

CANADA'S NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Queen Mary's Brother Succeeds King George's Uncle. A Distinguished Soldier.

LONDON, May 8.—Prince Alexander of Teck, third son of the late Duke of Teck, is to succeed the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General of Canada. Official announcement of this appointment was made yesterday. Prince Alexander of Teck is 40 years old. He was married in 1904 to Her Royal Highness Princess Alice of Albany and has one son and one daughter.

OTTAWA, May 7.—The announcement that Prince Alexander of Teck will come to Ottawa to succeed H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General, was received with very great interest in the capital. There had been an impression that the term of the Duke of Connaught might be extended for another year, an impression strengthened by the genuine good-will existing between the people of Ottawa and the Royal household at Rideau hall. The new Governor-General, the Queen's brother, will it is expected, bring to the office many of the qualities which have made the tenure of the Duke of Connaught a success. He will be the youngest man ever appointed to the post of Governor-General of Canada. Rumor has, from time to time, connected his name with the position to which he is now being appointed, and his reputation is here before him, the reputation of a distinguished soldier in a family of soldiers. The Governor-Generalship of Canada will be his first administrative office. Parliament attaches significance to the fact that for the second time the Dominion is to have a Governor-General from the Royal Family and it is assumed that these precedents will be followed in regard to future appointments.

H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught leaves in October when his term expires. Following the set procedure in such matters Parliament will, at this session, pass an address of farewell and of appreciation.

LIBERAL GROWL.
(From Our Own Reporter)
OTTAWA, May 8.—The Hon. Henry R. Emmerson, former Minister of Railways and Canals in the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is dissatisfied with the announcement that Prince Alexander of Teck is to be the next Governor-General of Canada. He is opposed to the further practice of appointing members of Royalty to the office of Governor-General of Canada. The first indication was seen in the House to-day when Mr. Emmerson rose in his place and said: "I would like to ask if the Government have any official information in respect to the appointment of a Governor-General to succeed the present incumbent of the office. I see rumors in the Press and I presume the people of Canada would like to know what foundation there is for them. Still, I speak individually."

Premier Borden answered: "There has been the suggestion received by H. R. H. the Governor-General, announcing that His Majesty has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck to succeed H. R. H. as Governor-General."

The incident was then closed as far as the House of Commons was concerned, but to your correspondent Hon. Mr. Emmerson amplified his statement.

"I am not in favor of continuing the practice of having Canada governed by Royalty," he said. "I do not think that such a practice is conducive to the social and material interests of the people. The idea of a royal society in a democratic country is encouraged, and this is not good for a young nation like Canada. Personally, I have nothing to say against the name of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, who is a splendid man in every respect, but I am against the appointment of Royalty as a practice in raising social barriers and framing social distinctions that ought not to exist."

Queried as to his idea of a Governor-General, Mr. Emmerson said: "I have no objection to a business man sent from the Old Country for the purpose of acting as titular head. That is a practice which I do not condemn, but we do not want a foreigner as a Governor-General to rule over Canada. The sooner it is discontinued the better."

There is considerable comment in the corridors over the ex-Minister's criticism, as generally the appointment has been regarded with much favor.

BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

The Public Works Department has taken in hand the completion of the programme of steel bridge construction which was commenced last year and could not be completed before the winter set in. Already the building of two of the new bridges of this programme has been finished since the beginning of the year, these being a thirty-five-foot span on the Centre Line road, at a point near Pluville, in Prince County; and a similar steel bridge at Creamer's, near Crapaud. The work is already in progress in the construction of another thirty-five-foot span bridge and one with sixty-foot spans. With regard to the bridge that is being built at Cardigan, a start will soon be made towards the completion of this work. A cause for congratulation is the mild season that has up to the present prevailed this year. Emergency calls for work needed to meet the destruction caused by washouts and spring freshets have not been received by the Department to anything like the extent of, say, the last two previous years. In fact, hardly any occasion has arisen for such emergency work up to the present.

MEETING AT CORNWALL
Boys of Cornwall, Clyde River, and surrounding places, had a banquet at the Cornwall Paragon, Thursday night, with thirty-two boys attending. The Reverend and Mrs. George Orman proved most hospitable entertainers. The banquet was served by a number of the ladies of the place. Mr. Wesley Steele the Rural Boys' Secretary was present, and conducted an after supper conference, when the following boys were delegates to the Charlottetown Conference gave their names—Russell Howard, Victor Howard, Randolph Murchison, Allan McLeod, and Percy Moreside. The Cornwall Boys' Association was formed, and the following officers elected to carry out the activities among the boys this summer: President, Malcolm

BOOSTER PERIOD IS NOW ON IN THE GUARDIAN'S GREAT CASH PRIZE CONTEST
One Subscription Today is Equal to Five at Last of Contest; a Plain, Fair Proposition That Will Bear Investigation. Largest Offer of the Contest; Don't Think Some Other Time Will Be Just as Good, For it Will Not; Do it Today if You Want Success

The next few days up to May 23rd will be the "Booster Period" in the great contest. Wednesday the names who have been enrolled as contestants were announced, and for the next few days all subscriptions received—new and old—will have an added value. It means that it will pay to get to work at once, and work hard, for the impetus given candidates at this time will do much toward carrying him to victory.

Those who have not yet made up their minds fully to enter the race, but have been earnestly considering doing so, should make their decision today by sending in their name so that it will appear in the complete list. Everybody will watch for the next complete list. If they had any friends in the race they will give them support by paying a subscription during "Booster Period" because they realize that they will get more votes than at any other time during the campaign and FIVE TIMES MORE VOTES THAN DURING THE LAST OF THE CONTEST. Therefore, those who have been unable to make up their minds should hesitate no longer, if they wish to be counted among the winners on the last day of the contest.

"BOOSTER PERIOD"
"Booster Period" means that it is POSITIVELY the BEST period of the contest for readers of The Guardian to pay their subscriptions and to boost their favorite, "Booster Period" means that every yearly subscription turned in before 8 o'clock p.m., May 23 will count 46,000 extra votes over the regular schedule. This means that a subscriber who pays a yearly subscription during this period will count a total of 50,000 votes for some candidate, in the race or some person who wishes to enter. A two-year subscription will count 35,000 regular votes and 95,000 extra votes, making a total of 130,000. From this it will be seen that it is to the advantage of every candidate to insist upon their friends giving them a two-year subscription. Remember that "Booster Period" ends May 23, and that NEVER AGAIN DURING THE ENTIRE CONTEST WILL SO MANY VOTES BE GIVEN ON SUBSCRIPTIONS.

OPPORTUNITY FOR NEW ENTRIES
"Booster Period" is a fine opportunity for new entries for the simple reason that very little effort has so far been made by the candidates already entered. A new candidate could start in the campaign today without a single vote and win the grand prize or at least one of the district prizes. Get busy at once! Only a little ENERGY spent now calling upon your friends. Bear in

THE EXECUTION OF FRANK HAYNES

He Met His Fate Bravely, Leaving a Full Confession of His Crime.

(Special to The Guardian)
SYDNEY, N. S., May 8.—Frank Haynes is dead. He expired the martyr of B. S. Atkinson on the scaffold at 6.41 o'clock this afternoon.

At 5.35, Deputy Sheriff Ingraham announced that all was ready and requested the witnesses to file quietly into the corridor of the upper jail. The hangman, followed by two ministers, preceded Haynes, who walked between two constables, the black cap pulled slightly over his eyes.

Haynes walked firmly and only needed assistance to guide him up the steps leading to the place of execution. Standing in the centre of the trap, the noose was placed around his neck. He asked the doctor for a morphine tablet. Rev. J. C. McConnell then said the last prayer. As he said, "For ever and ever, amen," Hangman Holmes sprung the trap and Haynes was sent into eternity.

Haynes made a full confession of the crime in the presence of Justice Kerr and Capt. Fullerton. The document was handed over to the High Sheriff and will remain in possession of the Crown. It will never be made public.

DONALDS FAILS FROM AMHERST
AMHERST, May 8.—The startling news from Sydney, announcing the arrest of John Donalds as being associated with the murder of Benjamin Atkinson, shocked the citizens of Amherst, his native town. The prisoner is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Donalds, of Amherst, and up to leaving Amherst some years ago bore an excellent reputation. He became involved in some financial difficulties in Sydney some years ago and his father had to come to his rescue, parting with his own property to make up the losses of his son.

Looking like a broken man, and with tear-dimmed eyes, James Donalds, father of the accused John, brokenly made the following statement: "I know nothing of it," he said, "but God knows, I don't know what to think. I have no excuse for John if he took part in a murder. There is no excuse for killing Ben Atkinson. I have no excuse to offer. The only thought that sustains us is that we can't come to think John could ever do murder."

THE MEXICAN SITUATION

In High Tension Yesterday, U.S. Military Preparations Proceed.

(Canadian Press)
WASHINGTON, May 8.—High tension marked the Mexican situation to-day, both the military and diplomatic side of the War Department being the chief centre of activity. While there is no authority for the statement beyond Secretary Garrison's formal reply, "No orders for additional troop movements have been sent," it became known that the sending of additional troops to Vera Cruz is under consideration and will probably be carried out. This action is not intended in any way as an aggressive measure but as a reasonable precaution to support the force already there in case of any untoward events.

(Canadian Press)
WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Navy Department to-day began an investigation into the report that two German vessels loaded with arms and ammunition for the Puerto Rican forces are bound for Puerto Mexico, south of Vera Cruz. Effort has been made through the State Department to have the German Government prevent the landing of any munitions of war in Mexico from German ships. Puerto Mexico has direct railroad communication with Mexico City.

VERA CRUZ, May 8.—Mexicans who arrived here to-day from Mexico City, say that President Huerta has no intention of abandoning his position. He is credited with the statement that he would see the capital in ashes before he left it.

(Canadian Press)
VERA CRUZ, May 8.—The funeral of the late Mr. George E. Auld, which took place yesterday afternoon, from his residence to St. James' Church, was largely attended. At the house a short private service for the family was held at which the Rev. Dr. Fullerton addressed some very impressive remarks.

The Doctor's remarks were based on Second Timothy, 1 & 10: "Jesus Christ who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light in the gospel." The preacher alluded to the greatness of man; how noble in reason, how infinite in faculty; in apprehension, how like a god!

"How poor; how rich; how abject; how august; how wonderful is man. How complicated, how wonderful is man. Helpless, immortal; insect infinite; a worm, a god."

"And yet," he continued, "man is still as subject as ever to death. The last enemy is as fatal and as irresistible. The young and the beautiful; the old and the worn; the wise and the foolish; the good and the bad—all are gathered into its insatiable maw."

"Wracked with disease and shapes abhorred Or crowned and battled by the sword Like grass beneath the scythe" still as ever the tragedy of death is with us, heart-breaking, pitiless tragedy. From the depths of desolate souls, anguished and bereaved of all they care for, rises amid the surging sea of sorrow the old question, "If a man dies shall he live again? For our only certainty we turn to the religion of Jesus Christ, where we are taught that death is only a delusion, a physical disintegration, a becoming invisible. 'There is no death; what seems so is transition.' The transition is from one grade of being to another, and the power of death is gone as an influence that can haunt and terrify and tyrannise. For Jesus Christ, the great antece of our faith, the fulfilment of our aspirations, the crown and consummation of all our hopes, has brought life and immortality to light in the Gospel."

THE PROVINCE'S LOSS.
These thoughts naturally rise to-day as we are performing these rites over the mortal remains of a brother, whose unexpected death has caused a great affliction to fall not only upon his home, but also upon our community. The value of a truly great man is measured by his value to the community in which he lived; and in this death the province has lost a tried and trusty friend. He was hard to know; yet to know him was to love him, to hold him in the highest esteem and to regard him with sincere admiration. Some have lost a counsellor and many have lost a helper and a friend. He sacrificed himself to his friends, to his work, and to his country. In friendship he was true as steel, with a keen sense of justice. He was scrupulously conscientious, a man of unaffected modesty, ever conscious of his own limitations, deeply interested in the welfare of the province. He took a great deal of pleasure and pride in his church, and it owes much to his care and attention and deep-seated interest. He was a strongman in many ways, and like all strong men, he met with opposition; but he was courageous, and through this very courage he did perhaps more than any single man to develop the commerce of our province. He was also very charitable, willingly and generously responding where he realized that his benefactions could do good. To his family we tender our deepest sympathy, and would remind them that God is not an on-looker from without upon the sufferings and sorrows of life, but a keen sharer from within. Creation is the self-sacrifice of God, and the Creative Mind knew that creation would entail suffering; but in these sufferings, he is a sharer. In all our affliction he is afflicted, and the angel of His presence is our Saviour. Sorrow has left them the centre of all the empty world, but God is with them, filling the solitude with His presence. Of the departed we may truly say: "Peace; peace; he is not dead; he doth not sleep; but awakened from the dream of life." May they early experience the truth that "Every cloud that floats above and veileth love itself is love." There are many things we can learn from the departure of our brother in the very prime of his life. We can emulate the courage with which he faced his business undertakings, when circumstances were not as favourable as they are to-day, and with which he faced death when he was informed that he was about to enter the Valley of the Shadow. We can also learn that life is not all work; that character is more than existence; and that hours of relaxation are necessary. Let us in these hours of relaxation remember the culture of the soul, that when we are near the Valley of the Shadow we may have all the strength that does come from a full realization that we have to do with the Eternal God. Then at last, over life's roaring sea and amid our darkening hours, we shall hear the Master say: "In my Father's house are many mansions, and death to us will not be leaving home, but going home to things and persons with which we have made ourselves familiar in life."

The pallbearers were: Mayor R. Starns and Messrs. W. K. Rogers, G. A. B. McDonald, W. A. Stewart, W. F. Tidmarsh and J. A. S. Bayer, all personal friends of the deceased. The interment took place in the People's Cemetery.

COMMISSION TO STUDY SALE OF FARM IMPLEMENTS
REGINA, May 7.—A Royal Commission has been appointed by the Saskatchewan Government to conduct an inquiry into the manner in which the sale of farm implements is carried on in this province. They will make such recommendations to the Government regarding legislation as may be deemed desirable in the interests of both farmers and implement companies.

The Commission is comprised of the following: Mr. Justice Newland, Mr. Justice Lamont, Hon. A. Turgeon, attorney-general, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, and J. A. Maharg, president of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company and ex-president of the

PRINCE OF WALES POSSESSES STAYING POWER.
"If the Prince of Wales had not been the hero to the throne he might have qualified as one of the finest long-distance runners and 'stayers' in the country." was a remark made recently by a fellow undergraduate of the Prince at Oxford. He was discussing the Prince's latest early morning pastime of practising polo with his brother Prince Albert, in Windsor Park, before breakfast.

"At Oxford the Prince was one of the most energetic men I have ever seen," the undergraduate continued. "He never seems tired. He spends his day in one long round of open-air exercise, and his friends—men in the pink of health and condition—often too exhausted to keep pace with him."

"I remember meeting the Prince one beautiful evening last autumn a few miles from Farborough at the camp of the Oxford University Officers' Training Corps. He was wearing flannels and smoking cigarettes as if he had been resting all the day. In the camp were dozens of exhausted undergraduates with crippled feet and aching limbs."

A MARCH OF TWENTY-TWO MILES
"The Prince has just marched twenty-two miles," a friend whispered to me. He is as fresh as a daisy now, and is going out to dinner at Farborough."

The Prince of Wales and Prince Albert recently had an early morning race on their favorite horses in Windsor Great Park, and also practised polo on the review ground between the Long Walk and Queen Anne's side. They were up about 8 o'clock and were in the Royal Mews shortly after seven.

In order not to disturb anyone the rincess rode quietly down St. Alans and through Park street into the Long Walk. Thus they had no need to awaken the lodge keeper at the Sovereign's Entrance. Before the rest of the world was awake they returned to the castle after a final sip of side as hard as their horses would go.

To his family we tender our deepest sympathy, and would remind them that God is not an on-looker from without upon the sufferings and sorrows of life, but a keen sharer from within. Creation is the self-sacrifice of God, and the Creative Mind knew that creation would entail suffering; but in these sufferings, he is a sharer. In all our affliction he is afflicted, and the angel of His presence is our Saviour. Sorrow has left them the centre of all the empty world, but God is with them, filling the solitude with His presence. Of the departed we may truly say: "Peace; peace; he is not dead; he doth not sleep; but awakened from the dream of life." May they early experience the truth that "Every cloud that floats above and veileth love itself is love." There are many things we can learn from the departure of our brother in the very prime of his life. We can emulate the courage with which he faced his business undertakings, when circumstances were not as favourable as they are to-day, and with which he faced death when he was informed that he was about to enter the Valley of the Shadow. We can also learn that life is not all work; that character is more than existence; and that hours of relaxation are necessary. Let us in these hours of relaxation remember the culture of the soul, that when we are near the Valley of the Shadow we may have all the strength that does come from a full realization that we have to do with the Eternal God. Then at last, over life's roaring sea and amid our darkening hours, we shall hear the Master say: "In my Father's house are many mansions, and death to us will not be leaving home, but going home to things and persons with which we have made ourselves familiar in life."

The pallbearers were: Mayor R. Starns and Messrs. W. K. Rogers, G. A. B. McDonald, W. A. Stewart, W. F. Tidmarsh and J. A. S. Bayer, all personal friends of the deceased. The interment took place in the People's Cemetery.

PRINCE OF WALES POSSESSES STAYING POWER.
"If the Prince of Wales had not been the hero to the throne he might have qualified as one of the finest long-distance runners and 'stayers' in the country." was a remark made recently by a fellow undergraduate of the Prince at Oxford. He was discussing the Prince's latest early morning pastime of practising polo with his brother Prince Albert, in Windsor Park, before breakfast.

"At Oxford the Prince was one of the most energetic men I have ever seen," the undergraduate continued. "He never seems tired. He spends his day in one long round of open-air exercise, and his friends—men in the pink of health and condition—often too exhausted to keep pace with him."

"I remember meeting the Prince one beautiful evening last autumn a few miles from Farborough at the camp of the Oxford University Officers' Training Corps. He was wearing flannels and smoking cigarettes as if he had been resting all the day. In the camp were dozens of exhausted undergraduates with crippled feet and aching limbs."

A MARCH OF TWENTY-TWO MILES
"The Prince has just marched twenty-two miles," a friend whispered to me. He is as fresh as a daisy now, and is going out to dinner at Farborough."

The Prince of Wales and Prince Albert recently had an early morning race on their favorite horses in Windsor Great Park,
