YOUTH AFRICAN CHIEF FINED FOR CHASING HIS DAUGHTER INTO MISSION

WINDHOEK, South Africa, Sept. 24.—Nobody can tell Oler Impumbo how to run his family. That is why the government has fined him 50 head of cattle but it may have trouble collecting.

Impumbo is chief of the Ukambi tribe who number about 10,000 and live near the Angola border of the desert sands of Ovamboland.

When Impumbo wanted to give his daughter away in marriage, she took refuge in a mission station. Impumbo promptly got together 500 of his friends, armed, and went after her, which was trespassing, whereupon the fine was imposed.

Central Golf Club Show Great Success

Eighteen Island Clubs Represented At Competition Staged At Central School Fair.

(By W. R. Shaw, Livestock Superintendent, Provincial Department of Agriculture) The first attempt to centralize Calf Club Competitions on Prince Edward Island met with signal success, when Judges and Calves representing eighteen Island Clubs met at Charlottetown, during the period of the Central School Fair on September 22nd and 23rd. Many old breeders and exhibitors inured to the thrills of the larger exhibition contest became sufficiently enthusiastic to comment, that this feature was equal, if not more important from an educational standpoint, not to mention real attractiveness, than the larger shows dominated by the more mature showman.

The boys and girls acquitted themselves splendidly, bringing their animals out in wonderful fit and showing them like veterans. Never in the history of the Provincial Exhibition were there more interested spectators around the ringside. In fact, at times the ring itself was over crowded with inquisitive visitors, who wished to inspect the calves and the youthful showmen at close quarters, and give the latter a word of encouragement in their fine work.

Mr. A. E. McLaurin, Secretary of the Boys' and Girls' Club work of Canada who dropped in, for the occasion, in order to say a word to the boys and girls and see the show spent no holiday. He was asked to place the ribbons, (with the exception of the Holsteins, presided over by H. J. Kennedy) and consented to assume the duty. From 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 7:30 that evening he was constantly on the job. The calves were shown in groups of three, Short-horns being first on the slate. Fifteen calves were brought into the ring, and the first money went to the Meadowbank Club. The Champion Calf was also selected from this group, and was shown by Calvin MacDonald, with a very typical, smooth and well finished heifer. In Ayrshires eighteen were exhibited, with the Souris Club standing highest, and Orwell Cove next in line. Souris again registered with the Champion owned by Bernetta MacDonald, with a very deep ribbed, smooth calf, that elicited the admiration of the ringside. This calf along with Calvin MacDonald's gave stiff competition for the Grand Champion calf of the Show. The Holsteins were the largest group, 33 calves being in the ring at one time. The groups were evenly matched, but the Kingston Hampshire Club eventually won the red ribbon, second place going to Mt. Herbert. Stanley Colwill who stood in the first group finally won top position for the best Holstein calf, and later was awarded the Royal Bank of Canada Cup for the best calf of the Show all breeds. Incidentally it may be mentioned that this youth showed the Champion calf at the Amherst Show last year.

The top calves in many cases would have overshadowed calves at major features. This great show was a revelation and mirrors the fine work that is going on among the Boys and Girls of the Province. It is a real Boys and Girls Royal and arrangements are already under way to make the event more complete, and attractive, and more impressive next year. The effect of this work upon the major Exhibitions within the next few years, will undoubtedly be felt, while its influence upon the live stock industry generally will be very widespread in its scope and intensity.

The Judging Competitions to select a team for the Royal Show were participated in by 42 youthful aspirants. The contest was finally won by two girls representing the Mt. Herbert Ayrshire Club, namely Mary Monaghan, and Elsie Lund, with George MacMillan and Joseph Donahoe representing the Kingston Club next up. Prince Edward Island has again a girl team for the Royal. Since club work was started girls have almost continuously dominated in this Competition and have acquitted themselves creditably. Local enthusiasts are hoping these two brilliant lassies will this year take back top honors from the big show.

S' Side Citizen Passes Away

Citizens of Summerside were grieved to learn of the passing on Friday night of Mr. Joseph H. Locke, a well known business man of Summerside at his home in Argyle Shore. Mr. Locke had been out and about until quite recently and his death came as a shock to his many friends.

The deceased, who was eighty years of age, was born in Crapaud, but came as a young man to reside on the North Shore near Traveler's Rest. The place was called after him and came to be known as Locke's shore and the road leading to it was called Locke Road. He later moved to Sherbrooke. For many years Mr. Locke was engaged in the oyster export business when that industry was in its prime in Prince County.

For some years he was engaged in the grain business in Duluth, Minn., also in the Middle Western States. Mr. Locke was fond of relating his varied experiences in the Western States in those early days.

Returning to Summerside, he opened a grocery store on the corner of Central and First Streets, which he afterwards sold to the late George Warren. Later he had a similar store on the corner of Summer and Water Streets, where the Gallant building now is. In the fire of 1916 he was burnt out. This caused him to seek new premises and he opened business at the corner of Central Street and Fitzroy Street in the old Y. M. C. A. building. Here he carried on a very successful business until failing health forced him to give up and he sold out in 1930 to Mr. Percy McRae.

Mr. Locke was well liked by all classes of citizens for his integrity in business and his kindly disposition. He was exceptionally kind to the poorer classes, whom he often assisted.

He married Miss Schurman, of Sherbrooke, who predeceased him in 1928.

There are left to mourn, one son Walter, in Saskatchewan and six daughters, namely: Mrs. Gower McLean, Mrs. Wm. Ferguson and Mrs. Harry Grady, all of Vancouver, B. C. Mrs. T. Clark, of Ottawa, Sask.; Mrs. Walter Lefurgey, of Saskatoon and Mrs. D. O. Stewart, of Summerside; also four brothers and four sisters, John, of Banff; Arthur, in Erma, Alberta; George, in Brooklyn, New York; Charles, in Tibbits, Minn.; Mrs. Sarah B. Weaver, of Duluth, Minn.; Mrs. Clarence Young, of Banff; Mrs. Claude Sentman Tibbets and Mrs. Chester Cox, of Charlottetown, to all of whom much sympathy is extended.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from his late residence to the Peoples Cemetery. Rev. C. J. St. Clair Jencks officiated at the service, which was very largely attended. The pall bearers were Mayor Manson, J. F. Arnett A. S. McKay, George Hogg, James Harris and H. S. Sharp.—S.

The Board of Strategy

There's a shy brick house in a shy street in a shy neighborhood in Moncton, N.B., whose walls are papered with maps and charts, whose furnishings are locked desks and files. It is no different externally from the other houses in that residential district. Looking for the house, I passed it three times before I was at last able to find it.

This is the headquarters of the R.C.M.P. in the Maritimes. I found the Maritime Board of Strategy in session. At the head of the table was Assistant Commissioner Christian Junget, veteran of the old R.N.W.M.P.—a shrewd, placid-appearing old-timer with a twinkling eye but a firm fist. On his right sat Commander J. E. W. Oland, R.C.N., poring over naval charts, and on his left Squadron Leader F. C. Higgins, R.C.A.F., with a sheaf of coded telegrams in his fist. I sat in Higgins had the floor.

Effective Work Of The Rum Patrol

Running Liquor Into The Maritime Provinces Has Become A Hazardous Business Since The New Government Preventive Service Was Inaugurated.

The following illuminating article by Thomas Waying is from the October issue of the MacLean's Magazine:

There are thirsty souls a-plenty in the Garden of the Gulf; there's an aridity in the Maritimes such as the Bluesones never knew before.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have undertaken to keep Prince Edward Island dry, and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick only just as moist as the liquor laws allow.

Are they doing it? An old Maritimer answers the question.

"Boy, are they doing it? The Mounties have police and planes and ships co-operating, and up in Cape Breton they are making moonshine in the hills because they can't get the stuff ashore. In New Brunswick they're shipping alcohol in from the United States to mix with beer from Quebec.

"You still have the government stores?" "Yes; in these hard times. Listen. Whiskey over the side of a rum runner is $20 a case. The liquor stores charge $4.50 to $6 a bottle. We used to be able to get a keg of rum over the side for $4.50 to $6. I hate to think what the vendors would charge."

"Then the R.C.M.P. are really stopping the rum running?" "The R.C.M.P. and the depression both. We can't afford liquor store prices, and this new blockade stops our cheap liquor. There are ships standing off the coast right now and have been for days waiting to get a chance to land their stuff. They may have to cache it, jettison it, or even take it down to Rum Row off New York and take what it will bring."

I talked all this over with Major-General J. H. MacBrien, C.M.G., D.S.O., commissioner of the R.C.M.P. "Why not run down there and see our fellows at work?" he said. So I went.

But the rum is not yet ashore. Commander Oland leads the way to his office upstairs. On the big charts he points out to the commissioner the location of the rum runners; then spots the ten cruisers under his command and explains his proposed tactics. The commissioner nods, makes a quiet suggestion here and there, and the second phase of the day's work is on.

Prince Edward Island is chiefly threatened. The island is still under prohibition, and rum-running rewards are consequently great. The coast is riddled with indentations, quiet coves, hidden bays where fast motor launches may play hide and seek with the law.

The air reports show one rum runner coming in from the north, one on the west end of the island and two on the east. They play to reach the three-mile limit as darkness falls.

Even as they dance over the sunlit waves in the late afternoon, the wireless is tapping out code orders to four preventive cruisers. Their bases, too, are ever-changing, so it will do no harm to name their harbors that July afternoon, though the ships' names are fictitious.

The little steel grey cruiser Pursuit is at Shediac, a smart little craft with twin Diesel engines and a chief engineer who was chief on a famous British submarine during the war. Her captain is a smart young French-Canadian. They bend over the chart in the wheelhouse and decode the orders from Moncton.
