MR. POWERS LOOKS UP PROPERTIES NEIL ADVERTISES

CHAPTER LXXX.

"Did I not think I could help you, I should hesitate to distress you as I must," Mr. Frederick resumed gravely. "But I do think I can. So I must make things plain to you. Your husband when he first decided to promote big schemes, did not, I am sure, intend to be dishonest either with himself or his clients. But the lure of big business caught him. Easy money—it is very hard to make big fortunes in natural channels, hard, and a slow proposition. He was very young. When he saw how easily people bite when they think they can make big money with little; how quickly and eagerly they swallowed any idea that promises big returns he commenced to look around for properties which he could handle to advantage in this way. Properties in which there was of course an element of risk for the client, none for him. From that it was but a step to sharply imagining he had something to sell. None of the people who put in their money ever investigated; they were satisfied to get the big interest he paid them, and thus to live on the promise of immense profits. It was a temptation. Forces succumbed to it. I had been suspicious of some of his deals for some time; but when I found he had associated himself with Connor and Tearle I was sure of it. I tried to make him get out from under that combination when I talked to him the other day. I told him all I knew and I could prove every word I said. They are two sharpers. If trouble came the brunt of it would fall on your husband. There are slick, and always manage to slide out from under. Of course, Mr. Forbes didn't believe me, thinks me an old woman for meddling, I expect. Although I tried to be as tactful as possible, cause I want to be your friend and — his." I smiled a little as I recalled that Neil had called him an "old woman" when speaking of him. "I talked to Neil last night, I volunteered. "What did he say?" "He laughed away my fears. Told me, kindly, of course, to look after the house and the baby. That he would attend to his business." "I'm sorry he wouldn't be serious with you. I had hoped great things if he were—if he would listen to you. He is so young that he will be forgiven in time if he stops short now, but if he goes on I am afraid there is nothing but trouble ahead for him."

"What can I do? I am so ignorant of business, have trusted him so implicitly—trust him now," I added. "Not to this man whom I knew cared enough for me to try to straighten out the tangle of our lives would I own that I had lost faith. "Trust him as being honest himself, even if he has been led astray by others." It was only a half declaration of faith. But I had to say something. "Yes—I know! But—pardon my bluntness—you must not let your faith in him—your—love," he hesitated over the word, "blind you to the necessity of recognizing his danger—and yours. Now to get back to Powers. He talked frankly with me. He like others recognizes Forbes' ability, his cleverness. He said many complimentary things about him. But he also said that he feared for his future. That he had become mixed up with many shady transactions, that he personally knew of cases where he, Forbes, had misrepresented matters to people to get them to invest."

"Not knowingly misrepresented. I am sure," I interrupted, my face burning. "I am afraid he did," his voice serious, but kind. "At least he took pains to see if what he promised could be done; or if even he had the properties he claimed were to turn out such a bonanza. He has sent out prospectus which pictured in glowing language the land containing oil wells, etc., they—the company—pretended to own. Upon investigation there are no such lands even—that is they do not own them, or they are worthless." "Who investigated?" I was anxious to learn all I could, yet I understood very little of all I was told. One reason my lack of business knowledge, the other the fight in my mind to believe in Neil; my refusal in face of all I was told to believe he was really dishonest.

"I have—I did it for your sake. I was afraid things were not as they should be when I was here before. Very much afraid. I took pains to look up several of the advertised properties—and didn't find them as represented." Then after a minute: "Powers too took pains to look Forbes up. I don't want to hurt you but he did it at his wife's request."

IN MEMORIAM

MRS CHARLES WORTH.

The death occurred at Milton on Tuesday evening of Mrs. Charles Worth, a bride of only three weeks. Florence Neill (her maiden name) was a young lady well and favorably known by a large circle of friends, not alone in the parish of her birth, but here in this city and elsewhere and the sad and sudden termination to a young life just entering upon life's journey with the partner of her choice, makes the event more than sad. A consistent member of the Episcopal Church, combined with a loving and tender disposition endeared her to a large circle by whom she will be missed. The funeral takes place tomorrow at 2 p.m. from her home at Milton to the People's Cemetery here in this city.

Study the Dictionary.

Inability to choose the right word often places a speaker in an embarrassing position. Many business men find it difficult to express what they want to say when they dictate their correspondence. Greater freedom and accuracy in speaking and writing can be achieved by studying a dictionary. A few minutes devoted to the study of words and their meaning each day will in a short time result in great benefit to anyone who will put that practice to a test.

An Old Recipe To Darken Hair

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.
