Annual Convention Women's Institutes

The annual convention of Women's Institutes held in Central Bedeque Hall on Tuesday was one of the largest ever attended. The institutes represented were Albany, Borden, Chelton, Central Bedeque, Lower Bedeque, Freetown, Lower Freetown, South Freetown, Middleton, Searlestown. The hall was filled to capacity at the evening meeting.

Mr. Walter Shaw addressed the evening meeting and gave a thoughtful address on the training of children in school for life's problems. He emphasized the fact that the school should be a well equipped shop. The children should have a practical knowledge in the different phases of life that they will encounter in later life.

Mr. Shaw complimented the Institutes on what they are doing for the welfare of the community, particularly in school improvements, the most important part of any community life.

If you remove the school from a community it would soon deteriorate and would disappear.

It was easy to pick out the districts where the Institutes were as they have done so much to improve school property.

The next question is how can the Institute continue to assist the school. There are many ways in which they can assist without spending much money.

Mr. Shaw gave some splendid illustrations on the old and new methods of teaching children. Our schools, he said, were very much behind the times as compared with business and agriculture. The crying need of business men today is that they want young people to come to them with a knowledge of how to conduct themselves in the business world.

Another point stressed by the speaker was the point the parent plays in school life and what they can do to assist the teachers, he asked them not to criticize the teachers when they introduce new methods of teaching. In early years before there were any schools, parents taught their children the practical things of life. In our schools today we should endeavour to combine the teaching from text books and the practical things, so that when a student leaves school he not only has that which is cultural but much that is useful. The Institutes should endeavour to procure the most up-to-date equipment for their schools. Among other things he stressed the attention to details in the school for the children's comfort.

He said the Institute could help by supplying good reading matter for the school library. In closing Mr. Shaw said he hoped to meet the parents and teachers outside of his work at Prince of Wales to discuss improved methods of teaching.

Mrs. Stirling McKay, president of the Convention, presided over the meetings. There were ten institutes represented. 104 members answered the roll call. There were many visitors as well. Miss Hazard, Supervisor of Women's Institutes was also present and gave an address on "Home Economics," improvement of social work by study and a demonstration on cream soup and its value on the menu.

The singing of the Institute Ode opened the proceedings followed by the Creed.

Mrs. Thomas Moysie of Central Bedeque read the address of welcome.

Mrs. Ralph Callbeck gave the report of the year's work in which the most important was the splendid donations given to the Sanatorium, Orphanage and Red Cross.

Besides money raised for school purposes and community work there were 150 members working in the different institutes.

An interesting feature of the afternoon program was a sketch by the members of each Institute on the history of their particular village. Each history was full of interest and gave a wealth of information on the early history of the villages and its first settlers.

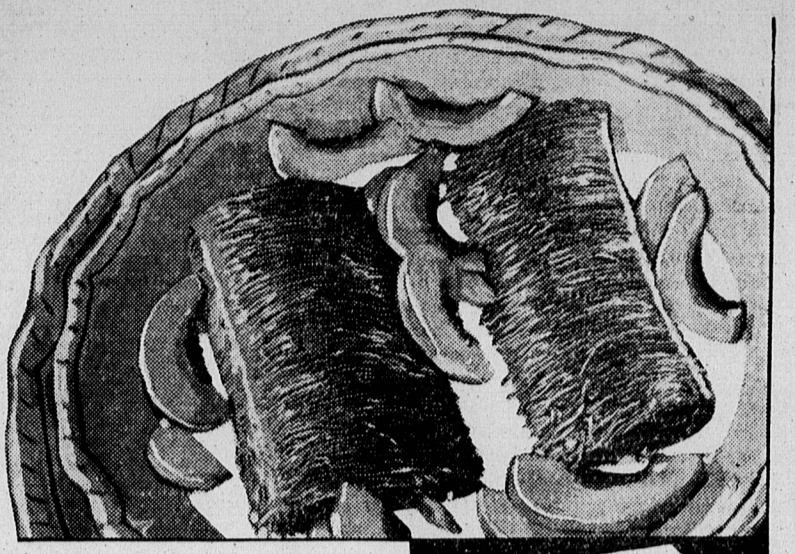

Borden's history read by Mrs. Chappell was particularly interesting although not so old as the others. Originally the farming district of Carleton Point it became the most important link between the Island and the mainland. In 1819 Wm. Carruthers came from Dumfries, Scotland, and settled there. The old homestead is still held by a Carruthers. Other families came and it was a real Scottish settlement. The first thing of importance to happen was the laying of the cable between Cape Tormentine and Carleton Point. Another feature was that the ice boats crossed here and later this spot was chosen for the large car ferries, Prince Edward Island and Charlottetown.

In 1914 saw the start of Borden, when several shacks were put up to accommodate the workmen building the new docks. The place got the name of Tar Paper Town because the roofs were of tar paper. Mr. J. Gould was the first man to take up his residence at Borden.

Mention was made of the late D. R. Morrison who built Borden Station; also the late Rev. J. J. McDonald who put up the first Catholic hall and church. The light houses were built on Wm. Carruthers' farm and he acted as caretaker. The car ferry began first service on Dec. 12th, 1917. The town was incorporated in 1919 and Mr. Charles McDonald was first Mayor. Other interesting details were that Rev. Ewen McDougall held the first Protestant service in school hall on July 4th, 1920. Rev. Mr. McPherson held the first service in the new Union Church in 1924. Rev. Father McIntyre was also instrumental in building up the school. Now Borden enjoys a population of over 300 people. Her floating population is taken care of by the Abegweit Hotel, a handsome building and one of the finest in the Province. An interesting feature of Scartown, read by Mrs. Walter Barlett, was that it was named by a wealthy Englishman after his son Searle. This man donated ten acres of land for a Methodist Church. The first school was built in 1859.

Freetown history read by Mrs. George Jardine was so called because the early settlers paid nothing for their land. The first settlers were Burns, Crosley, Schurman, Lewis, MacCardie, Campbell and Maxfield. Before the school was built Miss Annie McPhee offered to teach the children in their homes. Edward Crosley gave land for the school which was used as a church until a church was built. The first teacher was Miss Crawford and the first preacher Rev. Mr. Peterson.

Chelton, by Mrs. Chauncey Pearson, was most interesting as the first settler was a man Captain John Pearson who had been shipwrecked three times at West Point, P. E. I., and at last was persuaded to remain. He was a native of Scotland and ran off to sea at 13 years of age. He was the first settler in Lot 27 and settled on what is now Chauncey and Louis Pearson farms, in 1800. He had a shipyard on what is now the "picnic ground." The first farm house in Chelton is now over 100 years old and is occupied by Louis Pearson. The name of Chelton was given to the settlement 40 years ago by Hon. A. E. C. Holland when it was granted a post office. It was formerly known as South Shore. The original name was Cheltonham. Nathan Pearson, the first postmaster, received $10 per year. Artemas Leard was the first school teacher and his salary was so small that he could not pay board and each farmer kept him for three weeks in turn. The present school house was built by John Gardiner and Wm. Wright in 1874. The brief account of Middleton was read by Mrs. Wilfred Craig. The name was chosen by Mrs. Stephen Wright, grand-mother of Mr. Sutherland Wright, and so called because it was the middle of what was then Bedeque.

Albany's brief history was read by Mrs. Platts Cameron. Here one of the early settlers was a shipwrecked mariner named John Hayes. The first settlers were Jeremiah Noonan and M. Tierney. They married two sisters named Spain. The descendants are all hard working families.

Bedeque perhaps is the oldest of the districts and its origin was told by Mrs. John Frizzell in a most interesting manner. Bedeque was first settled by French before the

"O Canada," which was followed by Mr. Shaw's address.

The remainder of the evening was taken up with an interesting program of songs and dialogue. Chorus, Central Bedeque Institute; monologue, Lower Freetown; step dance, Miss Violet Barnett; dialogue, Scartown; instrumental number, Mr. Hennigan; duet, Miss Winnifred Wright and Mrs. Geo. Henderson; monologue, Mrs. Elliot Wright; monologue, South Freetown; play, "The Old Maid," Chelton; play, "Ask Me Another," Lower Bedeque; "God Save the King."

The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Frank Cairns, Freetown; Secretary, Miss Doris Muncey, Central Bedeque.

Resolution: First, that the Book on Scientific Temperance be placed on the curriculum of our school; second, sympathy of this Convention to those who have been bereaved; third, that the Convention express appreciation to all those who donated food stuffs for the demonstration; fourth, the thanks of the Convention be extended to Miss Hazard and Mr. Shaw for their helpful addresses.

Mrs. McKay, the retiring president, expressed her thanks to all those who helped to make the Convention such a success. S.
