

P. J.'S Mid-Winter SALE

With every 25c purchase gives you a ticket on the Abegweit Club Lottery.

10 DAYS 10 DAYS

EXTRA SPECIAL Old Reliable Beaver Flour, 98 lb. bag . . . 2.35

10 Cakes Soap, laundry . . . 29c 1 lb. Sultana Raisins, bulk . . . 25c

An Extra Special 1 LB. TEA 10 LBS. SUGAR } 95c

Lanenburg Souer Kraut, 25c 1 lb. Salt Spiced Ribs, lb. . . . 6c

All Kinds of Fresh Fish and Meat at Lowest Prices.

A REPEAT of The Three-act Comedy By Popular Request "A STRANGER IN THE HOUSE"

Members Of The Underwriters' Ass'n. Addressed

In his after-dinner address at the dinner-meeting of the Life Underwriters' Friday at the Canadian National Hotel, Mr. Geo. H. Hunt, Toronto, superintendent of agencies of the Imperial Life Association, paid tribute to the newspapers of Canada for the success of "Financial Independence Week" last year.

After partaking of an excellent dinner Mr. Flynn extended hearty greetings to the guests and thanks to the members of the association for their splendid attendance.

Mr. George H. Hunt, on being called on, said he was prouder today than ever since his association with the insurance business—thirty years next month—and he was also proud when he looked back and saw how life insurance had "stood up" during the past few years.

Mr. Power reminded the government of its policy of "free ports" and said the resolution carried it would cost the Empire of Britain $840 every time the boat entered the Port of Quebec providing it made one trip to Nassau.

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Baden-Powell Welcome Campaign

On Air TONIGHT Over C.F.C.Y. at 10.55 MR. E. W. BEATTY, President of the Boy Scouts and of C.P.R.

The Boy Scouts Association wishes to increase the Boy Scouts from 65,000 to 100,000 during the next five years.

To do this Funds are necessary. Our Provincial objective is $5,000.

Campaign February 22 to March 4.

Mr. Power reminded the government of its policy of "free ports" and said the resolution carried it would cost the Empire of Britain $840 every time the boat entered the Port of Quebec providing it made one trip to Nassau.

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

QUESTIONS IN RELIGION

Rev. Dr. Moorhead Legate Says One of the Reasons For Ineffective Christianity Is Failure To Concentrate.

Preaching before a large congregation in St. James Church yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. R. Moorhead Legate discussed questions and answers in matters of religion. Taking for his text St. John XXI, 22—"What is that to thee? Follow thou Me," Dr. Legate said:

Quite a considerable amount of our Lord's time must have been taken up in answering questions. One of the things that strike you as you read the Gospel record is the endless flow of questions addressed to Him. These questions varied greatly in their character. Some of them were nothing more than malicious attempts to entangle Him in His talk.

Now, on this page of Scripture which lies open before us, we have our Lord replying in such a way to a question that was put to Him that the answer overmastered the inquirer's curiosity and fits itself into your circumstances and mine. The incident is very striking. It took place on the occasion of one of the appearances which our Lord made to His disciples after that He had risen from the dead.

Religion is not curiosity about the things we cannot know. Religion is certainly about the things we do know. Religion is trusting God about the things He has seen fit to keep us in the dark about—trusting Him so truly that we are content to hold on to as much as He has told us, and not to worry about what He has thought it better not to tell us.

But that is not all that our text teaches us. It has a yet more important lesson for us all, Jesus not only rebuked Peter for his irreverent curiosity, but He pointed out to him the one subject on which he ought to be constantly inquisitive—and that was the state of his own soul, his personal standing in the sight of God.

This reply of Jesus expresses a principle for all time; for you and me today. There are some questions that you and I have no business to ask; there are some things it is better for you and me not to know; but there is always one thing that we can never be too interested and curious about and that is ourselves.

There are many people in our churches very like Peter when he asked his question. People who are losing altogether the religious perspective and missing the main point of religion as Jesus Christ pointed it out to Peter. Where and what is heaven? Shall we recognize one another in the after life? Can we believe in eternal punishment? Why do good people suffer pain and loss as they do? Do those who die in sin get another chance? A multitude of such questions are being asked by people who im-

1900 — 1935

WHEN YOU NEED FUEL Any kind or size, please remember that we can supply you with the very best quality at the lowest price.

Sold in any quantity. A. PICKARD & CO. Phone 240

COLLECTING OF SHIPPING TOLLS IS OPPOSED

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—Protests from Liberal members today led Marine Minister Alfred Durneau to adjourn debate in the House of Commons in his proposal to collect tolls in Canadian ports for upkeep of lighthouses in the Bahamas and Leeward Islands.

Two Cents a Ton Tax The Marine Minister said 12 lighthouses in the islands have been maintained for years by the United Kingdom Government through dues collected in its own ports.

The tax would be a discrimination against Canadian ports, said Mr. Durneau. When vessels visited Canadian ports they would be taxed but when they visited United States ports, there would be no tax.

Claims Tax Discriminating The tax would be a discrimination against Canadian ports, said Mr. Durneau. When vessels visited Canadian ports they would be taxed but when they visited United States ports, there would be no tax.

William Duff (Lib. Antigonish-Cape Breton) asked "why in the name of heaven, Canada should pay for lights in the Bahamas. Did the Bahamas help pay for Canadian lights? Did Australia? This thing is ridiculous and unless Great Britain comes through with a proposition that all lights in the Empire be maintained by one central fund, it should be forgotten." C. G. Power (Lib. Quebec South) said the resolution carried it would cost the Empire of Britain $840 every time the boat entered the Port of Quebec providing it made one trip to Nassau.

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Mr. Duff jumped to his feet, said he resented the insinuation that he was talking about "And I might add there is no man in this House more ignorant on shipping than the Prime Minister and on a few other subjects as well."

Back Hurt When Car Derailed

Railroad Men Helped by Dodd's Kidney Pills In 1911 when a railway employee, I was in a car that was derailed, writes Fred Bourgeois, St. Helier, N.B. My back was hurt and it was not until three weeks later that I was able to walk, and then only with two canes. I started taking the Dodd's Kidney Pills and felt better after the first box. I purchased more Dodd's Kidney Pills and my trouble completely disappeared. At the age of sixty-five I worked in the C.N.R. freight cars and I am now 74 years of age."

Gasoline In Bandits Eyes

Hospital and doctors offices in Walpole, Mass. and surrounding towns were being searched by police last night for a bandit with a very sore pair of eyes. Three men drove into the filling station of Maynard Nicholson, on the Boston-Providence highway in Walpole. They ordered ten gallons of Gasolene. As Nicholson measured out the fuel, he was struck with a sandbag. Battling against unconsciousness, Nicholson managed to direct the stream from the filling pump hose into the face of one of his assailants. The men fled without any loot. Police said that chemicals in the gasolene would injure the eyes of the bandits who were struck and unless

Your Vision Be Certain Of

We often hear this argument—"How can I possibly need any help when I can see as well as any one?" The answer is this—How much you see has little to do with it. It is how comfortably you see that is important. Few see comfortably without some assistance. You may be one of the few, but learning the truth would be of value to you. G. F. Hutcheson OPTOMETRIST

WATFORD, Ont.—Armo Medical Company have secured a plant here and will start production in a few weeks.

Large Number Attend P.W.C. Short Course

The three weeks' Short Course conducted in the Home Economics Department of Prince of Wales College under the direction of the Women's Institute Branch successfully closed on Friday, February 15th. During the course classes were held daily in Sewing, Home Nursing, Cooking and Handicrafts with the following instructors: Miss Annie Ferguson, Miss Mona Wilson, Mrs. H. S. Stewart, Miss Louise Hazard and Miss Elizabeth MacMillan.

Much good work was accomplished and many interesting and attractive articles were made by this group of keenly interested girls who expressed their full appreciation of the service rendered by the Department of Agriculture in the promotion of this practical and educational course.

At the close of the course two very attractive Valentine boxes of food were packed for the Mt. Herbert and St. Vincent's Orphanages. As there were more applicants than could be accommodated in this course, it has been decided to hold a second course commencing on February 25th.

Following are the names of the girls who attended the course: Miss Jean Casler, Wilmet Valley, Miss Frances Coffin, Montague, Miss Emma Cooper, Southport, Miss Novella Cunningham, Montague.

Mrs. Vernon Dennis, Charlottetown R. R. Miss Mary Donahoe, Cornwall, Miss Mary Henry, Vernon, Miss Mildred Killam, Montague, Miss Pearl Mellish, Montague, Miss Lucy Pickering, St. Eleanors.

Miss Doris Rodd, North Milton, Miss Verna Rodd, Milton R. R. 2, Miss Gertrude Simpson, Belmont, Miss Margaret Smith, MacNeill's Mills.

Mrs. Ethel Stewart, Montague, Miss Pearl Stevenson, New Glasgow, Miss Gladys Thomas, Summerside R. R., Miss Marion Thompson, Dunstaffnage, Miss Eleanor Walker, Vernon.

Employer: "My boy, I started out of college on the theory that the world had an opening for me." Office Boy: "And you found it, sir?" Employer: "I did. In fact, I'm in the hole right now."

When a Jazz Band Knocks the rest out of restaurant, it puts the din in dinner

Mr. Nicholson was born in Prince Edward Island. He is the son of the late Alexander Nicholson, pointing out that "their competition was not with the life companies but with the radio dealers."

He told his listeners that the largest amounts paid out by life companies were to living policyholders, proving that life insurance was a profitable investment. In conclusion he wished the members "all the best luck in the world."

Mr. R. H. Stewart in a brief address expressed his pleasure at being present and extended a hearty they undergo immediate treatment may suffer permanent injury to their sight.

Mr. Nicholson was born in Prince Edward Island. He is the son of the late Alexander Nicholson, pointing out that "their competition was not with the life companies but with the radio dealers."

He told his listeners that the largest amounts paid out by life companies were to living policyholders, proving that life insurance was a profitable investment. In conclusion he wished the members "all the best luck in the world."

Mr. R. H. Stewart in a brief address expressed his pleasure at being present and extended a hearty they undergo immediate treatment may suffer permanent injury to their sight.

Mr. Nicholson was born in Prince Edward Island. He is the son of the late Alexander Nicholson, pointing out that "their competition was not with the life companies but with the radio dealers."

He told his listeners that the largest amounts paid out by life companies were to living policyholders, proving that life insurance was a profitable investment. In conclusion he wished the members "all the best luck in the world."

Mr. R. H. Stewart in a brief address expressed his pleasure at being present and extended a hearty they undergo immediate treatment may suffer permanent injury to their sight.

Mr. Nicholson was born in Prince Edward Island. He is the son of the late Alexander Nicholson, pointing out that "their competition was not with the life companies but with the radio dealers."

He told his listeners that the largest amounts paid out by life companies were to living policyholders, proving that life insurance was a profitable investment. In conclusion he wished the members "all the best luck in the world."

Prof. Sullivan Lectures At Souris

Literature—the expression of life in words of truth and beauty; the written record of man's spirit, of his thoughts, emotions and aspirations, the history, and the only history of the human soul—was the subject of an interesting lecture delivered by Mr. D. J. Sullivan, professor of English at St. Dunstan's College, before a large assemblage of people Wednesday evening, February 13th. Briefly tracing its development from the time of Plato to the present day, the speaker showed how literature—the humanization of the whole world—has preserved the race the ideals upon which all our civilization is founded and as a consequence is one of the most important and delightful subjects that can occupy the human mind.

The works of Shakespeare, Milton, Samuel Johnson, Dickens and Carlyle were recommended to us as masterpieces which have preserved those ideals which have been handed down from fathers to sons, while men, cities, governments and civilizations have vanished from the face of the earth. With regard to modern day writings, the speaker cautioned us to be prudent in our selection, as much that comes from the press today is written by men who have been given over wholly to materialism and are therefore incapable of literary greatness.

At the conclusion of the lecture Rev. I. R. A. MacDonald, on behalf of the Catholic Women's League, under whose auspices the lecture was held, moved a vote of thanks which was supported by Rev. Leonard MacDonald and presented to the speaker by His Worship Mayor MacPhee, presiding.

The drawing of the lottery tickets in aid of St. Mary's Church then took place. The following were the winners: 1. $5 gold piece, Arthur Young, Souris, number 841.

2. $5 gold piece, Clara Cummins, San Francisco, Calif., number 1831. 3. Wicker chair, Elmer MacPhee, Souris, number 3802.

4. China tea set, Frank Paquet, Souris, number 3723. 5. Silver Coffee Percolator, Rev. E. L. Murray, Charlottetown, number 3015.

6. Electric iron, Atrax Campbell, Little Harbour, number 2493. 7. Biscuit jar, Margaret Nolan, Chepstow, number 3317.

8. 1-2 dozen silver teaspoons, Mrs. Edwin MacDonald, Panmure Island, number 2624. 9. 2 boxes stationery, Cecelia MacDonald, Panmure Island, number 2825.

Not Curiously

Religion is not curiosity about the things we cannot know. Religion is certainly about the things we do know. Religion is trusting God about the things He has seen fit to keep us in the dark about—trusting Him so truly that we are content to hold on to as much as He has told us, and not to worry about what He has thought it better not to tell us.

Personal

But that is not all that our text teaches us. It has a yet more important lesson for us all, Jesus not only rebuked Peter for his irreverent curiosity, but He pointed out to him the one subject on which he ought to be constantly inquisitive—and that was the state of his own soul, his personal standing in the sight of God.

A Principle

This reply of Jesus expresses a principle for all time; for you and me today. There are some questions that you and I have no business to ask; there are some things it is better for you and me not to know; but there is always one thing that we can never be too interested and curious about and that is ourselves.

There are many people in our churches very like Peter when he asked his question. People who are losing altogether the religious perspective and missing the main point of religion as Jesus Christ pointed it out to Peter. Where and what is heaven? Shall we recognize one another in the after life? Can we believe in eternal punishment? Why do good people suffer pain and loss as they do? Do those who die in sin get another chance? A multitude of such questions are being asked by people who im-

Hidden Things

Life is too short and too precious to fritter away in speculations about things that must always remain hidden from us; life is too short and too precious to waste in an undue concern with the characters and actions of other people. Jesus Christ's word to Peter, "What is that to thee? Follow thou Me," is just a charge that you and I should give the whole of life—for we shall need it all—to our own present and pressing duties. If our faith in God is genuine we can leave in confidence all the hidden things in His keeping.

A Steady Course

We allow ourselves to be drawn away from our proper purpose by this unnecessary thing and that. We surrender our own better judgments to this popular whim and let the passing craze instead of steering by the steady star of wise and quiet personal conviction. If you and I would follow Jesus Christ as He wants us to follow Him it is going to take every atom of our faith and patience and determination and unselfish service in order to so follow Him. St. Paul knew better than any man has known what it takes a man to be and to do in order that he may be a Christian worthy of his Master, and the direction he has set down for us in black and white.

"This one thing I do: I press toward the mark." There are a thousand irrelevant and unimportant things dimming in your ears every day and trying to make you think they are important; but, in the Saviour's own word there is one thing that is needful, the one thing that cannot, if you have it, be taken from you. "What are these many things to thee; follow thou Me."

TORONTO—Palmer Company of Cincinnati, Ohio will open in Toronto to manufacture thermometers.

WATERFORD, Ont.—Armo Medical Company have secured a plant here and will start production in a few weeks.

WATERFORD, Ont.—Armo Medical Company have secured a plant here and will start production in a few weeks.

WATERFORD, Ont.—Armo Medical Company have secured a plant here and will start production in a few weeks.