S'ide Town Council Debates Land Sale

The adjourned regular meeting of the Summerside Town Council was held last evening in the civic building. Mayor Lidstone presiding over a full council board. The chief matter to come before the meeting was that of the leasing or selling of a piece of town property on the waterfront just east of the railway crossing at the east end of the town.

Mr. Durant, Town Clerk, stated that he had received two requests, one from Jenkins Bros., carriers, and another from Palmer and Williams, Ltd., wishing to lease or buy a certain specified piece of property in the east end of the town. It was explained by Councillor Gillson that Palmer and Williams had since purchased another property in the east end. There was considerable discussion on the matter, each councillor giving his own opinion as to the advisability of leasing or selling town property.

Councillor Gillson spoke in favor of it not being sold to some user, but that the town should not turn down an opportunity of bringing industries to the town. At the same time if the company could be persuaded to choose some site privately owned it would be better.

Councillor Smallman also spoke in favor of the leasing of the property, or if it was sold he emphasized that a good price should be asked.

Councillor Morrison said it was a pity the piece of land in question was not being put to some use. He felt that there was a lot of land, property of the town such as the airport, not being used at the same time the council should consider the other properties belonging to the town which were no doubt available.

Councillor MacNeill felt the council should call a committee to see if it was not possible to get another site. He was not anxious to sell the town property but some decision should be arrived at at once.

Councillor Mollison said he felt the piece of land, as was the original intention when the property was sold, it had been put up but that was no reason why it should be sold.

Councillor Wedge did not express any opinion.

Mayor Lidstone spoke very strongly against any such procedure as leasing or selling town land. He declared it would open a way for the sale of other properties belonging to the town. He was decidedly in favor of having industries but not giving people public lands on which to build their factories. In any case he thought it called for a public meeting and public auction or tender. He was reminded by Councillor MacNeill that he sold the old market hall. He explained that permission was obtained to sell it and that it was sold to the government at a good figure.

A resolution on the matter was presented by Councillor Mollison but found no seconder. It was finally decided that a committee of Councillor Mollison, for Finance, Councillor MacNeill for Property and Councillor Smallman for Parks should approach the company and get their views on any other sites and report back to the council so that a decision could be reached on the matter as speedily as possible. ing French aviators. Enjoying a brief "busman's holiday," a good-sized draft of Royal and Canadian Navy Officers and ratings strolled the crowded decks and swapped yarns.

Six "wrens" nursing sisters from naval establishments on Canada's eastern and western coasts, chattered excitedly as they set out on their adventure. Their enjoyment of the trip was keener because they were the first female navy nurses to make the crossing.

Another "pioneer" was C.W.A.C. Major Alice Sorby of Winnipeg, the first member of Canada's army women to cross to Britain. She will be attached to army headquarters in London to prepare for the arrival of others of the female army soon to go overseas.

Members of civilian organizations included a group of Canadian fire fighters for Britain, and a contingent of 25 former school teachers and social workers, members of the Canadian Children's Service. The latter is a volunteer organization of women who will help look after British children, orphaned or driven from their homes by the war.

A hundred or more British merchant seamen sailed with the troops. Most were from ships torpedoed and sunk in the grim battle of the Atlantic, and they were on their way home to ship aboard other vessels to try it once again.

Adding to the general cosmopolitan atmosphere on the ships were six Netherlands soldiers on their way to join the Netherlands Legion in Britain. A Canadian girl of Netherlands parentage, Miss Mary Albers who will man Canada's vast British reinforcements, a draft of Royal Canadian Engineers, a large Canadian Dental Co. and a small post unit were included, as well as anti-aircraft regiments, as reinforcements for many squadrons.

Medium artillery corps troops, and were recruited from French-Canadian Mechanics and skilled workers of all kinds swelled the ranks of a large draft of ordnance corps troops workshop.
