CANADIAN NATIONALITY.

An attractive appearing volume bearing the title, Canadian Nationality, The Cry of Labor and other Essays, came to hand some time ago, but has not yet received the notice which its interest demands. It is from the pen of W. Frank Hatheway, a well-known St. John merchant, and is issued from the publishing house of William Briggs, Toronto. It is seldom that a business man finds either the time or the inclination to write such thoughtful and thought-provoking essays, as those contained in this volume.

In his introductory the author sets forth his object, very clearly and it is a worthy one. He asks the workers in the field, forest, factory, mines, fisheries, and on the transportation lines to realize that upon their intelligence and their educated skill depends Canada's future prosperity. He asks the smaller but influential class of professionals, officials and traders to bear in mind that they are non-producers and only exist as the outcome of the wealth created by the workers. And he would have the workers and non-producers alike in mutual justice to each other, to develop a national character with an abiding faith in the Creator and a deep love and reverence for the land in which they live.

Mr. Hatheway writes with vigor; his views are often original, displaying great independence of thought which is not infrequently expressed in eloquent terms. His ideals are high. Our party leaders should be men of character, "the conscience of society." He has a dislike for titles. "Can we not be content with honorable, without projecting the old-world feudalism into our new-world democracy?" He censures the press for its laudation of sport, especially boxing, "the journalism that sacrifices Europe and the East for the record of a glove contest." The pulpit also comes under criticism.

He laments the decay of civility, the lack of reverence and of gentle courtesy. "About one boy in ten knows enough to take off his hat in a private office." He finds more genuine kindness among the poor than among the rich. "Our school teachers should consider the matter of manners as next to morals. Can we expect manners from the boy if the teacher keeps his hat on when meeting a lady, or when calling at a gentleman's office, or when receiving visitors at his school room?" Under the caption, "Do we know our own," he makes a fine plea for recognition of all that is grand, beautiful and inspiring in our own land, where "we are so hedged about with infinite beauty that we have but to open our eyes."

In Mr. Hatheway's outlook upon Canadian life he sees much that might be improved, uplifted and broadened. He champions the mechanic and the laborer, and would have compulsory arbitration and old age pensions established as in New Zealand, with national life insurance and a graduated taxation system. Probably no reader can agree with him at all points, but we think the many will be interested in his clearly expressed and earnest views upon many aspects of Canadian life and the age in which we live.

CAN I SOLVE THE MYSTERY.

The news comes that the famous Society of Psychical Research in Boston has been disbanded, having fallen upon evil days. When it was thought some progress had been made toward solving the mystery of the unseen world, a part of the supposed reliable evidence was discredited. The scientific workers have been troubled by the Spiritist section, whose mediums have failed to make good their pretensions. Great hopes had been based on Mrs. Piper of Arlington, who was thought to be superior to the frauds and humbug of the uncanny craft, but she too has been discredited.

In England, too, the work of the psychical researchers turned at last largely to experiments in conversing with spirits, which proved sadly disappointing. One F. W. H. Myers, author of an important work on the survival of human person-

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anæmia.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested. At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly. Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought. Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The following recent letter from Miss Rita McEwen, of Halifax, speaks for itself.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is really built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed. Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head. Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A. and Kingston, Ont.

ally after death, died after declaring that when dead he would demonstrate his living consciousness by duplicating certain sentences, at the hands of a medium, these sentences having been written by him while living and placed in carefully sealed envelopes. He would repeat these sentences after death through a medium, and the envelopes when opened would afford proof of the truth.

Many attempts were made to communicate with the spirit of Myers after his death but without success. At length the wife of a Cambridge professor claimed that she had while in a half trance received the long expected message from the dead man. She wrote a quotation from one of Plato's Dialogues, which she declared to be identical with one in the sealed envelope, but when the envelope was opened by Sir Oliver Lodge each sentence it contained was widely different from that quoted by the medium.

So the great secret does not yield itself to scientific research and the inquiry has apparently exhausted itself and reached an impassable barrier. It may be doubted whether the wellbeing or happiness of the human race would have been in any degree advanced if the effort to solve the mystery of what happens at death had been more successful. And a vast majority of the world's people will continue to believe in the life of the individual beyond this earthly state, not the less trustfully because it cannot be scientifically proved.

We have but faith; we cannot know. For knowledge is of things we see.

The band stand on the square rejoices in a new coat of paint. When shall we hear the music of the band on the evening air?

The election of a Water Commissioner in place of Mr. Douce, deceased, takes place today. The position is one of importance in our civic affairs, and electors should not omit going to the polls.

That claim for a siding and platform at the Mount Albion road crossing, should be strongly presented to Deputy Minister Butler when he comes. The residents of Upper Mount Albion, Village Green and Cape Verde have apparently a very strong case for the modest accommodation they ask.

Chief Justice Sullivan in his charge to the Grand Jury yesterday remarked with pride upon the fact that the Queen's County Jail is empty. He added that the last three times he was in King's County the like condition prevailed, and the last time he was in Summerside the jail there had but a single prisoner. Beyond question the fact that the liquor traffic has been made illegal is largely contributory to this fortunate state of affairs.

How to Break up a Cold.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. To do this, however, prompt action is necessary. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two.
