CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

Dodge City Trail Week-end Attraction At Capitol, Theatre

If you did not see this picture last night, don't miss it tonight. Dodge City Trail is something different in Western pictures. It has all the dash and go of the west with a charming romance, starring singing Donald Grayson and lovely Little Marion Weldon, also Charles Starrett. It opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre to enthusiastic crowds that applauded the red-blooded drama and went away whistling or humming the tune of songs.

The story tells of Starrett, a Tex. as ranch foreman, enroute by trail with a huge herd of cattle for the railroad point at Dodge City in the historic days when the west was opened for pioneer migration. With him, breaking in as a young puncher, is the ranch owner's son, the singing Donald Grayson, Starrett's leading lady, lovely little Marion Weldon, enters the plot—and Starrett's heart—when he rescues her from kidnapping bandits. The plot is a nature one, moving swiftly and with plenty of constant excitement to a pleasing conclusion.

Grayson, as the singing cowboy, is a personable young fellow with a grand voice. Keep an eye on that lead. Miss Weldon, in her first leading role, is charming. The rest of the cast all do first-class work.

The story is by Ned Washburn of Toronto and Sam Stept, two of America's best known writers of his. You'll like "Dodge City Trail". It breathes the spirit of the outdoors, has a story of high drama and is altogether, grand entertainment for the whole family.

In Memoriam

GEORGE FRANKLIN MCFARLANE
1884—1937

In the passing of George F. McFarlane of Fernwood on Nov. 7th a representative figure of the last generation has been removed from our midst. In a very real sense he was a spectator of one of the greatest transition periods in human affairs. In his boyhood days he warmed his toes about the old lamp in the log-cabin, and the ox-team furnished power for farm purposes. In his old age his country home was furnished with the modern kitchen-range and furnace, the district had just erected a model school building, and a tractor had in large measure supplanted the ancient ox-team on the farm. In the brief span of 53 years in his own person he shared in these changes in the ordinary equipment of the home, farm and community. So also he was a witness of the still greater marvels of the aeroplane, motor car and the radio, as well as the telephone and television. In this respect he was a typical figure, being both a witness and a participant in one of the most revolutionary epochs in human history.

Further he was representative of what was best in the passing of the coming civilization. There was something patriarchal about this stalwart yeoman of highland breed. In some respects he resembled the old-time squire, inheriting the old homestead and the family traditions, and responsible for carrying on the estate and about him a body of servants for whom he felt a paternal interest and who regarded him with a mixture of esteem and affection. But if he preserved what was finest in the old he was ever ready to adopt whatever was worthy in the new. He probably introduced more of the progressive practices in farming into the community than any other single farmer in the neighborhood, well-bred cattle, the tractor, etc. A skillful producer, a shrewd businessman, an honorable citizen, a gracious neighbor, a generous contributor to worthy causes, neither a partisan nor a bigot, the passing of such a one is felt as a great loss even though he had reached a ripe old age.

Many personal qualities endeared him to his fellows and won their high regard. It was a delight to hear him laugh. There was a gaiety and cheerfulness about it that suggested water bubbling out of a spring, or the brimming over of a fountain. It was so natural and spontaneous. Something akin to this was his love of singing, songs, hymns, psalms, any musical air in which his light-heartedness could find expression in melody. He sang at his work, as he drove along the road, in the quiet of his home. Anywhere, everywhere, this natural cheeriness let itself loose in song. He was a hard-working man with an iron constitution who wasted no energy in the worries and anxieties the ordinary prey upon our resources. This gave poise and balance to his whole life. While neighbors fumed over partisan politics, he laughed at their bigoted and bitterness. Though formerly a Presbyterian he kept on the friendliest terms with folk of all churches, and among Roman Catholics the McFarlanes down through three generations.

His wife who passed on before him only a few months was Charlotte, youngest daughter of Alexander Anderson of Fernwood. Four children were born to them, all living in the neighborhood, Harrison and Edwin, farming close by the old home, Winnie (Mrs. Fryer) L. Cairns, Lower Ferry, and George, who as a trained nurse cared tenderly and faithfully for both their parents till the end.

The pall bearers were as follows: Thomas Ranahar, George Sherry, Ephraim Leard, William McFarlane, Alexander McFarlane and Walter Leard. Mr. Percy L. Bowness was undertaker. Mrs. Clark McQuarrie had charge of the music at the funeral service which was conducted by Rev. Mr. Nicholson assisted by Rev. Mr. Barker. Burial took place in the North Bedque cemetery

Family Preferences To Go

"A great and noble gesture recently was made in England, at the Imperial Conference, toward securing the peace of the world by giving the markets of Great Britain to the United States and now we see to see this noble gesture take shape and form. These family preferences are to go and you are to compete with your great neighbor to the south with respect to every commodity on which the preference is removed."

In the Okanagan Valley, in British Columbia, Mr. Bennett said, he had been informed a $50,000,000 investment was at stake. The same applied to the Annapolis Valley fruit belt in Nova Scotia.

Turning to tariffs imposed on Canadian goods by the United States, Mr. Bennett quoted Tausig, Harvard University economist, as saying the American Government had treated Canada "as a bully would."

He had countries provided their constitutions be amended by the people themselves. "Ours makes no provision for amendments. We must go to London to have the difficulties in the workings of our constitution removed. What it's framers meant is one thing. What the courts say they meant, another."

Political Commission

Mr. King had set up the Rowell Commission on Dominion and Provincial Affairs but it was a political commission, he said. Members of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, Conservatives or any persons other than Liberals were not represented.

He had the greatest respect for Mr. Justice Rowell and would recommend his appointment as Chief Justice of Ontario—Mr. Bennett said, but as a commissioner he was not dealing in legal matters alone.

"I object to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island being represented (on the commission) by any professor from Ontario regardless of how eminent a professor he may be."

"I object to a journalist who has insulted every public man who has disagreed with him."

(Mr. Bennett apparently was referring to Prof. R. A. MacKay of Dalhousie and J. W. Dufoe, Winnipeg, but he did not mention either by name.)

In addition, he said, he had heard the three prairie provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, would submit briefs to the commission in which the tariff was made one of the major issues. He did not enlarge on the statement.

Increased Taxation

The present administration, he said, pointed to increased revenues as an indication of how it had aided the country.

"If you tax hard enough and business is good enough, you get revenues," he declared.

"Although the Liberals had promised to lighten the 'burden of taxation' when they came into power in 1935, they had done nothing, he contended. The sugar tax had not been removed, the six per cent tax now was eight per cent, income tax remained unchanged and corporation taxes increased, he said.

"There is no lessening of the burden."

CHRONIC FATIGUE IS A WARNING OF APPROACHING AGE

Chronic fatigue indicates that damage has been done to tissue and function which must be repaired, says Dr. Kellogg, in "Good Health." Nature is a good book-keeper, and slows up or suspends activity when the vital reserve and working capital gets low; hence fatigue, depression, a tired feeling, constant or after slight exertion, mental or physical, indicates the presence of conditions which are only temporarily relieved by rest.

The real trouble is that the old age process has begun. The vital reserve has been reduced until the body can no longer support the demands made upon it. The situation is the same as that of a man whose bank account has been reduced so low that his cheques are not honored. This is the beginning of old age. For permanent betterment, the old age process must be arrested. Fortunately, old age is a disease, and like other diseases, may be prevented, slowed, or even for a time arrested, by control of its cause.

Tonic and so-called stimulants afford temporary relief of symptoms only by making things worse in the end, because they do not restore energy and do not repair damage. They do nothing more than to temporarily conceal the vital impoverishment which exists, by forcing the body to expend a little more of its small reserve, and so in the end increasing the exhaustion when an increase of energy is needed. The nerve centers, storage batteries of nerve energy, get run down and need to be recharged.

Rest affords an opportunity for recharging the nerve batteries, but energy must be supplied by food whither an exceptionally large procession followed the remains to their last resting place.

Maritime Premiers Interviewed On Treaty Prospects

Premier Dysart

BUOTOUING, N. B., Nov. 19 — "Further lowering of trade barriers between Canada and the United States would be of untold benefit to us," Premier Dysart of New Brunswick said at his home here today in commenting on contemplated negotiations for a new trade agreement between the two countries.

Naturally, he added, all parts of Canada should be considered in such negotiations. Any modification opening greater markets for Maritime sea, forest and farm products would be of vital importance to the three Atlantic provinces, the Premier said. Anything tending to facilitate trade between the two countries was a step in the right direction.

Akron Tire-Workers On Sit-Down Strike

AKRON, O., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Sit-down strikers, protesting a wage schedule lay-off, halted production today at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company three Akron plants. Nearly 12,000 employees were made idle.

John House, president of Goodyear of America, said the sit-down was a "spontaneous outburst" resulting from announced company plans to lay off 1,600 employees.

The company issued a statement immediately but vice president C. C. Slusser, factory manager, said, "they can sit down from now till the Fourth of July—we will not budge from our position."

WILL CLOSE FRONTIER

ON THE FRANCO-SPANISH FRONTIER, Nov. 10.—The section of the French-Spanish frontier controlled by insurgents will be closed tomorrow by insurgent authorities in anticipation of a major drive on the Aragon front, Havas News Agency learned today.

SCRUPULOUS CLEANLINESS

With feet tucked out of sight, unless they scream aloud in discomfort, the feet are given little thought and less regular care. Any foot specialist will tell you that many of our bodily ills may be avoided with careful attention to feet that otherwise too often line the face in protest and wear out the nerves of the culprit just because neglect is usurping the place of daily foot grooming. First in the essentials of good foot grooming is cleanliness, scrupulous cleanliness, and you would be surprised at the number of women who think they are the acme of all things pertaining to perfection in bathing, but who never use special foot powders, and who neglect the first steps in foot hygiene. A warm bath, not hot, remember, specially prepared foot soaps and balms which open the pores and free secretions, degreasing and soothing, are the initial steps to perfect foot health. A brisk rubbing with a thick, rough towel is also most important. Remember half-hearted drying is a whole-hearted invitation to soft corners.

Massage creams are to be applied with soothing lotionous are to the sun-scorched face. Work the soothing cream into your feet and if you do not reap a full measure of comfort and well-being it will be very strange. A good penetrating foot cream that will not grease the stockings applied just before the dance, or that long hike, will be welcome as the oasis in a desert to the weary traveller.

FINE HAIRBRUSHES SHOULD RECEIVE CARE

Proper care of fine hairbrushes will prolong their life by years. A military pair, for instance, should never be set face to face with the bristles together. This bends the bristles out of shape, and eventually weakens them. Ammonia should never be used on good brushes. It dries up the natural oil that gives the bristles resiliency and may corrode them so they break off. Some of the most expensive brushes have backs of rare wood which are not varnished or shellacked, but polished solely by rubbing with oil. To preserve their beauty, dry the backs well after brushes have been washed and rub them with the dry palm or a soft cloth moistened with a few drops of olive oil or linseed oil. If washing water is hard, soften with borax rather than ammonia or any other harsh medium.

C. N. R. Marks Great Progress

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 18—Just a little over thirteen months ago, Mrs. P. J. Carroll passed through Winnipeg, with her husband, journeying by one of the oldest modes of transportation—dog team Today, she left Winnipeg for her home at Oosta Lake, British Columbia, in a comfortable air-conditioned sleeper of the Canadian National Railways. "I love it," said Mrs. Carroll, referring to her train journey. "Some people say they don't like train travel, I do it's so easy; so comfortable. You don't have to worry about other dogs jumping out at your team—you go along so quickly it is absolutely fascinating." On March 9, 1936, Bea and Pat Carroll left their home at Oosta Lake just eighty miles south of Burns Lake, B. C., enroute to New York. It was on October 15, 1936, that they passed through Winnipeg and took them until June 26, 1937, to reach New York. They travelled with six dogs—their lead dog, Wolf, and five others. Their conveyance was the usual sleigh, to which they had attached two wheels. At the side, were their snow shoes—thus equipped to meet all climatic conditions. From Winnipeg, they went south to Emerson and travelled through Minneapolis, Chicago, Washington and Philadelphia to New York. In every city, they were given a warm welcome and every where enroute they found the love of animals very much in evidence. Traffic policemen would hold up traffic while Wolf got his party safely through the thickest of traffic. In Chicago, little Jane Withers of Hollywood succumbed to the dogs and had her picture taken with them as did Uncle Ezra and Ed of the "Old Haystack." In Washington, the Carrolls were met by Secretary of State and Wolf was prominent in the picture taken on the steps of the capitol.

Louis Itching To See Action

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Joe Louis is just itching to pull off his ring togs, after a layoff of 10 weeks, "just to get the feel of boxing again."

The world's heavyweight champion said so yesterday, but he won't have his craving satisfied until next Monday when he will start a 10-day span of gymnasium work. Louis will not fight until next February when he expects to make a defense of his title against a challenger in New York, but he is anxious to sharpen his punching eye, after being idle since defeating Tommy Farr in their 15-round bout August 30.

The titleholder said "he believed" he sealed around 210 pounds at present, which is 10 pounds above his normal boxing weight. He added that he hadn't bothered to get on the scales for a couple of weeks and that he had been eating plenty of fried chicken in the meantime.

Dooco Order For Trenton Firm

TRENTON, N. B., Nov. 18.—Officials of the Eastern Car Company here, announced today they had received an order for 20,500 ton special ore cars and 15,400-ton coke cars from the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

(Eastern Car is a subsidiary of Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, Ltd. which in turn is controlled by Dooco.)

Work on the Dooco order would begin when the present order from the Canadian National Railways was completed. Some time next month, and would ensure employment for majority of the plant's 800 men, until late in February, the officials said.

Dr. Cook's Libel Suit Dismissed

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook's $25,000 libel suit against the Encyclopedia Britannica for saying that his claim to discovery of the North Pole had been "universally rejected" was dismissed today.

The appellate division of the New York State Supreme Court held in effect that it was not libelous to say that Dr. Cook's own story of discovering the Pole in 1906 was universally disbelieved.
