DOUGLAS' BROS. WELL DRILLING CO. The oldest well-drilling firm in Prince Edward Island and also an all-Island firm is the proud boast of Douglas Bros., with offices now located at 182 Kent Street. It was 15 years ago that Howard Douglas started out in business and during that span of years has been serving his customers faithfully and efficiently. On his return from overseas Wallace Douglas, a brother, was taken into the firm and the Co. now is enjoying a volume of business that keeps them on the move all the time. Drilling of wells is what they specialize in and, using the best equipment in the Maritimes the firm name is a by-word all over the Island. The quality of their work is so well recognized that in the war years they were awarded the contracts of drilling wells at the Charlottetown, Mr. Pleasant and Moncton airports, in addition to one at Davis & Fraser's, just to mention a few of the jobs they have undertaken. Wells range from 400 to 435 feet in depth with a capacity of 200 gallons of water a minute. Employees of the firm are all veterans of the Second Great War and their work is of such calibre that satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed as customers all over the province will fully attest to.

SHAMA'S GROCERIES. Regarded as the oldest grocery business in the City, Shama's Grocery, with over 46 years of service to the public is still improving the service they have been giving to the public over that long span of time. It was back in 1900 that Mr. Joseph Shama started out in business at 21 Weymouth Street. Paying strict attention to the needs of his customers plus a genial, friendly manner the business grew by leaps and bounds until another store was opened at 211 Euston Street, now managed by his son William Shama. Both places of business have been catering to an ever-growing list of customers ever since. Efficiency is the motto of the clerks in both stores as they attend to the needs of their customers and they have the proud record of not having one dissatisfied customer during their long dealings with the public. In both stores will be found well stocked shelves carrying the highest quality groceries at the lowest possible prices. Their showcases are stocked with confectionery when it is obtainable and as an added service to the public the Euston street store in addition to prepared meats carry roasts, steaks, etc. Cleanliness is the key word of this Grocery business also and one can be certain of obtaining delicious, wholesome foods when purchasing at either one of Shama's grocery stores.

MORELL GROCETERIA. Situated right in the heart of the City's business district Morell Groceteria on the twentieth of this month celebrates its first year in business and it has been a year that has given a lot of promise for the future. Situated at 136 Kent Street the business was started by Frank Paul on a small scale. On the first of June Herbert Douglas was taken into partnership and since that time business has so increased that an addition, 12 x 18 has been made to the store in order to cater to the wants of a steadily growing clientele. Both Mr. Paul and Mr. Douglas are both war veterans, the former having served in two conflicts and their pleasing personalities, plus the cleanliness of their premises has gone a long way in building up the patronage they now boast of. To be found in this up-to-date Groceteria is a complete line of groceries of the best quality in addition to prepared meats, etc. At the start of the new year it is the management's intention to increase their floor space even more in order that they may be able to stock up with an even more complete line of groceries, canned goods and meats than they now carry. When shopping, housewives would do well to give this up and coming place of business a call, for here they will find everything that goes to complete a well-stocked larder.
