NEW WOOD SLEIGHS—Reasonably priced at Bergmann's Montague.

DR. JOHNSTON'S Dental Office, Montague, will be closed February 9th to 16th.

Mr. Albert Griffin, Montague, has left for Halifax by plane on business.

Mr. Herb Parker, Georgetown, a former Grade XI student at Montague, has left for Trenton, Ontario. Mr. Parker has joined the Royal Canadian Air Force as an aeromechanic.

Brynton Stewart, young son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart, Montague, suffered a broken leg while sliding down an ice surface on the Post Office embankment. He was immediately removed to the Kings County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

The annual Scottish concert, sponsored by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Montague, was presented in the hall on Wednesday, February 4th, with an exceptionally large crowd in attendance. The many artists are to be most highly commended in presenting what is considered to be the best program ever seen here. From the opening chorus to the end of the very enjoyable hilarious one-act play, the audience were enthusiastic and applauded loudly and appreciatively each act, which was presented with the best performance by each one taking part. Rarely has such a varied program been so pleasing to all, and the members of the program are to be congratulated in putting on such a splendid evening's enjoyment. Rev. R.D. MacLean acted as chairman, and Mrs. A.P. Campbell was piano accompanist throughout the program. Each member received the hearty applause of an appreciative audience and each artist returned for an encore. The first number was a group of Scotch songs by the choir, under the direction of Mr. J. Elmer Dunning; "Scots Wae Hae"; "Bonnie Doone"; and "Hundred Pipers". This was followed by bagpipe selections by two well-known veterans of World War II, pipers Alan Cameron of Caledonia and Donald MacLeod of Glen Martin. This was followed by violin and guitar music played by Misses Florence and Elinor MacKinnon of Kilmuir. These two young ladies gave a splendid performance and the audience showed their appreciation by rousing applause. The girls made several appearances, and also accompanied Mr. Warren Lader in his step-dancing number. Mr. Lader also made several appearances and was encored each time in appreciation of his fine solo on the floor. Two small lassies, Pauline Nicholson, and Joanne Watterworth stole the hearts of the audience with their song and dance numbers. Their first was "Comin' thro' the Rye" followed by "Merry May the Keel Row". An elocutionist who is well known to audiences was Mrs. Cyrus Shaw, who thrilled her listeners with that touching story of "The Haggis of Private MacPhee". For her encore Mrs. Shaw chose "She's a Laddie". Mrs. William Gairch, in her own inimitable manner, very effectively rendered two vocal solos, "The Highlandman's Toast", and "Annie Laurie". The ever-popular Brooklyn trio (Messrs Willard Bruce, John Bears, and Malcolm Murray) were heard in two numbers, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton", and, as an encore, the humorous rendition of "The Bulldog on the Bank". Later on in the program Mr. Bears was heard in the lovely vocal solo "The Heather is Blooming in Scotland" followed by the hilarious "I'm Going to Marry Ann". Another very pleasing feature on the program was a hilarious schizette by six young ladies:—Joan Johnson, Helen Hamilton, Florine Higginbotham, Barbara Mahon, Faye Stewart and Shirley Stewart. Much credit is due Mrs. R.D. MacLean, and Mrs. A.P. Campbell for the training they gave the girls for this lovely dance. Following a short intermission during which home-made candy and apples were sold, a one-act comedy entitled "Good Night—Caroline" was presented under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Watterworth. The cast included Mrs. Watterworth as Caroline; Mrs. J. Elmer Dunning as her husband; Miss Annie MacEachern as the maid; and R.D. MacLean as the burglar. Each actor played his or her part exceptionally well, and the many hilarious situations made this a very enjoyable part of the program. The splendid entertainment was brought to a close with "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."—Lan.

Not Surprised At General's Suicide (By The Canadian Press) OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, chief of the Canadian General Staff, said today on learning of the suicide of Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz in Nuernberg prison that "I wouldn't have expected anything else from him." Gen. Blaskowitz, commander of the German 25th Army on the Canadian front, surrendered to the 2nd Canadian Corps at Wageningen in Holland on May 1, 1945. Gen. Foulkes disclosed that this hard-faced German commander suspected at the time of the surrender that the Canadians were going to turn him over to the Russians, whom Gen. Blaskowitz described as "barbarians." It was for atrocities of his troops on the Russian front before they were moved to the Western Front that Gen. Blaskowitz was charged with the war crimes which had taken him to Nuernberg for trial.

Canadian Artists Form New Group By GUY GAGNON MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Prisme d'Yeux—a movement grouping Canadian painters of different theories and expressions and whose formation was forecast at an early fall exhibition of youthful Mimi Parent of Montreal—was born Wednesday night.

The movement was launched quietly at a special exhibition for the press and parts of the proceedings were recorded for broadcast to France.

An official manifesto explained aims of the new group and newspaper men saw some 30 paintings representative of the diverse elements forming Prisme d'Yeux.

Alfred Pelland, Montreal painter said by followers to be responsible for new expressions in Canadian painting since his return from Paris at the outbreak of war, said the main purpose of the group, which claims no leader, was: "To awaken the people's attention to the desperate need of Canadian painters for large galleries where they could show their works."

Pelland, professor at the School of Fine Arts in Montreal, told the

Describes Visit To Village Of Iris

Last Fall I spent a few hours in the village of Iris, in the southern part of King's County, and with the thought of this visit still in mind, I must tell you about my sojourn and the many people I had the pleasure of meeting. Iris is only a few miles inland from the port of Wood Islands, and its situation on the railroad with its runs from Charlottetown to Murray Harbor. However, the majority of the families in the school district live about a mile from the station and this is where the school is located. This means that the children of the eight or ten families who live near the railroad, have quite a walk to school about the same situation applies to those who live in the west end of the section. My trip to Iris was made by car. Leaving Charlottetown early one fine Fall morning I travelled the Montague paved highway as far as Millville, then I turned right on the Wood Islands road passing through the picturesque village of Vernon Bridge.

Beautiful Drive At Orwell Cove I turned left and made my way for several miles on one of the straightest roads in the province. It is also one of the most beautiful drives on the island and especially in the Fall of the year. Just previous to reaching the railroad at Wood Islands I wheeled left again and in the space of ten or fifteen minutes I entered Iris. The roads were very good for the entire distance and I would recommend this drive to motorists who have never travelled this route.

The general store at the corner in Iris was the scene of my first call. Here I was greeted by James McBeth, the proprietor, and his able assistant Mrs. Kathryn Hume, whom I had met before several years ago. During the course of our conversation Mrs. Hume's daughter Zaida, who was home at the time, came in, as also did Angus MacLean, a farmer from the nearby district of Hopefield. Another store visitor was Mrs. Clayton Buell. Leaving the store I talked with Mrs. John R. MacLeod, Mrs. Isaac Stewart and Mrs. Wm. Ross. I enjoyed a chat with John Archie MacPadden who does some farming and lumbering. Then I called at the home of John A. MacDonald but his daughter Bernita informed me that the boss was not home. At one of the many MacLeod homes who reside in the settlement I made the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Dan MacLeod.

Continuing on my round of calls I met Napier MacDonald and Lester Young, and then I went on to meet Mrs. Carl McKenzie whose husband was working in Borden at that time, and Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald whose husband was in the lumber woods in Nova Scotia. Stopping at the home of John C. McLean, a carpenter by trade, I couldn't find anyone around the place but just as I was climbing back into the car I saw Mrs. McLean coming down the road so I waited and spoke to her before moving on.

Homes Vacant Another lady I conversed with on the roadside, was Mrs. Frank Young whose husband was employed by the Department of Highways. Down by the station I stopped in to see Chester MacEachern, who is not only the postmaster but the mail driver as well. A nearby store was my next stopping place, and here I passed the time of day with its owner, Jim Gosley. Across the street at D. A. MacLeod's and Mrs. S. MacLeod, I also saw Mrs. Herman MacLeod whose husband is section man on the railroad. Before leaving the village I enquired as to the name of the school teacher and was told that it was Mary MacPherson whose home is in Little Sands.

On the day of my visit I noticed several homes in the district which were closed up, and on speaking about this I learned that the majority of the men who lived in these places had left to work in the lumber woods on the mainland. At the noon hour I returned to Jim McBeth's store where I lunched on cookies, bologna and a bottle of ginger-ale.—(Island Traveller in the Halifax Herald).

gathering that Canadian artists "will be forced to immigrate sooner or later" if it does not become possible for them to meet people through regular exhibitions. Musicians and actors were helped by radio, he said. But painters had no such possibilities. The movement, already grouping 15 painters and one sculptor, "emerged from the manifold art movements of the past years," said the manifesto. "Prisme d'Yeux incorporates diverse elements, diversified by life itself. It has no new, no special and specialising aesthetic, advocates no intellectual regionalism... but gives its support to the most ancient and most tested aesthetic..."

Brady said he had been in touch with Canadian officials and was "very sure" the Dominion would cooperate in a revival of Quoddy. As originally conceived by the late Dexter P. Cooper, the tide-peddling plan would have been developed jointly by Canada and the United States.

"Revive Quoddy" Drive Launched WHITING, Me., Feb. 5.—(AP)—A "revive Quoddy" campaign was launched here last night with a decision by the Washington County Chamber of Commerce to petition Congress for a fresh start on the $40,000 tidal power plan. The Chamber also voted to seek legislative action in Maine on whatever state laws might be necessary to reopen the project, abandoned in 1936 after a year's work and expenditure of $7,000,000. George L. Brady, Boston Record managing editor, who was principal speaker at the Chamber's meeting, pledged support of the Hearst organization "if the proper legislation is presented to the Maine Legislature."
