possibly Assab in Eritrea, with a road to it and a League of Nations commission to help the Emperor run his empire.

No member of this commission could be a citizen of any other interested power. These things Italy would not get:

1. Western Tigre, which she already has annexed.
2. A strip connecting Eritrea with Italian Somaliland.
3. The Danakil or Aussa regions.
4. Any economic or political influence in Ethiopia outside the conceded areas.

The peace proposals were offered to II Duce with the expressed hope of a speedy reply. He was urged to accept them as a basis for discussion, without prejudice to a final settlement.

It also was suggested that the League of Nations committee of five handle the settlement.

trine of force. They think that might count." Germany, for instance, had a population threatening to overflow her borders. There was potential war there.

"Yes," he observed, "I think there'll be a war in Europe." As to when, he would not say.

About the war in Ethiopia, Mr. Ferguson was inclined to be "optimistic." Compromise would be effected eventually, he declared, because world opinion in favor of peace could not be resisted.

The League of Nations, he believed, had been the greatest factor in moulding this opinion. And while on the subject of the League, he discussed his own and Dr. Riddell's action as Canada's representatives at the League's deliberations on sanctions against Italy.

He was quite sure, he declared, that Dr. Riddell did not "make any statement or offer any suggestion as to official policy" at an "official" meeting of League members. It was his idea that no one man should be held responsible for a country's position before the League. "If a government gives instructions on something," he asserted, "I suppose that means the whole delegation sponsors it."

instrument, especially in the cadenzas. He followed this with two other Kreisler arrangements: a melody from Gluck's opera "Orpheus and Eurydice" representing the dance of the spirits in the underworld into which Orpheus descends; and "Dance Espagnole" by the well-known Spanish composer, Manuel de Falla. The latter piece, a scintillating composition, has a background formed of the stylization of the rhythm of castanets. As encores Mr. Kreisler played "La Capriciosa" (Ries) and Kreisler's "Midnight Bells."

The final part of the programme consists of selections by the trio: Anton Arensky, and Frank Bridge's "Miniatures," comprising "Hornpipe," "Valse Russe" and "Saltarello." The audience demanded—and was generously given—two encores by the trio at the end of the group: Boccherini's ever popular "Minuet" and a very fine and interesting composition, "Spanish Dance" by Granados.

Mr. Turner's work, throughout the programme, both as accompanist and soloist, was uniformly excellent.

even to the cutting of the gears was done at their machine shop. The machines, which are owned by Buntain & Bell, have been used at Victoria, Summerside and Souris and are to be taken to Georgetown when the steamer proceeds there to complete her load.

Chartered by the Potato Growers Association the Annavore will take on board about 50,000 sacks of turnips and 4,000 sacks of potatoes here and will then proceed to Georgetown where another 20,000 sacks will complete the cargo, which is consigned to Newark, N. J., for the New York markets.

Last year the Charlottetown harbor was frozen over on December 18 and a final attempt was made two days later by the Government ship Brant to clear a path for the ferry Hillsboro but without success. Georgetown harbor usually keeps open until late in January. The last cargo boat of the season cleared from Summerside more than a week ago.

The Annavore docked at the Railway Wharf early yesterday morning after hovering outside Fitzroy buoy all day Thursday waiting for the pilot boat which could not reach her due to the high wind and heavy seas. Later in the afternoon the C. G. S. Brant went out and brought the steamer inside the harbor to safe anchorage.

The men worked by flood light last night in order to rush the loading which is expected to be completed today. In addition to the Potato Growers Association, the Associated Shippers, Canada Packers, Paul Murray and Carvell Bros. are putting turnips aboard the steamer.

The Eastern Guardian

and I met him frequently after that until a few years before his death in 1905. He was a rather nice looking, very gentlemanly and correct man, with a florid complexion, white beard, keen blue eyes and old fashioned garb, and always carried an umbrella no matter what the weather. He would not allow any by-bidding or protection of any sort. The rule was so rigidly enforced that on occasions when he discovered anything of that kind being attempted, the animal was ordered out of the ring and he refused thereafter to accept any assignment from that particular owner."

It may be of interest to our readers to know that Kentucky Prince, the top price horse of that sale in 1878, was the sire of Marguerite, that is now internationally famous as the dam of the great progenitor, Axworthy 2.15-1-2, founder of the famous breed whose sons include Gray Axworthy 2.08 3-4, Ortolan Axworthy 2.04 1-4 and many others.

Perhaps a short item on the breeding history of Axworthy 2.15-1-2 will not be out of place. His sire was Axtell, who in the year 1889 as a three-year-old colt, astonished the world by lowering the record for trotting stallions to 2.12 over the kite-shaped track at Terre Haut, Indiana. He was sold that same evening by his owner-trainer-driver and breeder, C. W. Williams, a telegraph operator of Independence, Ind., to what was known as "The Axtell Syndicate," for $105,000—then the largest price ever paid for a horse anywhere in the world.

In the spring of 1890 Axtell was placed in the stud at Terre Haut. He was limited to forty mares at a fee of $1,000, and his book was filled a week after it was opened. Among the men booking mares was A. B. Darling, who had consigned Kentucky Prince to Peter Kellogg's sale, and the mare he sent was Marguerite, the young daughter of Kentucky Prince that he had bred.

From her mating with Axtell in 1891 came Axworthy, foaled in 1892. Mr. Darling left Axworthy at Terre Haut to be developed, raced and given a record. He was a big growthy colt of sensational speed. Poor judgment was used and as a consequence he broke down as a three-year-old after taking a mark of 2.15 1-4.

The death of A. B. Darling in the depression year of 1895-96 caused Axworthy's sale and he was put up at auction in New York. The auctioneer tried in vain to work up some interest. Due to the depression in the sales market everything was selling at a fraction of its former value. Finally a great friend of Mr. Darling's, John H. Shultz, started bidding on Axworthy in order to carry him up to at least a thousand. When he got him up to $1,200, the other bidders retired and Mr. Shultz was left with him on his hands.

He did not want him, did not know what to do with him, but finally too him home to his Parkville, New York, farm. There he became very much attached to Axworthy and every morning paid a visit to his stall and had a talk to him. The story of his rise to fame as a sire and the influence which he has cast over the harness world through his descendants, is more or less familiar to those connected with the harness sport.

The condition of Tyndall Sempie, who is a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital, was somewhat improved yesterday, although he was weak from the effects of the extraction of a number of teeth. A welcome visitor to his bedside on Thursday was John K. Falconer, South Granville, who spent an hour talking horse with Tyndall and then had a short visit to the writer's place of biz.

We were kindred souls, as we both love horses and were on common ground in discussing various races of the past. Mr. Falconer was our informant for the sale of Mac Volo 2.12 1-2 by Harry O'Brien, Alberton, to Arthur Gardiner, Free-town.

Willard Kelly, Southport, has sold the pacing gelding Balbo 2.19 to Alex Campbell, Lower Montague. Balbo is a son of Al Worthing 2.15 1-2 out of Helen Wewey.

Cecil M. Alexander, Saint John, N. B., owner of the Great Guy 2.02 1-4 and Betty S. 2.07, has purchased from parties in Maine the six-year-old pacer Hanover Courier 2.09. This horse raced three times in 1934 and won a heat in 2.11. He raced ten times in 1935 and won five races, his best performance being at Farmington, Maine, September 19th, when he won from a field of seven, after Bucko Jr. took the first heat in 2.13, Hanover Courier won the next three in 2.10 1-2, 2.09, 2.11. He is eligible to the 2.21 Class Pace.

"Gaiety Guy" full sister of "Lee Axworthy" 1.58 1-4 world's champion trotting stallion swells her list of 2.10 performers by the addition of "Gaiety Mite" 2.05 1-4. "Gaiety Mite" was sold at the Old Glory Sale last fall for $750.00, and proved to be a good buy. "Gaiety Guy" now has six in the 2.10 list, one only of which is a fraction of a second slower than 2.10, and three better than 2.10 viz.: "Gaiety Mite" 2.05 1-4; "Lusty Frisco" 3.20 1-4 and "Glendower Lee" 2.08 3-4. Lusty Frisco is owned by our esteemed citizen, C. H. Chandler.

Looking Over The P.E.I. Co-operative Egg And Poultry Association

The writer had the pleasure recently of being shown through the assembling and packing plant of the P. E. I. Co-operative Egg and Poultry Association, one of the largest co-operative egg and poultry marketing organizations east of Montreal. The regular staff of egg and poultry graders is always ready and willing to demonstrate and explain the different grades, and the methods of grading both poultry and eggs.

While going through the egg department, the manager, Mr. L. McDonald, stated that the new Canadian standard egg grades brought into effect two years ago have been very beneficial to both producer and buyer as now eggs, no matter what size, if clean and fresh are marked as grade "A". The other grades denote the different variations in the quality and cleanliness of the product.

The poultry department is exceptionally busy at this season of the year with heavy receipts of all classes of poultry. The different graders, of which there are six ranging from milk fed "A" down to canning stock, were explained by Mr. McDonald. This year's stock of poultry is being assembled and packed with the idea of preserving the "bloom," which shows up very clearly with properly dressed and packed birds. This organization has been paying particular attention this year to the packing of poultry for export to the United Kingdom markets, which calls for all birds to be wing taped with a small metal disc denoting the grade. The birds are head strapped with a special paper cut for the purpose and have all feathers removed.

Asked how this season's poultry production compared with last year's the manager stated that although production has decreased in Canada this province appears to have some slight increase. The quality, however, is not quite so good as last year, due probably to the very unfavorable weather before and during harvest week which caused a very noticeable decrease in the quality of grain feeds.

The price of all kinds of poultry has shown a marked increase over last year and the return to the farmers has left a fair margin of profit over feed and labor, especially so in the case of the well finished product which finds a very ready sale in any market.

Although this province, in common with the rest of the Dominion experienced a reduction in egg production during the past year the P. E. I. Co-operative receipts showed an increase over the previous year. During the writer's visit the staff was exceptionally busy handling a special shipment of turkeys from the western part of the province for the Christmas market. Although very busy the management and staff were very courteous in explaining the different phases of the work in the various departments. They are always glad to demonstrate and explain the methods used by them in the industry, methods which are very important to both the producer and the consumer.

When Father Lost His Job!

No, there wasn't the discouragement and worry one would expect to go with such a calamity. In fact it wasn't a calamity at all—it was a time for rejoicing. Because the job father lost was simply keeping track of Junior. Father decided to buy his son DRIVER Power Tools.

Now it's rather hard to separate father and son—they are constantly working with their DRIVER Power Tools. They made a tea wagon that Mother takes great pride in showing to her friends—a smoking stand that Dad always needed—and a model boat that is the envy of the neighborhood.

Neither Dad nor Junior had any previous experience in operating power tools—they just read over the 72-page Instruction Books that are given free with every tool and then went to work.

If you are interested in getting as much enjoyment from your spare time—see us about DRIVER Power Tools.
