"Life a Misery" From Headaches

Thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (Tonic) and a mother's advice she is well again.

"Headaches nearly drove me frantic," writes Mrs. J. F. Anchinclos, Ingersoll. "The pain would be so severe that my eyes would swell shut. Life was a misery. Finally my mother saw where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had helped someone else. She bought a box and made me take them. I was so sick of doing, I had no faith, but thanks to mother's persistence and the pills I am here and well today."

PROVIDE IRON

If your blood condition is below par you probably need the iron which Dr. Williams' Pills provide. You are only as well as your blood is rich. Poor blood causes headaches.

Don't let life be "a misery" to you. Get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at any druggist's. 50 cents a box. Don't delay. Be sure to say "Dr. Williams'" so that the druggist will know exactly what you want.

WITH ALMA ARCHER

The incapacities of last season's evening dresses will cause considerable discontentment, I'm thinking, and no end of dark scowls, after you've had a look at the new Paquin silhouette with its barrel skirt shirred low at the knees. (I like the exotic Algerian red of the original too.)

Vertical lines, built-up shoulder straps, and detail nearer the waist are additional reasons for scowling at your old evening dresses, and beaded net, beaded necklace treatments on white satin, and a heavy quality of canton crepe like Mainbocher uses should completely unloose all the fetters, and send you leaping and bounding into the closet shop for new indulgences as you reluctantly weed out the last season's candidates.

YOU'LL WANT THESE:

New Cooking Utensils we will show you are leagues ahead of any you've yet seen, in improved design and qualities. They make cooking more successful, kitchen work pleasanter, and the care of the Pots, Pans and Utensils themselves, far easier. They are shaped and finished so as almost to clean themselves!

Marriage for Love or Riches? Dorothy Dix Finds Only Love Worth While

If You Marry for Love, You Have Something of Which You Never Tire—If You Marry for Money, You Will Find That its Joys Soon Pall—For Love Satisfies a Woman, But Money Never Does

A young woman asks "What should a girl marry for, love or money?" Love, because if you are willing to work you can acquire money, and then if you have married for love you will have both love and money.

Love is a gift of the gods. You cannot make that, no matter how hard you try. No effort of the will can make you thrill at the touch that is responsive to you or give flavor to kisses that are dust woman ever grew satiated with love. No woman and ashes on your lips. So, if you marry for money and lose it, you have nothing left.

If you marry for love you have something of which you never tire, something that keeps your heart alive, something that keeps your interest in life fresh and vivid and alert, something that grows more and more precious as the years go by. No ever grew weary of loving and being loved.

If you marry for money you will find that its joys soon pall upon you. You will find that one dinner is like another, one frock like another and that there is not much difference between automobiles or country houses or town houses and that you can be just as much bored in one place as another. The very knowledge that you can have everything you want will keep you from wanting anything.

Love satisfies a woman. But money never does. Notice the faces of the women who have married for love, how soft and tender and beautiful they are, then look at the faces of the women who have married for money, and see how hard and bitter and cynical they have grown.

You will find many happy women who married for love and who have never had much else. They have always had to live in poor houses and wear shabby clothes and do their own housework, but love has turned their rented rooms into palaces. It has made their hand-me-downs royal robes, and every dinner they have ever cooked for their men has been done with the sacred joy of a priestess ministering before the altar.

But you never see a woman who has married for money who is happy. Invariably she is peevish and fretful and discontented. She may live in a house that has cost a fortune and that is furnished with the belongings of kings, but it is no home, no place where her soul can rest and be at peace, because there is no love in it. She may be clothed in silks and velvets and diamonds and furs, but they cannot put warmth into her cold heart. She may have a checking account that will enable her to buy everything she wants in the world except the things she wants most of all—love, the comradeship of two hearts that really beat as one.

You see, my dear girl, marriage is a very queer business. And then some. It isn't just a trade in which one gives so much and gets so much and in which one is justified in making the best bargain one can for one's self. It is an affair in which it is literally more blessed to give than to receive, where one must give without counting the cost and in which those who put in the most get out the most.

Nor is there any way by which a woman, however astute she may be, can protect herself against the hazards of matrimony. Money won't do it. There are sacrifices of personal tastes and inclinations that have to be made alike by the millionairess and the pauper. Rich husbands are just as cantankerous and hard to get along with as poor husbands are.

The only thing that makes marriage worth while is love. It takes love, and lots of it, to sweeten the inevitable sacrifices that marriage demands of every woman.

It takes the magic of love to blind a wife to her husband's faults and see in them nothing but adorable peculiarities; to keep her believing that a mediocre man is an oracle whose every utterance is worth repeating and to see in some bay-windowed, bald-headed, middle-aged husband a sheik that she believes every flapper is trying to steal away from her. It takes the miracle of love to prevent any husband from getting on his wife's nerves and keep her out of the divorce courts.

It would even seem that heaven prospers the love marriage and puts a curse upon the mercenary marriage. Half the prosperous men and women you know will tell you that they married on a shoestring and that they scrimped and saved and worked together and lived on bread and cheese and kisses to get a start in the world.

They had love, and that glided their hardships, and they look back with joy to the battle they fought shoulder to shoulder. Nine-tenths of the women you know who marry for money have lost even that by the time they are middle-aged, and they are poor indeed, because they have nothing. They have not even the memory of love to comfort them.

So, my dear girl, don't be afraid to marry for love. Marry your poor young man and work up with him. That is the great American romance. DOROTHY DIX.

A Morning Smile

An American who was staying with a hospitable tea-planter in Assam thought he would send a cable home. It read: "All well, staying on the borders of Monogolia."

His hostess pointed out that Mongolia was hundreds of miles away. The American countered this by remarking that his people knew where Monogolia was, but most probably had never heard of Assam.

"The hostess, a loyalist, was rather hurt."

In due course they went to the telegraph office, where the cable was handed in. In a moment a dusky face appeared at the pigeon-hole, and the clerk said: "Sah... where is New York?"

"What," shouted the American, "have you never heard of the United States?"

"Oh, yes, sah," said the clerk, brightening. "Part of Canada, eh?"

For The Cook

Chocolate Pudding.

2 squares bitter chocolate. 1-2 cup granulated sugar 1-4 cup water 4 eggs

Melt the chocolate in a double boiler over the hot water and then stir in granulated sugar, water and well beaten egg yolks. Stir and cook until thick and smooth, then remove from the heat.

Cream butter and confectioner's sugar together well, then when chocolate mixture is cool, combine them and fold gradually into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a rather shallow mould lined with lady fingers—or directly into a serving dish.

NEWS FROM MOUNT STEWART AND VICINITY

A pre-nuptial shower was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Martin, on Friday evening the 12th in honor of Miss Dorothy Coffin a popular young lady of this village whose marriage to Mr. Lane Pigott, also of this place takes place shortly.

The... were many friends present from the city, Mt. Stewart, and adjacent country, the evening was pleasantly spent with dancing, singing and instrumental music. A buffet luncheon was served in the dining room. The presents were numerous, and included in this shower were several cheques. The arrangements were under the direction of Mrs. A. B. Martin whose taste and skill as an entertainer is well known.

The monthly meeting of the Mt. Stewart W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Fred MacDonald on Tuesday, June 9th, with sixteen members and one visitor present. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode and roll calling was answered with Hints on housecleaning. The minutes of the previous meeting read and adopted and the treasurer report submitted, and approved. There was no report from the School Committee, Sick Committee reported no sickness. Bills for cleaning dump, and fruit, were ordered paid. A discussion took place on the advisability of holding a public function in the near future in aid of the Sidewalks. A very interesting paper was read by Mrs. Fred MacDonald, on "How to Keep Moths out of Clothing." There was a memory contest that afforded much amusement. The prizes were won by Mrs. A. B. Martin, and donated by Mrs. Annie MacDonald, 2nd Mrs. W. McLeod. A delicious luncheon was served and the hostesses were Mrs. Artemas Cook, Mrs. A. B. Martin, and Mrs. Edwin McAssey. The meeting closed in the usual manner by singing God Save the King.

Mr. W. F. Jardine of Boston, and Mr. Stewart, is building a fine new residence on the farm which he purchased from Mr. Rattary at Head Hillsboro. We understand he also intends building a fine barn and garage. Mr. Jardine spends his winters in Florida and in future will live on his farm here in Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Jay of Fanning Brook, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coffin, of Cherry Hill spent a few days in Nova Scotia recently the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Parks.

Miss Etta MacDonald of Cherry Hill was a recent visitor to Mt. Stewart.

The Ice Cream Festival held here under the auspices of the Mt. Stewart branch of the Canadian Legion was a success despite the inclement weather.

The funeral of Mrs. Louis Handrahan took place to St. Andrews Church on Wednesday the 17th and was well attended though the day was very stormy. The deceased lady was held in high esteem by all who knew her and her passing leaves a void that will not be easily filled.

Work is progressing rapidly on the house that is being built by Mr. Ira Clark, and it will be ready for occupation before many weeks.

PENN STATE STUDENTS GET EXPERIENCED AT CAMP

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 19. (U.P.)—School continued for 213 students of Penn State College when the college term ended, as six outdoor camps were opened by the college to prepare the students with experience in their various professions.

Forestry students turned toward two camps, 38 sophomores going to the Mont Alto State Forestry School for additional training and 48 junior foresters going into camp in the Allegheny National Forest near Ludlow, McKean County.

Civil engineering students, numbering 54, established a camp at Kellyburg, Lycoming County, to obtain practical experience in topographical survey and map making.

Reserve Officer Training Corps members prepared to spend part of the summer at two army camps, 35 infantry group students at Fort Meade in Maryland and 35 of the engineering division at Fort Humphries, Virginia.

The other camp was established at New Paris, Bedford County, for geology students and oil and gas production engineering students.

JUBILEE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The May meeting of the Jubilee Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Andrew Noonan on May 6th. The meeting was opened in the usual way by repeating the Creed and singing Old Virginia. The President occupied the chair and Mrs. Keir Bassett was gladly welcomed by all as she had been absent from the meetings for some time. There were seven members present and one visitor. The minutes of last meeting were read, approved and signed. The roll call was answered by "My Mother's Wedding Day and Date." The school committee visited the school and reported a may of Europe needed, and the Principal suggested a book-case and a school-day library. The sick committee visited the sick. A letter was read concerning the buying of memba to assist in the making of jelly and jam. The next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas E. Noonan. After attending to all business matters a lunch was served and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the host and hostess for the use of their home. The meeting was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

Mrs. Bah: "My dear, that Mrs. Pickup has a mania for collecting." Mrs. Fah: "Don't I know. She stayed with me once." Mrs. Bah: "Ah, I suppose you missed something after she had gone." Mrs. Fah: "Yes, my husband."—Sunday Chronicle.

Eczema On Hands

Couldn't Put Them In Water

Mrs. Solomon Bekkop, R.R. No. 1, Newstadt, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with eczema for four years, and it was so bad I could not put my hands in water. I found Burdock Blood Bitters the only medicine that would give me any relief, and after taking four bottles the eczema had all left me. I can now do my own washing, and wish to give thanks to B.B.B. for what it has done for me."

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Paris Styles

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, June 20.—(U. P.)—Wearing a "wooden kimono" used to have an entirely different significance from what it carries today. Then you only got to wear one—now you can not only wear a wooden kimono as many times as you like with perfect safety and even with undeniable charm, but you wear, whether you realize it or not, wooden stockings, wooden underwear and wooden dresses, more times than you have any idea.

I have been closeted for hours with one of the world's greatest makers of materials in Paris, and he told me things that made my eyes grow large with wonder. Imitation silk is made largely of wood fiber, and would you believe that during 1890 there was from 120,000,000 to 125,000,000 pounds of this artificial, or imitation, silk used?

Nor are men exempt from wooden attire. They have worn many a woden tie, consciously or unconsciously, and they have mopped their brows with woden handkerchiefs, and donned woden socks, to say nothing of the numerous times they have jumped hurriedly into woden shirts and "shorts."

Rodier's sinelic is one of the most important of all artificial silks and it is enjoying a vogue in Paris this year that surpasses any previous year because Rodier has been studying thousands of different weaves and weights for it, with the result that there is scarcely an article of wearing apparel to which it cannot be adapted. It takes colors perfectly—from the palest pastels to the deepest colors of the rainbow.

Such a rotten taste—and how it sticks! The modern laxative is far better, and, of course, is easy to take. What could be simpler than to swallow one or two tiny sugar-coated pills just before you retire? Dr. Hamilton's Pills move the bowels naturally, but efficiently; they cleanse the stomach, tone up the digestive tract, and keep the system well regulated. To be free from headache, constipation, biliousness, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills frequently.
