Scores of refrigerators had been installed in other rooms of the museum-palace.

Seventy-five be-wigged waiters and flunkies in the powder blue and scarlet uniform of the long-missed Royal House of France used the "salon of the wigs" as a serving anteroom and brought the dishes up the staircase to the hall of mirrors.

The regular monthly meeting of Kingston Women's Institute was held at the home of Miss Vera Livingston with an attendance of fifteen members and four visitors.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The sick committee reported having sent fruit to three sick folk.

A report of the convention at Charlottetown was given by Mrs. Bertram Willis, a birth, 1895, and in connection with same were ordered. A contest was put on by Mrs. MacSwain, the winners being Mrs. Wm. Younker and Mrs. Edgar Newson. The following committees were then appointed:

Silvers Are Awarded Softball Game

A dispute arose in the sixth inning last night's softball game and Earle Arsenault awarded the game to the Dominion Silvers. The Silvers were leading 23-19 at the time the dispute arose. There will be a meeting of the league on Thursday July 28th in the Town Hall, at which time each manager is requested to submit a full players list for registering purposes and the umpire committee is also requested to attend.

The next scheduled game will take place on Tuesday evening.

Holman's: LeBlanc, ss.; C. Johnson, sf.; Ellis, c.; Mabey, lf.; MacArthur, lb.; Hogg, 3b.; Durant, rf.; Lowey, p.; Ranaghan, 2b. Silvers: Beagan, p.; Gallant, ss.; H. Durant, c.; B. Richards, 3b.; G. DesRoches, lb.; R. Clow, 2b.; R. Durant, c.; G. Pope, lf.; Brooks, p.

After the last game passed in review, there was a long silent wait, broken finally by the sound of distant motors which turned into a deafening roar as a squadron of pursuit planes in triangular formation sped by in the mist only a short distance from the ground.

Orders having been issued cancelling the aerial display, the King and President left the platform. They were already on the threshold of the Versailles Palace when, without warning, was ther, the bulk of the air fleet thundered by.

By this time Queen Elizabeth and Mme. Lebrun arrived in a Queen train after the hospital visit, where the Queen chatted with many of the patients, had entered the palace. The King and President followed them, finding themselves transplanted back to a court of 17th century splendor revived to honor the British reigning house for the luncheon.

After luncheon the party entered automobiles for a tour of the royal gardens. On the powder blue and scarlet uniform of the long-missed Royal House of France used the "salon of the wigs" as a serving anteroom and brought the dishes up the staircase to the hall of mirrors.

URGES VOCATIONAL SCHOOL TRAINING

(Canadian Press) WINNIPEG, July 20—Dr. George W. Kerby, president of Calgary Mount Royal Junior College and head of the Canadian National Federation of Home and School Mothers, urged that the Government in Canada, has definite ideas regarding training of the younger generation.

One of the greatest changes needed in our system is a new method of judging the standing of different children. The present method of examinations is totally unjust, he said. "The child who is able to cram the most facts into his brain at the last minute gets the highest marks."

Expressing himself in favor of further national development along vocational lines, Dr. Kerby added "if pupils do not fit into an academic class of education, the most wise thing to do is to keep them in that class. Vocational training will fit them for life in a way which can not be touched by an academic course."

Hon. Dr. Manion

one from that paper. I did not even know it existed or where it was published but I have since learned it is Liberal paper."

Dr. Manion said that if he had been so stupid as to give such an interview and if it had been true no one would have been more misled than Mr. Duplessis at being drawn into the Conservative party when he carefully avoided having anything to do with the convention.

The party leader said that on investigation he had learned the Quebec papers had not meant to say Maurice Duplessis but Maurice Dupre. Even then the report was false because Maurice Dupre, with John R. MacNeil of Toronto, was joint chairman of the Ottawa convention and took no part in the selection of the leader.

Some of the resolutions adopted at the convention had been criticized by the press and the convention continued. But resolutions in a party platform could not be other than general.

The great achievement of the convention, however, was not written in the resolutions at all. It was the achievement of shaking off the shackles of reaction which had been the uniform of the party which took control of the convention from the start and determined that no man, no little group of reaction and no party leader, could write the resolutions or select a leader.

"I like the idea I was elected by the rank and file. I am just one of the common people."

Unfortunately there was great dissatisfaction in the party in connection with the convention in Canada. There was more of it than ever before, than at any time during the Bennett regime.

If you wish to see the work of Mackenzie King and Government roll around you and see the disarray and lack of harmony," said Dr. Manion.

The Ottawa convention had rejuvenated the Conservative Party. More than that, it had demonstrated the necessity for the union of the two-party system, despite its faults and the faults of both parties.

The interests of our country we must conserve our party and take advantage of its rejuvenation. We must have an organization which will last for eight years, except for about six months in 1935 when Hon. Earl Lawson made a gallant attempt at organization.

One thing the national convention was definite and positive. It was against railway unification. For himself he had made his position clear and he was going to stick to it. He had done so not to win votes but because with five years' experience as Minister of Railways he felt he knew much about the railway problem. If not more, than anyone else at the convention.

Above all Canadians should strive for unity and harmony among themselves. Today the King and Queen were in France and the King's speeches and those of the President of France stressed the need of "compromise, conciliation and humanity in dealing with the war-torn world."

If it were possible for English and French in two different countries to work in harmony it should be possible for Canadians of French and English descent to work together and make joint contribution to the nation.

Cat Mothers Game Birds

Cats are strange creatures, and they have often been known to take care of puppies and the rearing of fox pups by cats is a general thing on many ranches; but perhaps the most remarkable thing is a cat that mothered wild ducks, wild geese and even young pheasants.

The writer had not seen this actually being done it would scarcely be believed.

Mr. George Bowness of Summerside, who has made a hobby of raising wild ducks and geese and this year has taken to raising the ring-necked pheasants, recently introduced on Prince Edward Island has been able to rear some late hatches by the help of his cat, which is one of the common house variety.

Mr. Bernard obtained the cat as a kitten from the flour mills, and it was not a bit domesticated. About the time that its first batch of kittens arrived, Mr. Bowness happened to bring home from his house a moderate-sized chicken farm, two or three chickens which had hatched early. He put them in with the cat and her kittens just for fun and to his surprise she set upon her paw and made a snug place for them beside the kittens. This was five years ago, and every year she has mothered several chickens in that way.

Mr. Bowness had wild ducks or geese that had hatched late, as is sometimes the case with wild fowl, he would bring them to the house and place them with the cat, who would care for them as tenderly as any mother bird.

This year she had four young wild ducks, and she was nursing them at the time she was nursing the mother cat, pulling at the teats with their bills. The cat did not seem to mind that, but when they pulled her whiskers that was too much of a liberty and she would give them a sharp slap with her paw and tuck them under her chin.

Even after her kittens would continue to take care of the ducks until they were old enough to take care of themselves.

It is very remarkable that a cat should show such affection for chickens and wild ducks and geese, but even more remarkable was her care of the pheasants who are very wild and even as babies show their nature, never remaining still very long, but this remarkable cat was given two of these pheasants not long after they were out of the shell and she cared for them with the warmth that the mother bird would have given them. Mr. Bowness has given them. Mr. Bowness raised the pheasants under a hen and she was more careful with them than mother hen, who rather resented having to look after such flighty young things.

Mr. Bowness has been very successful with wild game birds for some years he has successfully raised flocks of pure-bred wild geese and black ducks, and he seems to be equally successful with the ring-necked pheasants. Mr. Bowness' fox ranch has a creek running through it to the shore and his flocks of wild geese and ducks will take a trip to the harbor, but always return to the shelter of the farm at night.

Trend Of Business; Canada And United States

(Bank of Nova Scotia Letter)

(The United States indices are those of the Federal Reserve Board, the Canadian indices are based upon data from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Each series has been corrected for seasonal variation and placed upon base 100—monthly average of the period 1925-1929.)

	1938	1938	1938	1937	1937	1937
Employment in Manufactures:
Canada	107.1	107.4	106.6	109.4	110.5	111.8
United States	77.1	78.7	81.1	82.4	83.7	88.5

	1938	1938	1938	1937	1937	1937
Industrial Production:
Canada	104.1	105.7	102.0	99.4	105.0	115.3
United States	69.4	70.3	72.1	72.1	73.0	76.7

	1938	1938	1938	1937	1937	1937
Revenue Carloading:
Canada	69.3	72.8	74.4	74.2	76.7	76.4
United States	55.6	54.6	57.5	59.4	62.3	64.2

There was a further decline in business activity during May both in Canada and in the United States. Industrial Production showed a moderate loss in the two countries while Production in Manufactures decreased appreciably in the United States and very slightly in Canada. The Canadian Index of Carloading fell substantially but its American counterpart increased by nearly 2 per cent.

In Canada, decline in the manufacturing sector was largely offset by gains in the output of iron and steel, rubber products and foodstuffs with the result that the Index of Employment in Manufactures decreased very little.

In the United States, the reduction in employment was common to most branches of the manufacturing industries. Production of manufactured goods, however, was fairly well maintained, gains in the output of textiles, sugar, newspaper and tobacco were large.

Production in the output of iron and steel and automobile industries. The decline in Industrial Production was entirely a reflection of the output of manufacturing, chiefly bituminous coal, crude petroleum and lead.

VEAL BIRDS

One slice veal (cut as thinly as possible from the leg), 1 inch cube fat salt pork (finely chopped), fine cracker crumbs, 1 egg (slightly beaten), hot water or stock, butter, 1 cup cream, salt, pepper, cayenne, poultry seasoning, lemon juice and onion juice.

Wipe veal, remove bone skin and fat. Pound until quarter-inch thick and cut in pieces 4 inches long by 2 inches wide, each piece forming a bird. Chop trimmings of meat, add salt pork, measure, and add half as much crumbs. Season to taste and moisten with beaten egg and hot water or stock.

Spread thinly on centre of each piece of veal.

Roll and fasten with skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper dredge with flour and saute in hot butter until a golden brown. Put in stewpan, add cream or thin white sauce to half cover meat. Cook slowly for 20 minutes or until tender.

Serve on small pieces of toast. Strain the sauce over the birds and toast, and garnish with parsley.
