"When anything comes up in their lives, they go all to pieces; they are lost. As we grow older we grow harder to be saved from ourselves.

THIS HEN PAYS HER OWN FARE

BROCKTON, Mass, March 2—On the way in from West Bridgewater today a trolley car picked up a bewildered hen on the fender. The motorman lifted the fowl from its perilous position and set it on a sand pail on the fron platform.

"You owe the company 5 cents," said the conductor to the feathered passenger at the end of route. The hen clucked affirmatively, but sat still. When the car got back to where the cackler had got on the fender, she flew off the pail disclosing a fresh laid egg.

An ordinary fresh laid egg is worth 5 cents, which would have paid the hen's fare only in one direction. When the egg was broken open it was found she had paid both ways with a double yolk. It was the best she could do.

MONCTONS MAY PLAY FOR CUP

OTTAWA, March 5—Moncton's dates for Stanley cup games are likely to be Saturday and Monday or Monday and Wednesday next, if the Wanderers beat Ottawa tomorrow night, but if home and home games are necessary between these two teams to decide the championship of the N. H. A., there may not be any Stanley cup games at all.

It is now practically certain that the challenge of the British Columbia professional hockey association for the Stanley cup will be deferred until the commencement of next season.

William Foran, Stanley cup trustee, received yesterday a telegram from Secretary Small, of the coast league, as follows:—"Our championship may not be decided until March 18th. Winners could play in east March 25th and 27th. Please advise if possible to play on those dates."

There has never been good ice in Ottawa, Montreal or Quebec on the dates suggested by the western league, and on this account Mr. Foran sent a reply to the effect that ice at that late date would be impossible.

The latest move on the part of the coast league means that there will only be two series for the Stanley cup

BERLIN, Mar. 7—An outbreak of a general strike in the Westphalian coal district on Mar. 11 is now regarded as practically certain.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CURED A DOG

NEW YORK, March 5—The jury in the case of Willis Vernon Cole, a Christian Science practitioner charged with practising medicine without a license was unable to agree on a verdict today and was discharged.

This was expected to be a test case of the right of Christian Scientists to apply the tenets of their faith to the curing of disease for pay. The trial was marked by spirited arguments between counsel as to the validity of the Christan Scientists' belief.

Samuel Utermeyer, Cole's counsel, who argued that his client was only practising his church's tenets when he healed, offered to prove by fifty or more witnesses the curing by Christian Science treatment of cases of disease given up by physicians but objection to the offer was sustained. Dole, however, was allowed to testify that he had successfully treated a dog whose owner then became a Christian Scientist. There will probably be a second trial.

LEAP YEAR BABY BORN IN KINGSTON PEN

KINGSTON, Ont., March 5— On Thursday, February 29th, there was born at the Kingston penitentiaty a leap year baby girl. The mother, Diana Desanten, sentenced to ten years at Montreal last summer for cruelty to children, is doing nicely. The mother was sentenced on July 27th, 1911, and entered the local institution in August. The baby, which is of average weight and a healthy child, will be left with the mother till old enough to be sent to some home. Hope of Ending the Strike Now Depends Upon His Interposition

(Canadian Press.)

LONOON, March 7—The morning papers print an appeal to King George to bring the coal strike to an end.

The London Express says, "Only one man, it is now evident, can bring immediate peace in the coal war, rescue the State from trouble, and that man is the King.

"The Ministers have failed. Parliament is impotant and the customary channels of industrial filtration are blocked, but the King can save the situation.

It may be objected that, as the King is a constitutional Monarch, he must accept through his constitutional advisors, but that is not a valid objection in a great national crisis.

"The King is the Father of the people, and as such may, without breach of constitutional usage, through his advisors, offer himself as a mediator."

LURED TO AMERICA BY LAWRENCE AD.

BOSTON, March 6—Alleged to have deserted their families in Russia and to have eloped to America, Maria Haznut and Daniel Kaszchin, were arraigned in the Fity Police Court and their cases placed on file in order that they may be deported immediately to their home country, where more serious charges will be pressed

The couple were neighbors in Russia, the man having a wife and two children and the woman a husband and one child. In court, through an interprefer, they said they had come to this country as the result of alluring advertisements explaining how easy it was to obtain remunerative work in the Lawrence mills.

In New York they went though a marriage ceremony and then proceeded to Lawrence, not realizing that a strike was in progress. In Pawrence they found many countrymen from the same town in Russian Poland from whence they came, and were thrown into intimate contact with these countrymen, who soon learned of the elopement. Later they returned to Boston, and patrolman McCaffery of the Hanover street station arrested him.

NOW A LEGAL LIGHT

BOSTON, March 5—Ten years ago Moses H. Steuer could not read or write. Today at the age of fifty-six he was admitted to the bar.

Steuer came to this country a little more than a decade ago. To support his family he went from house to house selling small wares. Then he became involved in a law suit. Before Judge Pierce, in a local court Steuer successfully argued his own case and recovered from a deputy sheriff who had replevined some of his goods.

The court proceedings gave Steuer an inspiration and he began to learn the English language by reading words on sign boards. Working by day and studying at night Steuer laid the foundation for his professional career, which started today.
