. The aura is followed quickly by abrupt loss of consciousness. The patient falls if he is not already lying down. The muscles are first held contracted, the face turns blue, and then, for a minute or two, follows a twitching or jerking of the muscles. Consciousness returns, the patient may be dazed, and he frequently passes into a deep sleep.

Every epileptic should receive prompt medical care. Physical defects should be corrected, and the health of the child built up. The child must be prepared for life by firm, but kind and understanding care. The child will have to be watched and trained with regard to his habits. Overheating, excitement and exposure are to be avoided. It will be necessary to select an occupation that is within the child's mental capacity and which will, at the same time, be safe for an epileptic.

We cannot be optimistic about epilepsy, but we do know that by proper treatment and training, a great deal can be done, provided the case receives early attention. Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

COLLEGE GIRL SHINES SHOES TO PAY BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov 8—A college girl is putting a practical touch to the old rule about "where there's a will there's a way." She's shining shoes for a living in Chicago's loop and doesn't mind the job!

She's Ruth Benton, 20, but that's not her real name. She assumed the name after coming from the east, where she said she attended college.

Ruth isn't shining shoes for experience, but is doing the job to earn her board and room rent, and thus far has averaged a dollar a day.

Women, she'd a reporter, apparently are shunning Ruth's shining stand.

"One woman," she said, "came up to me and asked me a lot of questions. She said she was a psychologist and asked me if I was doing this for experience. I said I was doing it for a living. She said, 'How interesting.'"

"Apparently she was too interested to get a shine." But Ruth isn't discouraged. Her cry, "Shine 'em up; shine 'em up," continues to ring in a cheerful voice.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOHN J. CURRIE

The death occurred at Fairview, on October 7th, of Mrs. Catherine Currie, widow of the late John J. Currie, who predeceased her over a year ago. Mrs. Currie, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael King was born in St. Catharines, seventy-six years ago. Mrs. Currie was a kind and loving Mother, of a gentle and peaceful disposition and although she was in delicate health for some times, still she always took a keen interest in her home where she was dearly loved by all her family. In a home where death has come, there is no sadder or lonelier time than the one in which the angelic messenger comes to claim a Mother. Then indeed is the cup of bitterness and loneliness drained to its dregs, when a voice so loved is stilled forever.

During her illness she was visited by her pastor the Rev. Father Connolly, C.S.S.R., who performed the last rites of the Catholic Church. She leaves to mourn their loss one brother, Colonel P. King, Aberdeen, South Dakota, and seven daughters, Mrs. Geo. Wilson, New Dominion; Mrs. James Cavanagh, Fairview; Mrs. Rich. Koppol, Sask.; Mrs. August Franke, Sask.; Stella in Dorchester, Mass.; Selma and Lilian at home.

The funeral was largely attended and all that was mortal of the late Mrs. Currie was laid tenderly to rest in the South Shore Cemetery. Beautiful floral tributes, Mass Cards and letters of sympathy were received. The pall bearers were: Edward Currie, William McLean, Hugh McChee, Edward Eagen, Michael Murphy, Stanislaus Doiron.

Card Of Thanks

The family of Mrs. Catherine Currie, wish to thank those who sent Mass Cards, Letters of Sympathy and Flowers. Also those who so kindly assisted them during the loss of their dear Mother. 2542.

MR. ROBERT NELSON RAMSAY

Mr. Robert Nelson Ramsay, Con-way, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Ramsay of Freeland, Lot 11, passed away suddenly on September 22nd, age 65, having contracted pneumonia only a few days previously, leaving a widow who was Miss Abigail Ramsay of Tyne Valley and five children, viz: Mrs. Beecher Best, Freeland, Lot 11, Mrs. C. Henderson of Everett Mass.; Mrs. Roy Rogerson of Waltham, Mass.; also two brothers, Messrs A. A. Ramsay and Crawford of Conway, and two sisters, Mrs. John Craig of New York and Mrs. Irving McArthur of Pittsfield, Mass. The funeral took place from his home in Conway Wednesday, Sept. 26th to the Presbyterian Cemetery in Freeland, Lot 11, and was very largely attended. The impressive services at the home church and grave were conducted by his Minister, Rev. Mr. Robertson.

assisted by the Rev. Mr. Coleman of St. James Church, Port Hill, and Rev. Mr. Nicholson of the United Church.

At the church service Mr. G. Roy Phillips sang as a solo very feelingly Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. The pallbearers were: Messrs George Hardy, R. O. Henderson, John W. Palmer, Bernard Murphy, John Millar, Herman Bryant. The sincere sympathy of the many friends goes out to the bereaved widow and family, and can only commend them to the All Wise God who alone can comfort and sustain them in their lonely hours of sorrow. Till the day dawns and shadows flee away

New Methods Bring New Life To Telegraph

MONTREAL, Que., Nov 7—At times, possibly, the average person has been impressed with the fact that, notwithstanding the telephone has been in existence for over eight decades as a means of communication and, in theory, the ideal form, the telegraph seems to be growing in prestige from year to year. With the introduction of radio this seems only to have intensified the contrast. Notwithstanding all these later day marvels, nothing has yet been developed that will take the place of telegraph transmission for the reason that it is more reliable and accurate. Faulty pronunciation, strange words and various phases of the human element in speech are not met with in telegraphy, which is precise and accurate and forms a written record of the communication which is an essential in the business world. The principle of radio has been adopted to wire telegraph transmission. A carrier current system has been developed by Canadian National Telegraphs engineers which permits of one circuit carrying several messages at one time, thus multiplying the capacity of a wire circuit many times over. This is brought about by sending one message at a standard frequency and the others at different frequencies all without interference one with the other.
