

Valentine's Day Tuesday February 14th

Light and surprise HER with a gift of Candy or Her Favorite Perfume or Cosmetic. ADRIENNE TOILETRIES. Powder, Perfume, Lipstick, Compacts, Creams, Rouge, Bath Dusting Powder. GANONG'S Chocolates in Heart-shaped boxes 50c and $1.00. Laura Secord CANDIES 1 and 2 lb. boxes 60c and $1.20.

THE JENKINS PHARMACY THE Retail STORE Dispensing Chemists. PHONE 219 COR. ST. GEORGE & KENT STS. CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.

Eastern Guardian

This column is reserved for news of local interest but advertising of a new nature may be inserted at 4 cents a word strictly payable in advance.

SUBSCRIPTIONS to the Charlottetown Guardian may be handed to their Rept. Archie Hume

LITTLE POND CREDIT UNION - The Little Pond Credit Union Ltd. held its annual meeting at Annandale, Lot 86, P. E. I., on January 14th with Alex. A. MacDonald presiding. The Union has a membership of twenty-eight. The nominating committee consisted of Henry J. MacDonald, John Jos. MacDonald, John A. Steele, Officers for 1939: Directors - J. Raymond MacDonald, John P. MacDonald, Alfred P. D. MacDonald, John Jos. MacDonald, Joseph A. MacDonald, Credit Committee - Aeneas D. MacDonald, James D. Steele, Alex. D. MacDonald, Superintendent, Harry J. MacDonald, Charles, Edward D. MacDonald, Donald S. MacDonald. Addresses were given by Jerome O'Brien, Daniel MacLean, Peter Campbell and Peter Walker.

CARDIGAN HEAD JUNIOR RED CROSS - The regular meeting of the Junior Red Cross was held in the schoolroom on February 9th, with the president, Sadie Sullivan occupying the chair and thirteen members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Sandra Ferguson and adopted, followed by roll call which was answered by each member paying a cent. The treasurer, Margaret Lowery reported having collected ten cents and the health committee reported the members having cleaned their teeth for the past two weeks. The new committee appointed were, on the health Peter Sullivan, on the programme Sandra Ferguson, George Webster and Sadie Sullivan. To clean blackboards, Marjorie and Phyllis Shepard; to carry water, Stanley Ferguson and Head Shepard, carry coal and wood, Head Shepard and Alfred Lowery. Next roll call to be answered by a riddle for Grade X; a mountain for Grade VI, VII; favorite boy's name, Grade III, IV, V, and favorite fruit for BIRTHS FALL - At the Prince Edward Island Hospital on Feb. 9, 1939, to Mr. and Mrs. Lester F. A. city, a son. MACMILLAN - At the Prince Edward Island Hospital on Feb. 9, 1939, to Mr. and Mrs. George MacMillan, Cornwall, a son. GILLESPIE - At the Prince Edward Island Hospital on Feb. 9, 1939, to Mr. and Mrs. William Gillespie, Southport, a son. COFFIN - At the Prince Edward Island Hospital on February 7, 1939, to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Coffin, city, a son. MCKENNA - At the City Hospital Feb. 9, to Mr. and Mrs. Willard McKenna, Charlottetown, a son.

DEATHS MACLAREN - Passed away at Massey, N. B., on Jan. 30, 1939, Warren Ronald MacLaren, pneumonia. (Island papers please copy.) STEWART - At Harrington on Feb. 10, 1939, Peter Stewart, aged 84 years. Funeral from the MacLean Funeral Home today, Friday, service starting at two o'clock. Burial at 3.30. Interment MacFarlane's Cemetery, Marshfield.

FRASER - At Harrington on Feb. 10, 1939, James Fraser, aged 63 years. Funeral from the MacLean Funeral Home today, Friday, service starting at two o'clock. Burial at 3.30. Interment MacFarlane's Cemetery, Marshfield. N. D. MacLean UNDERTAKER EMBALMER Charlottetown and North Wiltshire Phone 149 of the first witness told of accompanying his brother to the Stewart house Wednesday to find out about where to cut the logs. He corroborated what his brother said concerning finding of Fraser's body and the subsequent events. Concerning the disorder in the kitchen the witness said that except for the door it was "not in more than usual disorder." He didn't examine the door but believed there were no nails in the hinges. The door was not flat on the floor, a piece of firewood was under one end so that it rocked when anyone stood on it. A chair was lying in the opening where the door apparently belonged. A pot of potatoes or turnips, cooked, was sitting on the damper of the stove, the witness said. A cover of the stove was in the centre of the floor. Stewart was lying on his back with a broken chair beside him. He looked as though he might have fallen from it. There was no marks or blood on him. (Neither was there any blood around Fraser although there was a slight mark on his face.) Fires in the house were out, the witness said. On the floor beside the table in the kitchen there was a bottle about half full of jam. A bottle of molasses and a couple of boiled potatoes were on the table. He couldn't tell what meal had been eaten last. There were dirty dishes on the table. Roy Walker, neighbor of the two deceased men told of Theodore MacDonald coming to his father's place and of himself and his father going over to the Stewart house. He could not say whether there was smoke coming from the chimney in the Stewart house on Tuesday. There might be and he would not notice it. Ira Carr, West Covehead, nephew of Stewart was the next witness. He was last at the Stewart home five weeks prior to Wednesday, he said. Stewart wanted to borrow some money at that time and asked what he should get for a cow he wished to sell. Later he sold the animal, the witness said. The farm had been a good one but had not been cropped extensively for the past few years, Mr. Stewart had two horses, a cow, two young cattle and a pig. He had no money in the savings bank so far as the witness knew. Witness believed there was a small mortgage on the farm. The witness had discovered $16.00 in a locked drawer in the house Wednesday. He pried the drawer open as he could not find the key. In addition it contained a deed and two small articles of jewellery. Fraser did what work was done on the farm, the witness said. He had resided with Stewart for about 25 years. The house was about in its usual disorder, Mr. Carr believed. He thought the door in question had been off its hinges for a long time. It was usually kept in place by a latch. The chair in the cellar hatch "seemed funny". He didn't know how a blind man could get past it to bed. It was strange why they didn't put the hatch down. Except for his eyesight Stewart was fairly active and seemed well. John MacKinnon, Union Road farmer whose wife was a niece of Fraser called on the two elderly men two weeks ago. He was in the house and both seemed comfortable with plenty food and firewood. He never knew Fraser to be sick. He believed the chair in the bedroom where Stewart was found had been broken for a long time. Corporal Ellison of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police told of investigating the tragedy. He described the condition of the house, which was similar except in more detail in some respects, to the description given by other witnesses. In a small basket in the kitchen there was a loaf of bread and a room adjoining the kitchen there was part of a bag of flour and a can of beans and one of tomatoes. The outside cellar hatch had not been disturbed, the witness said. He told of the pillow which had apparently been stuffed into the broken window in the kitchen. All witnesses who were acquainted with the two men said they had apparently been on the best of terms. They had no enemies, so far as anyone knew and no strangers had been seen in the neighborhood. So far as the witness knew the men did not drink. When the evidence of the above witnesses was taken Coroner Yeo asked the jury if they wished an autopsy made of the bodies and after deliberation the jury decided it was not necessary. "I don't know what caused their deaths and don't suppose you do," Dr. Yeo said in asking the jury if they wished the post mortem examination. "However it is for you to decide if you wish a post mortem to determine just what caused death or not," the

The Central Guardian Will Attend Bar Assn. Meeting

This column is reserved for news of local interest but advertising of a new nature may be inserted at 4 cents a word strictly payable in advance. CRASWELL for Photographs. CONFEDERATION LIFE INSURANCE. L-6789-7-21-312. PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH - Services Sunday, Feb. 12: Mount Stewart 11 a. m.; Harrington 3 p. m.; Marshfield 7:30 p. m. L-257.

DON'T MISS the Male Chorus repeat concert Monday night. The ladies court and jury trial are adding new laughable features and the paper will be there to assist the Scottish specialities. L-258.

THE CHARLOTTETOWN Male Chorus wish to give public thanks to His Honor Governor DeBlots not only for his presence at its concert last Monday night, but also for his kind letter in praise and very generous cheque enclosed. Director Dennis and all members of the Chorus greatly appreciate His Honor's interest and encouragement. L-259.

BURIAL YESTERDAY - The funeral of Mr. James Rush took place from his residence, 7 Riley's Lane, yesterday morning, at 8.45, to St. Dunstan's Basilica, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery. The Labourer's Union, of which the deceased was a charter member, preceded the hearse. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Patrick Gullen, Patrick Dinis, Joseph Purcell Sr., Daniel Gillis, J. W. Gormley and Benjamin Blinn. Services at the church and grave were conducted by Rev. Father Keeffe. L-259.

FUNERAL SERVICES - The funeral of Mr. Hector McLeod was held yesterday afternoon from his late residence, 46 Highland Avenue, at 2.30 p. m. The service was being conducted by Rev. Moorhead Legate, D. D. and Rev. Mr. Bishop. The L. O. L. service was also conducted at the house. The honorary pallbearers were: Messrs. George Snelgrove, Murdoch Ross, Roland Melkie, Robert Mutlow and John Trainor. The active pallbearers were: Messrs. H. F. Horne, John Cameron, Gordon Hughes, S. A. McLeod, Samuel Kennedy, Sr. and L. W. Goodwin. The members of the L. O. L. attended in a body. L-259.

MR. STEWART HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION - The January monthly meeting of the Mr. Stewart Home and School Association opened by singing O. Canada. Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. A letter was read from Miss Baker, welcoming the association into the ranks of the Maritime Federation. A brief outline of the life of the founder, Mr. A. C. Couric, was given by Miss Eileen Morrissey. The questions from the question box were read and answered. A letter was read charging a membership fee of ten cents. A guest speaker was suggested for the following meeting, as a speaker could not be obtained. The topic: Resolved that Chamberlain taking the case in dealing with European crises. L-259.

CATHOLIC POETRY SOCIETY - At the February meeting of the Prince Edward Island Unit of this society Professor Herbert Johnson, Ph. D. of St. Dunstan's University, gave a very interesting talk on the "Influence of the Period on Poetry." Touching lightly on the Elizabethan poets Dr. Johnson showed how the Shakespearean drama and poetry expressed the tempo of that particular age. Coming to a later period he showed how Dryden reflected the spirit of the time in his allegorical poems. The form used in these poems, which seem to modern readers so monotonous, was modelled on the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers. The speaker referred to the beauty of Dryden's Ode, "Alexander's Feast," written in honor of St. Cecilia's Day. Alexander Pope, who also expressed himself in rhymed couplets, (the style denounced by Milton as "the jingling sound of like endings") is, in his writings, the perfect reflection of the period to which he belonged. Dr. Johnson pointed out that Pope, swayed by the feeling of the time, allowed some of the early Greek and Latin writers