LeBlanc Had to Quit His Work

NEVER THOUGHT HE WOULD REGAIN HEALTH BUT TAN-LAC PUT HIM BACK ON JOB

Almost everybody in Moncton, N. B., knows Evariste J. D. LeBlanc of 207 Robinson St., who is book-keeper at his brother's fashionable tailoring establishment on Main Street. He is one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Moncton.

"I was ill for about two years—so ill indeed that I had to give up work for a whole year, and never thought I should ever start again," LeBlanc said. "I had a very representative who had heard of his remarkable recovery and called to see him at his place of business. 'I suffered from shocking stomach trouble. I can never tell you all that I went through and suffered. If ever I ate anything like a decent meal, I was seized with pains in the abdomen. For hours afterwards I would be greatly distressed, and I had but a very feeble appetite and came at last to hate the sight or smell of food. I got very weak and thin and must have lost a lot of weight. I might also mention that I suffered quite a lot of rheumatic pains in my legs and knee joints. As all my friends knew I was in a deplorable condition and really despaired of ever getting my health back again."

"I had read in the papers of so many people who had got relief from stomach trouble similar to my own by taking Tanlac, that I went along with my friend George Spencer and bought a bottle. It certainly did wonders for me. My rheumatism disappeared entirely and I haven't had pains in my legs, or knee-joints since. But what surprised me more was the way it settled my stomach trouble. I began to assimilate my food perfectly, and could eat quite a hearty meal without any distressing after effects. My appetite rapidly increased and I quickly got strong. I have actually gained fifteen pounds in weight and am now back at my business again. My friends all say to me, 'Why Evariste, how well you look; you are getting quite fat' and I say that I am feeling better today than I have done for years past. Tanlac has been a real boon to me and I take great pleasure in giving you this endorsement."

Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Redda Bros., in Montague by H. J. Mabon and by the leading druggists in every town.

Small Craft

(Stanzas from a longer poem by C. Fox Smith in London "Punch.")

When Drake sailed from Devon to break King Philip's pride, He had great ships at his bidding and little ones beside; Revenge was there, and Lion, and others known to fame, And likewise he had small craft, which hadn't any name.

Small craft—small craft, to harry and to flout 'em! Small craft—small craft, you cannot do without 'em! Their deeds are unrecorded, their names are never seen, But we know that there were small craft, because there must have been.

They scout before the squadrons when mighty fleets engage; They glean War's dreadful harvest when the fight has ceased to rage.

Too great they count no hazard, no task beyond their power, And merchantmen bless small craft a hundred times an hour.

In Admiral's dispatches their names are seldom heard; They justify their being more than written word.

In battle, toll and tempest and dangers manifold The doughty deeds of small craft will never all be told.

Scant ease and scantier leisure—they take no heed of these For men lie hard in small craft when storm is on the seas; A long watch and a weary, from dawn to set of sun— The men who serve in small craft, their work is never done.

And if, as chance may have it, some bitter day they lie Out-classed, out-gunned, outnumbered, with naught to do but die,

When the last gun's out of action, good-bye to ship and crew, But men die hard in small craft, as they will always do.

Oh, death comes once to each man, And duty is but duty in great ship, and in small, And it will not vex their slumbers or make less sweet their rest, Though there's never a big black headline for small craft going west.

Great ships and mighty captains—to these their need of praise For patience, skill and daring, and for every man his portion, as is both right and fair, But oh! forget not small craft, for they have done their share.

Small craft—small craft, from Scaup Flow to Dover, all the wide world over, At risk of war and shipwreck, torn and mangled and shell, All honor be to small craft, for oh, they've earned it well!

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

Grandmother's Lesson If I Should Die Tonight

The supper is over, the hearth is swept, And in the wood fire's glow The children cluster to hear a tale Of that time so long ago.

"Life is a stocking," grandma says, "And yours is just begun; But I am knitting the toe of mine, And my work is almost done."

"With merry hearts we begin to knit, And the ribbing is almost paid; Some are gay colored, and some are white, And some are ashen grey."

"But most are made of many a hue, With many a stitch set wrong, And many a row be sadly ripped, Ere the whole be fair and strong."

"There are long plain spaces with-out a break, Errands on which the willing feet had sped; The memory of my selfishness and pride, My hasty words, would all be put aside, And so I should be loved and mourned tonight."

If I should die tonight, My friends would call to mind with loving thought, Some kindly deed the icy hand had wrought; Some gentle words the frozen lips had said; Errands on which the willing feet had sped; The memory of my selfishness and pride, My hasty words, would all be put aside, And so I should be loved and mourned tonight.

If I should die tonight, Even hearts estranged would turn once more to me, Recalling other days remorsefully; The eyes that child me with averted glance, Would look upon me as of yore per chance, And soften in the old familiar way, For who could war with dumb unconscious clay? So I might rest forgiven of all tonight.

O friends, I pray tonight, Keep not your kisses for my dead, cold brow; The way is lonely, let me feel them now. Think gently of me, I am travel worn, My faltering feet are pierced with many a thorn, Forgive, oh hearts estranged for give I plead, When dreamless rest is mine, I shall not miss you, I long to-night."

—Arabella E. Smith.

Home

A costly modern mansion And furnishings rich and rare, Are not the gracious elements Which make a home most fair. But the place where the weary worker May come at the close of day; And there find rest, In that place so blest, Is the home to be loved always.

It needs not a terraced garden, With costly flowers in bloom; There may be the one cherished blossom In a simple, humble room But there's liberty, peace and pleasure In the welcome atmosphere, And you find sweet rest In that home so blest, The home to your memory dear.
