Ford Awarded First Big Role In New Drama

When David L. Loew and Albert Lewin selected Glenn Ford to play the leading romantic role opposite Margaret Sullavan in "So Ends Our Night," which is now on view at the Prince Edward Theatre, they weren't playing a Hollywood hunch.

The producers of this great love story, based on the Erich Maria Remarque magazine serial, "Flottsam," were convinced that Ford is the most outstanding "find" of the year.

Ford, who was borrowed from Columbia Pictures, where he is under contract, had tried unsuccessfully for several years to crash the movie studio gates. Only through all of his screen tests were extremely successful, but in true never-land fashion, nothing happened. So Ford continued acting in little theatres and on the professional stage, rounding out his experience in dramatics.

Finally, he received a ukase from filmland and in a small way was launched under the arc lights. He appeared in minor roles in six pictures, and was finally spotted by Loew and Lewin who were searching for a romantic player for "So Ends Our Night," in which Miss Sullavan shares steller honors with Frederick March and Frances Dee. This, of course, was the "break" young Ford had believed all along was bound to come.

In addition to being a young man of confidence and poise, Ford is an excellent all-around athlete, playing a reputable game of tennis and golf and winning laurels for his prowess as a swimmer and high jumper. When Ford was still very much in his salad days, he worked as a commercial photographer as a parachute jumper. He received $50.00 per jump, but had to turn back $25 on each leap for the rent of the parachute. This distasteful job about the business world and convinced him that the land of make-believe characters was the place for him.

FRANK MORGAN IN "WASHINGTON MELODRAMA" ON CAPITOL SCREEN

A tense murder mystery amid world shaking events of today in America's national capital forms the theme of "Washington Melodrama," coming to-day to the Capitol Theatre.

A millionaire, engaged in a campaign to feed the hungry of Europe, becomes enmeshed in a strange blackmail and murder plot and faces disgrace. His socialite daughter turns amateur detective, aided by her fiance, a newspaperman, to solve the grim mystery and clear her father. It is playing against the background of national affairs, happenings in a brilliant night club and a rushing newspaper office.

Ann Rutherford, famous as Andy Hardy's sweetheart in the "Hardy Family" series, plays her first romantic lead as a society girl. Frank Morgan plays a dramatic role as her father, and Fay Holden, the "Ma" Hardy of the screen, becomes a new person with elaborate gowns and coiffure to play her mother.

Dan Dailey, Jr., and Virginia Grey stage songs and dances as night club stars, and also have a prominent part in the tense mystery plot, and Kent Taylor plays the male lead as the newspaperman. S. Sylvan Simon, of "Fast and Furious," and "Two Girls on Broadway" and other hits, directed, and Edgar Selwyn produced.

As he hurried down to the building, Mr. Morris realized that he had made a personal tour of the premises to guard against the very thing that had happened, just before locking it shortly after midnight. He could not understand it, but when he opened the door and went in, he found that it was no hoax as an airman nonchalantly greeted him. He explained that he had been in the lavatory at the same time and did not discover his predicament until too late. Just why he had not called earlier was not clearly explained to Mr. Morris, who recognized the airman as the same man who had visited the building Saturday morning. He is a native of the province. After having a little talk with him, the Secretary sent him on his way.

R. C. N. V. R. RECRUITING-An extensive recruiting program has been planned by the Charlottetown Division of the R.C.N.V.R. for the week of November 3rd to 8th. Applicants for all ratings will be considered including tradesmen, artificers, mechanics, writers, victualling assistants, stewards, cooks, etc., as well as seamen and stokers. Expense. It is also an opportunity for men who have applied by letter, to be medically examined before entry on active service. Arrangements have been made for interviewing boards to be held in the Town Building, Summerside, Monday, November 3, in Alberton, Tuesday, November 4th, and Montague and Souris later in the week. The office will be open until 9 p.m. to enable parties working during the day to be interviewed and examined.

ST. JAMES CHURCH In honour of the Festival of All Saints a special service was conducted in the Kirk by the minister, the Rev. T. H. Bussell Somers, M.A., S.T.M., who preached from Psalm 17:15 "I shall be satisfied when I awake, with Thy likeness." Mr. Somers concluded: "So at this All Saints and as Armistice draws near, as our hearts go out in affection and remembrance to those dear to us who are no longer visible to our mortal sight-and we are all remembering whatever vehicle personality there may be, a remembrance, but a conscious fellowship with them born of a faith that in love and communion they are taking the journey that we are taking. That we should have them forever. What form they wear, how we shall see them when we meet again, we do not know, but whatever vehicle personality they require, God will provide, who giveth to every seed a body of its own. There is a natural body and a spiritual body. If we are shown in weakness, it is raised in power. It was sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. The music for this service consisted of Sir John Stainer's "What are These that are Arrayed in White Robes", devoutly rendered under the direction of Miss Lillian MacKinnon, Mus. Bac.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH "A Soul's Awakening" was the subject of the morning sermon by the Rev. I. Judson Levy, Basing his thoughts on the words of Saint Luke 3:2, "The word of God came unto John...in the wilderness," the speaker said the word of God comes unto men and men may hear and understand. From the beginning of the world, the Bible is the record of God speaking to his people. Wherever God speaks some soul awakes. The God of all ages has a message for men in every age. And we have the human tools in our midst to "speak" on the "word." This is not time to talk about French Canadians, English speaking Canadians, Scotch Canadians, Irish Canadians or any other kind of Canadians.

"We are just plain Canadians, fighting for our very lives, and in God's name, and in the name of liberty, let us forget our labels in the furnace of a great fight."

"Hitler knows every political squabble on this continent. He is out to add fuel to his fire. He has his tools in this country. Is this the time-the hour-to bog down our fighting forces, while we turn aside time of burden and loneliness we have felt the lift, we have known the companionship, John heard in the wilderness, alone, with listening heart. It is ours, free from distraction to give attention to God's message to us. God wants to talk to us about our plans, our sins, our need of guidance. Let us be still and hear. The gracious voice may be ignored, dismissed, forgotten or a soul may be born, a new servant may arise and say "here am I send me."

CENTRAL CHRISTIAN "Anything short of a solidly united Canada will spell for us a defeat from which we shall never recover. Divided as a fighting force-and every man, woman and child in this force-we shall be driven to opposing units. Divided we shall be attacked one by one. And being attacked one by one, we shall go down into the dust, as fell the little nations of the world before Hitler's screaming war of nerves, and the mightiest, bloodiest and most devilish war machine the world has ever known, such was one of the highlights of a searching message, last night, in the Central Christian Church, as Rev. Neil Herman, the minister, pleaded for a united Canada.

"Hitler," said the preacher, "first divides and then attacks." "Racial hatred; that is his business for Canada. Bring about a fight between the French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians. And we have the human tools in our midst to 'speak' on the 'word.' This is not time to talk about French Canadians, English speaking Canadians, Scotch Canadians, Irish Canadians or any other kind of Canadians.
