Stella Murphy—kneels to beg Our Lady's love and protection for her congregation and its thousands of pupils represented by Misses Genevieve Monaghan and Jacqueline Jacobs.

The musical selections, piano and violin, interwoven throughout the play, were exceptionally well rendered, and added greatly to the enjoyment of the music lovers of the audience.

The Sisters of Notre Dame are to be commended and heartily congratulated in the directing and supervising of this splendid presentation which will be repeated this evening.

The entire supporting cast of "The Crowd" has performed its work well, but particular mention should be made of Lucy Beaumont, Bert Roach and little Freddie Fredrick. They could not have done better.

The program includes: Overture, Largo, Handel; Scene I—Decree of the Incarnation; Scene II—The Annunciation; Scene III—The Visitation; Scene IV—The Nativity; Scene V—Incident at Nazareth; Scene VI—Christus Leaves for Public Life; Scene VII—Meeting on Way to Calvary; Scene VIII—The Assumption and Coronation; Scene IX—The Prayer of Venerable Mother Bourgeois for Notre Dame; Ad Jesum per Mariam; GOD SAVE THE KING.

alize auto license fees and to borrow thereon a sum not exceeding $300,000.00 and to charge the same with the due payment of the said principal sum and interest thereon. RESOLVED that it shall be lawful of Prince Edward Island to issue debentures in order to raise money to grade and gravel the Highways of the Province, such debentures to be in such form as may be deemed proper for the purpose of borrowing a sum not exceeding such debentures to run for a period not exceeding thirty years and to bear interest at a rate not to exceed four and a half per cent per annum, payable half yearly; also making said debentures a first charge upon the auto license fees now imposed or which shall hereafter be imposed and the revenues and assets of the Province; also to set aside out of the revenues derived from the auto license fees a sum sufficient to pay the interest on the money borrowed and to provide for a sinking fund to redeem said debentures.

That the Honourable Mr. MacIntyre have leave to introduce a Bill to embody the above provisions. The House then went into committee to consider the above resolution. Mr. Wright in the chair. Hon. J. P. MacIntyre proceeded to explain his resolution in a few words. Mr. MacIntyre: I suppose there is sufficient revenue in the license fees to do all this, is there? I understand that since the government came into power $60,000.00 has been borrowed. I presume there is sufficient money there to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund. The Premier: There is quite sufficient. The resolution was agreed to in committee, and accordingly a bill covering its provisions was introduced, and read the first time.

The debate on the draft advertisement was then resumed, and Hon. W. M. Leach continued his speech. The plan of the technical school valued at $8,000.00 has in a large measure disappeared. It costs something to build and equip an agricultural school. I don't believe that in any of the other provinces a system of technical and agricultural education was established so economically as in this province. They charged that it cost $15,000.00 per year to run this school, and they said we will give them short courses. Such courses are nothing of a new. They have been conducted for many years in this province. But short course instruction is not comparable to the instruction given in this school.

My Hon. Friend said yesterday that in one year only three students attended the agricultural classes. I would ask him what year that was. I notice he is not so fluent as he was yesterday. I expect his five and three quarter hour speech has tired him out. Dr. MacMillan: It's your turn now. Hon. Mr. Leach then went on to give figures to show that the classes at the school were well attended. He stated that in some of the classes—particularly the motor mechanics class—it was not possible to accommodate all the applicants. The speaker proceeded to show the utility of these motor mechanics classes in particular now that the Government is making increasing use of motor driven machinery on the roads and elsewhere. Many young men had learned to be competent mechanics and wood workers as a result of the instruction given in this school. The total cost of operating this institution for eight months was $13,780.00. The Principal, Mr. Crockett who has now left the province made an estimate of the cost of conducting the school. He said it would have cost the province $345.00 for one year. Should they not have tested Mr. Crockett's estimate for one year, before they did away with it? But our hon. friends have destroyed it. Speaking of the instruction given at the school in dairying and cheese making, Mr. Leach again emphasized the fact that the late government could not claim credit for the appointment of the dairy inspector. Such a man may inspect. He cannot be classed as an instructor.

Mr. Leach, in dealing with Horse Breeding defended the measures of the Bell Government in this matter, and criticized the late Government for selling blood stallions which they found on the Falconwood Farm when they came into office. "This is what they did with excellent stallions which had been imported into this province to be of service to the farmers. 'I submit' said Mr. Leach 'that these animals should have been kept by the government, even if they did not pay expenses, for the promotion of horse breeding in the country.' The speaker discussed this matter of blood stallions at some length, and then went on to deal with keeping a herd of pure bred cattle on Falconwood farm, defending the Bell Government's actions in the matter. He pointed with pride to the fact that the herd which was established by that government had the highest record as regards milk production, of any Government herd in Canada. They were put there for the double and proper purpose of firstly, supplying good milk for the institution, and secondly to provide a nucleus of pure bred stock to assist the dairy cattle breeders of the province in improving the breed of our dairy animals.

To Dr. MacMillan's objection that under this system the expense went up, Mr. Leach replied that the revenue had also gone up. He criticized the administration of this League of Nations products, and also by the Arsenal government, and told of the excellent results which had sprung from the installation, on Falconwood farm, of a herd of pure bred Yorkshire swine. He blamed the late government for having, to a great extent undone the work of the Bell Government on that farm. Potato Growers Association—We never took any particular credit for this organization, though we gave them the use of our offices and gave them the use of our telephone, stenographers, etc. But, if my Hon. Friend had been in office at the time, wouldn't they have taken the credit? Public Roads—Hon. Mr. Leach claimed, that the construction of the roads built by the Stewart Government was not of so good a type as that used by the Bell Government, stating that, in his district, the Bell Government roads were fit for traffic in fine spring while the Tryon-Albany road built by the Stewart Government was impassable to the end of May. They claim their roads were cheaper, and no wonder if they were considering that the type of construction was so poor. Dr. MacMillan: What did the Dominion Government inspector say about these roads? Hon. Mr. Leach: The Inspector didn't see them in May. The speaker then went on to condemn the delay of the late government in putting hard surfaces on the roads near the stations. He then condemned them for knocking off $70,000.00 taxation. It was an election dodge—plan to purchase the votes of the people with their own money. Dr. MacMillan—We kept our promises, something you people don't understand. Mr. Leach continued further to condemn the late government for reducing the land tax and removing the poll tax. Asking if they thought that such reducing the taxes was a good argument for asking for increased subsidies at Ottawa, when, as a matter of fact, the farm lands of this province are the lowest taxed in the world. Mr. Leach stated further that he was in the firm in the 1922 platform of the Conservative party any mention of a reduction of taxes, which Dr. MacMillan had stated was there. He produced a typewritten document purporting to be a statement of the platform in question. Dr. MacMillan asked to have it read. Release of Prisoners in Jail—In dealing with this matter, Hon. Mr. Leach claimed that under the late government great numbers of prisoners were released, causing disrespect for law. Dr. MacMillan—By whom? Hon. Mr. Leach—Never mind—he knows by whom, and how it's done. There was only one released under our regime—and one other released nine days before his sentence was finished, for good behaviour. PROCEEDINGS

1927-28, amounting to nearly $8,000,000, in view of the fact that the senate when it rises on Friday will adjourn to near the end of April, were cleared up and passed without much opposition, although there was a disposition to criticize ministers in connection with some of the larger items, for not coming nearer the actual requirements than their estimates of last year. The interim estimates of $39,000,000 were also dispatched without loss of time. The hour last evening devoted to private bills was monopolized by the bill authorizing a bridge across the river at Niagara Falls which almost cleared through its third reading but failed on account of limitations of time. There is obviously a majority of the house, made up of members on both sides in its favor, but the opposition is most tenacious and inclined to be rough-shod. An amusing instance occurred in connection. An amendment had been moved upon which the members were called in, but as the member having the bill in charge had agreed to accept the amendment, which provided for a fair wage when the members assembled to vote it was discovered that no one objected to it and if it had been the first proxy might well have been regarded as a good April fool joke. Another amendment, moved by Irvine, Labour, providing for bonds being issued on a cash paid-up basis at par had a hard ride, and was badly beaten, among those voting against it being Finance Minister Robb.

The last part of the evening was devoted to passing the remaining budget resolutions. They served to revive opposition objections and strictures in re adequate protection not being afforded to industries embarrassed by present and prospective conditions, the result of tariff changes.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Upon the house opening this afternoon, the chairman of the committee on Agriculture and Colonization submitted its fourth interim report which was adopted recommending the continuation of its labors during the present session of parliament. The Railway Committee also reported several bills in favor of lines of railway. The Prime Minister presented copies of the second opium conference held at Geneva made for the League of Nations products, and of the international sanitary conference signed at Paris.

In reply to a question the Hon. Mr. Euler explained that all vessels in the Canadian preventive service were instructed to use Canadian coal wherever possible and out of 30 only one used American coal and that was on the Great Lakes. This was on account of having forced draught furnaces, making it necessary to use American coal. Tables cleared of preliminaries, the house continued in the discussion of Miss Agnes McPhail's motion for the establishment of a department of peace and international understanding.

Sir George Perley like all others sympathized with the object she had in view but the great trouble was to know how universal and everlasting peace was to be brought about. Miss McPhail would not contend that Great Britain and other nations should not have opposed by force the designs of Germany to dominate the world. The attainment of the ideal of peace was a slow process. The prevention of duels, the carrying of concealed weapons and the prevention of the purchase and use of revolvers were accomplished facts, but it took a long long time to bring them about in Canada.

The League of Nations organized for the purpose of universal peace, was slowly and successfully working in that direction and the best way, in his opinion to make its aims possible to effect was to co-operate in disseminating information about its objects and what it is doing. To that end much can be done departmentally and through organized effort on the part of citizens everywhere.

H. C. Hocken, Toronto, followed in a well considered, calm, and sensible speech joining at the outset and throughout in the sentiments of peace, but there was such a thing as peace with honour. To live your own life and have your own liberty were the highest of human desires, and that was inconsistent with peace at any price, which meant always ultimate disaster. He was unable to appreciate the spirit of passive resistance which, perhaps not through cowardice, but a sense of duty, struck on one cheek and turned the other. In conclusion there had been great criticism of the attitude of Great Britain in the recent crisis in China but he did not intervene to defend her own people and those of other nations, there would have been a Soviet revolution which, if successful, would have spread throughout the world and made the third international the arbiter of the destinies of the earth. The result has been that China is in a less disturbed condition than for a long time. There were two deterrents to war. The very taxes we are having to pay on account of it, and a still greater, the spirit of peace which prevails. He had lived a long time

Mary Barr Is Laid To Rest

The funeral of Miss Mary Elizabeth Barr, founder of the Barr sanatorium and for many years superintendent of the Lawrence General Hospital, was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Trinity Congregational church. Miss Barr died Friday at the Putnam Memorial Hospital at Bennington, Vermont, where she has been a patient following injuries received in a fall last December. She came to this city and took charge of the old General Hospital on Methuen street and in November 1902, the new buildings were opened under her direction. She served as superintendent until 1908 when she established the Barr sanatorium on Prospect street, Methuen. In 1912, she resumed her duties at the General Hospital and continued until March 1919, when she retired to private life, bringing a long and faithful nursing career to a close. She has made her home in Arlington, Vermont for several years.

Hundreds of persons in all stations of life at Trinity Congregational church at 3 o'clock to pay a last and loving tribute to her. Included in the immense throng which attended the funeral services were nurses and doctors and former associates at the hospital where the late Miss Barr made many friends. The beautifulasket surrounded by hundreds of floral pieces reposed in state from 11.45 o'clock to 3 o'clock this afternoon at which time Rev. Arthur Barber, pastor of the church conducted the last rites of the Congregational church for the late Miss Barr. During the services the Trinity Congregational church choir sang favorite hymns of the deceased.

The seats in the church were reserved for the members of the governing board of the hospital, the hospital staff and assistant staff, nurses and doctors. Delegations were present from the Nurses' Alumnae of the Lawrence General Hospital, doctors of the hospital and members of the governing board.

The ushers were William E. Twiss, Brainerd Smith and William A. Riley. The honorary bearers were Dr. William H. Merrill, Dr. Fred D. McAllister, Dr. Herbert W. Minahan, Dr. J. Forrest Burnham, Dr. George B. Sargent and Dr. Victor A. Reed.

In Canada but had not discovered a war spirit anywhere. Just in conclusion, he mentioned another influence at work the fact that English was becoming more and more the language of commerce. Immediately Mr. Cahan rose to dispute the statement, resulting in each remaining of the same opinion still. Mr. Cahan made one of the most, if not the most forceful, speeches of the session, the gravamen of which was that there always had been wars and always would be wars, and while he prayed to God that such an eventuality would be still a long way off, he also prayed to God that when it did come that the then generation of Canadians would as equally well be prepared to defend their rights and their homes as they had been in the last war, and that the same high spirit of devotion to a righteous cause would pervade their ranks. He scored rather severely on Mr. Hocken on the English language in commerce being a growing one but scarcely entered into the merits of the discussion.

Dr. MacCibbons, Muskoka, and H. A. Stewart, Leeds, concluded the debate. Nearly three hours of time and much language might have been saved as Miss McPhail, from the outset, was willing to withdraw the motion in deference to the wish of the Premier but every time she rose to express her intention some one had the floor. The motion was finally withdrawn.

Mr. Brown, Lisgar, then moved his resolution to provide for institutions where the leach was sentenced to be administered to criminals it should be made at the commencement of sentence and not on its expiry and had exhausted a quarter of an hour on his subject when six o'clock struck.

It is quite evident that as there are 15 notices of motion by private members on the order paper and as it takes about one day, and sometimes more, for each motion, the list cannot be cleared off anything like in the one or more days before the 16th of April, the last private members day. Consequently, most of them including Mr. Cahan's for the purpose of reviving non-hereditary titles in Canada—the last on the list must fall by the way side.

MR. SAUNDERS ANSWERED

Sir,—Just a word from one who heard. In the speech of Premier Saunders we find the following: "I believe that these two gentlemen (referring to the President and Secretary of Temperance Alliance) never made such a statement (about cutting the Dr. scripts to 25) on any platform in Prince Edward Island. They said they made it on every platform. I challenge them to name one platform where they made such a statement, in the course of these addresses," etc. (Guardian, March 23, 1928).

I make bold to say that in the speech of President Bentley delivered at Kingston is a sample of what he gave on every platform from which he spoke during the election campaign, then there are few platforms from which it was not declared that the Dr. scripts would be reduced to 25 per month. The general Secretary of the Alliance followed the same line of argument. Both these gentlemen declared that if the Liberal Government was elected, two great evils would be handed without fear or favour, namely the bootlegger and Doctor's scripts.

My spirit of British fairplay leads me to make the above statement. I am, Sir, etc. (REV.) E. W. LINDSAY
