above described, known as the "Saxby gale" because Lieut. Saxby of the British Navy wrote the London press in November 1868 predicting the Earth would be visited by a storm of unusual violence attended by an extraordinary rise of tide at 7 o'clock on the morning of October 5th, 1869. Saxby concluded his letter as follows:

son or when his personal prejudices were not engaged - and he had his lucid intervals of composure - he took as sane, sensible and penetrating a view of the situation as any man I ever met.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE

His chairmanship of the Peace Conference showed Clemenceau at his best. During the peace negotiations, he was the coolest and wisest man in the whole of France. He rejected - as great risks - most of the looting and vindictive counsels that always follow victory. He defied Marshall Foch - the great victorious general of the war - over the traditional French policy of a Rhine frontier for France. He always disliked and distrusted Marshall Foch. He rendered no assistance to the move that placed Foch in supreme command of the Allied troops. Marshall Foch was his man. This dislike was thoroughly reciprocated by Foch.

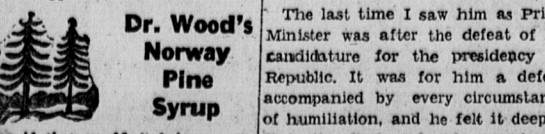

Only those who were present at the deliberation and the manoeuvre that preceded the drafting of the Treaty will know how resolutely he opposed all the proposals to insert in the Treaty demands for impossible figures of reparation. He agreed to the postponement of the figure until 1921 in the hope that by then it would be easier to fix a reasonable sum. At the conference itself he kept his temper well under control. One only saw how furiously he could rage when one saw him take some trembling official or colleague into a corner of a room to pour upon him hot, clinders of hissing wrath.

AN INEXORABLE CYNIC

By conviction and temperament he was an inexorable cynic. He had no belief in the ultimate victory of right. His belief was that history demonstrated clearly that in the end might invariably triumphed over abstract justice. In fact, as he once put it bluntly in the course of a conversation, "Might was right." His faith was in organized and well directed force. It was in the interest of humanity that strength should prevail over weakness. One of the most poignant passages of arms between himself and President Wilson was one in which he reminded the American

Cold On Chest

Mrs. E. E. Shelton, Leader, Sask., writes: "I had a very severe cold on my chest and would cough and cough day and night, until I was nearly beside myself. I took all kinds of medicine, but nothing seemed to reach it. My druggist told me to take and see if that wouldn't help me, so I took home a bottle and from the first dose I could feel great relief, and by the time I had finished it my cough had completely disappeared."

Wilson's Surrender

Colonel House tells the story of how Clemenceau at a private interview with the President, persuaded him to agree to the terms which he had hitherto resisted with an appearance of stubborn resolution. These secret conferences occurred at the time when I had been forced to return to England to deal with a parliamentary revolt against the concession of moderate peace terms to Germany. When I got back to Paris, I found to my astonishment that President Wilson had entered into a compact with Clemenceau which was almost a complete surrender on the part of the former. So complete was the change in the attitude of President Wilson that in the end I found him fighting with the whole British delegation to retain in the draft of the treaty conditions which he had regarded with horror when he first came to Paris with his ideals untarnished.

ALL FOR FRANCE

He was the greatest French statesman - if not the greatest Frenchman - of his day. He was in every fibre of his being a Frenchman. He had no real interest in humanity as a whole. His whole concern was for France. As long as France was humbled, he did not worry in the least about the tribulations of any other country. To him France was all in all. When he began in public life, he found his beloved country humiliated to the dust. When he ended his career, he left France the most powerful state on the continent of Europe - largely through his exertions.

The Saxby Gale

Yarmouth, N. S., reported the following weather conditions. The wind was strong from southeast in the morning, gradually increased during the day, until late in the afternoon it blew with great violence, accompanied with heavy rain. The gale continued to rage furiously until towards midnight, when it gradually subsided. The tide rose to a great height, in some places causing serious damages. A number of buildings were unroofed or blown down in several parts of the County.

Western Conditions

Excepting on the 1st of October wind has been southwest since the 29th ult. The wind was from south in morning but back to east, then veered to south, and at 10 p. m. to southwest. The 5th was raw and blustery, wind going to northwest, between 5 and 6 p. m. The total rain fall on the 4th was 0.530 inch. The barometer reading at 10 p. m. of the 4th was the lowest during storm.

When violent storms occur near the New Brunswick coast comparison is sometimes made with the great storm buildings shook, doors and windows rattled for the duration of one minute or more. One housewife here testifies to the house swaying back and forth. This is the worst earth quake shock that Prince Edward Island has ever experienced perhaps the end is drawing near however it is just as well to be prepared as this is a rapid age and with the radio and aeroplane the world is not far apart.

Miss Ruby Stewart, Dunstaffnage, was a visitor in Pownal on Sunday.

Mrs. Albert Jenkins, spent a few days in Summerside visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. William Judson attended the funeral of her sister Mrs. Susan Murray, Dunstaffnage, which took place last week.

Miss Edyth Lawton, P. W. C. student spent the week end at her home in Pownal.

On Sunday evening the missionary Thankoffering service was held in the United Church here. Miss Joyce Lane president of the society presided. With her on the platform were Rev. H. E. Campbell, lately inducted pastor of Pownal United Church and Rev. Mr. Brown, of Trinity Church Charlottetown, who delivered the address of the evening. The choir supplied the following music: Anthem, "Give Thanks unto the Lord," solo part taken by Miss Francis Wood. Solo, The Lord is My Shepherd, sweetly sung by Miss Francis Wood. Quartette, Mrs. Nat MacKinnon. Soprano, Mrs. Beatrice Judson. Alto, Mr. Islet Richards. Tenor, J. A. Moore, bass accompanist, Miss Wood. A large congregation was present and heartily enjoyed the service throughout.

On Wednesday evening of last week a very enjoyable concert was put on in Pownal hall, sponsored by the Mt. Abion Women's Institute augmented by Charlottetown talent. The members of this society deserve to be helped and encouraged in the worthy work they are pursuing. Among those taking part in the program were Miss Catherine Down, who delighted the audience with her clever demonstration of the Highland Fling. The musical numbers were all of a high order. Last but not least we come to the chairman, Rev. H. E. Campbell, the right man in the right place. When the program lacked the chairman supplied in his own inimitable way. A neat sum was realized, which will help defray the debt caused by the purchasing of Heartney Hall.

POWNALE NOTES

On Thursday evening, Nov. 14th., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Enman was invaded with an army of men and women, boys and girls, and all with but a single thought and purpose that of showing their esteem and affection for Ethel. After some time spent in music and games Miss Sadie Jones in a short speech to the bride introduced the most important topic of the evening. Miss Amy Smith read the contributions from the local poets that accompanied the gifts, semi-serious, laughter provoking messages. Among the verses was one which was taken from a church paper of 100 years ago in substance thus:

"Nothing will increase your influence more than being in subjection to your own husband."

If I am doomed a marriage chain to wear
Kind heaven, oh! answer this my fervent prayer
That He whom I am fated to obey,
May kindly govern with a gentle sway.

But this Anno Domini 1929. So in the second last line, He is prefixed by S. Miss Enman replied in a pretty speech which showed that however much she was surprised she was equal to the occasion. After the singing of For She's a Jolly Good Fellow, a dainty lunch was served. At a late hour the friends having extended good wishes to the bride elect departed to their homes voting it a jolly good time.

An event of more than ordinary interest took place at the manse, Pownal, on Saturday Nov. 16th., at high noon, the principals being Ethel Maude Ruth Enman, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Enman of Pownal and Harry Spence MacDonald, son of Ivan and the late Mrs. MacDonald of South Lake. Rev. H. E. Campbell, B. A., tied the nuptial knot. The bride was one of the Island's ablest teachers, a girl of whom Pownal is pardonably proud, a graduate of Prince of Wales College, where she proved herself a thorough student also at Mt. Allison University where she specialized in music and oratory. The bridegroom too is one of our splendid young men in every sense of the word and one of Prince Edward Island's up to date farmers. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald left late in the afternoon for their future home in South Lake. The bride travelling in a dress of printed velvet with a coat of figured broad cloth trimmed with racoon and hat to match. They their pathway be a shining light for many years.

On Monday evening the 18th., about twenty minutes to five the earth in this locality trembled and

In conversation with other champions Mr. Jarrett learned that a large majority preferred the Underwood because of its stability and ease of operation. 11-29-11 and she planned to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on that date next year, but, God willed it otherwise. About 35 years ago Mr. and Mrs. Marchbank and family moved to this community where he bought the Mills of the late Mr. Hugh Squaresbrigg. At the time of her death Mrs. Marchbank was the President of the Alma W. M. Society and held this office for two years and previous to this (before union) she was secretary of the Montrose Methodist W. M. S. for about 12 years and afterwards President of that society for three years.

During the war, in the days of Red Cross activities for our soldiers, she was the first President of the Alma Red Cross Society and held that office for two years, and was a faithful and energetic officer, in the performance of her duties, and many soldiers were cheered at the front. Deep was the anxiety she suffered for her son George who served with the Princess Pats, and her nephew the late Mr. Charles Buxton who made his home with her while Inspector of schools of the West Prince. Inspectorate before going overseas, and who made the Supreme sacrifice. This was a sad blow to her.

She leaves to mourn her husband two daughters and four sons, namely Grace, Mrs. Wm. McGee Niagara Falls, Ontario, Mae, Mrs. Johnson Clark, Amherst, N. S., Webster at Mill River; Wm. Campbell, at Shamrock, Sask. George at Woodvale, and Allen McLean at home, also an adopted daughter formerly Miss Ruth Duggan R. N. of Canton, Mass, who shared the mother's love and care when an orphan child, also one sister Mrs. Gordon McFarlane and one brother Harry Webster both of Augustine Cove and two brothers in the West to all of whom the Guardian extends sincerest sympathy. Rev. Mr. Geo. Elliot conducted the funeral services at the home on November 21. The funeral cortege was the largest seen in the district for years many autos and carriages following the remains to the Montrose Cemetery where they were tenderly laid to rest.

The floral tributes were as follows: Pillow. The family. Bleeding Heart, Grace Will and Wilds, Wreath, Mae and Johnston, Margaret and Bijah, Present, Alma Missionary Society, Charlottetown, to Mr. David Marchbank of Marchbanks Mills, Desable, Spray, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fennie.

ing at the home of Mrs. Gilford Bain, Cornwall, with a good attendance. The minutes of last meeting were read by secretary also minutes of last annual meeting both of which were approved. The president read a report of the year's work, followed by the secretary-treasurer's financial report, both were adopted. This Institute had a very successful year financially. The work this year has been chiefly community work with the exception of a fifty dollar grant to the Sanatorium, a Maritime map for York Point School, text books and prizes for Cornwall and York Point School, but great hopes are held for the coming year in school work. New officers were elected for ensuing year. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the retiring officers. At the next meeting, Dec. 2nd., at Mrs. E. J. McMillans the members decided on holding a bazaaar of useful and fancy articles. After a delicious lunch served by the Cornwall ladies, the meeting closed by singing God Save The King.

BROOKS - McEACHERN - The marriage of Miss Mamie Rebecca Brooks to Gordon John McEachern son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McEachern, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., was solemnized at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Brooks, of 34 Rawson Road, on Saturday evening October 26th. at 8 o'clock. The single ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Reuben J. Davis, pastor of the Heights Baptist Church. The bride was charming in her gown of white satin with lace and pearl bead trimmings. Her veil was embroidered tulle, caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Madeline Banks, of Dorchester, was the bridesmaid. She wore yellow silk with rhinestone trimmings and carried pink roses. Mr. McEachern chose as his best man, Vaughn Brooks, brother of the bride. The ushers, were Harry Wilbur, of Rockland, Maine, and Thompson Smith of Leominster, Massachusetts. Miss Gladys Moore of Dorchester played the wedding marches. The house was beautifully decorated with yellow and white crepe paper and yellow chrysanthemums. The bridal party received under an arch surrounded by flowers. Some fifty guests partook of a buffet supper. A beautifully appointed table had as centerpiece a large wedding cake. The bride is affiliated with the T. T. C. Club of the Heights Baptist church and was recently tendered a miscellaneous shower by this organization. The couple received many gifts, including money, and after a wedding trip to New York will reside at 77 Summer Street, Dorchester. (Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McEachern, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Ruth attended the ceremony.)

Insidious Eye Strain

We use this adjective advisedly. Sufferers from Eyestrain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any evil defect. The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy. Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eyestrain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body and produce ill health.
