How Can This Wife Make Her Husband More Sociable?—Can a Woman Obtain Peace of Mind by Refusing to Acknowledge Her Husband's Philandering?—Mother Who Forfeited Right to Support

Dear Miss Dix—My husband is a steady domestic man, very kind to me and much interested in his home, but here is my complaint—he simply will not make friends with people and all my efforts are in vain.

Answer: Your husband is making a very great mistake. Friends are not only the chief joy in life, but they are one of the greatest and most humanizing influences in the world and they are among our most valuable assets in a business and financial way.

Therefore, when a man cuts himself away from all friends he deprives himself of great pleasure and happiness. He invariably narrows himself down and becomes cranky and queer and opinionated.

Somebody has well said that friendship doubles our joys and halves our sorrows, and this is true. There are mighty few things that are any fun to do alone.

And our friends educate us. It is the rubbing of wits against wits that polishes them up so they scintillate like diamonds.

And our friends play a major part in our success in the world. As Shakespeare says, "We are advertised by our loving friends."

The real reason that we buy from one merchant rather than another is not because he has better goods but because he is friendly.

So, just for his own sake your husband is making a great mistake, but I don't think there is anything you can do about it unless he has intelligence enough to perceive that he is taking the wrong tactics in holding aloof from his fellow creatures and abandons his position of isolation.

After fifteen years of combating your husband's hermit nature you must have said to him everything that can be said on the subject.

Plenty of times a woman has to accept her husband as he is and make the best of it and thank heaven it is no worse. This seems to be your case.

Dear Miss Dix—I read somewhere that "peace of mind does not come through husbands, it comes in spite of them."

Now I want to ask is that true? When a wife knows that her husband is unfaithful to her that he gives his time, his money and himself to another woman, can she refuse to see that? Can she keep her heart from aching and breaking?

Answer: No. Only God can do that. I have no magic that can heal a wife's broken heart.

The nearest approach to any consolation that I can give her is to bid her to try to look clearly upon the husband who has betrayed her and see how poor and worthless a thing she mourns.

If deserted wives could only realize that the idols they have worshipped have not only feet of clay but are mostly made of mud and that they have been bowing down before false gods, it would do more than any other one thing to make them dry their eyes and cease beating upon their breasts when their husbands desert them.

As for the theory that a wife can attain peace of mind by shutting her eyes to her husband's philandering, that is all hokey.

For many and various good reasons a wife may often pretend to the

Happenings of the Week

A golden sunbeam lost its way And wandered at its will; It kissed the yielding, soft, brown earth; Up sprang a daffodil.

Under the cheerful omen of a bright and cloudless sky, Miss Mildred Mariann Bennett, Tuesday became the wife of Hon. W. D. Herridge.

Witness to the ceremony aside from the Vice-Regal party, included immediate relatives only.

Unattended, the bride was a picture of radiant loveliness in her nuptial costume in pastel tones.

The exquisite gown was of summer cloud blue bouffe de sole with fitted silhouette. It spread in a long, full flounce ending in two small trains at the back.

During the signing of the register. The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden was sung softly by the choir.

Following the wedding ceremony, parliamentarians and their wives, members of officialdom and close friends had an opportunity of bestowing their good wishes upon the couple at a reception held by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett at the hotel where he resides.

Refreshments were served in the ball room, to which the Earl and Countess of Bessborough were escorted by the Prime Minister.

The bride's table was a great horseshoe in the centre, covered with a primrose yellow cloth and adorned with trails of smilax and forget-me-nots and bowls of Johanna Hill and butterfly roses and gypsophylla.

The toast to the bride was proposed in a happy speech by His Excellency, Earl Bessborough.

Major and Mrs. Herridge left at 6:15 o'clock for New York and will sail on the Europa for England.

public, and even to her husband, that she does not know of his philandering. That is just to save her face, but her feigned ignorance brings her no peace of mind nor does it keep her heart from aching.

Dear Miss Dix—A mother deserted her husband and her three small children to go off with another man. The husband divorced her and placed the children with his sister, who reared them without any financial help from either the father or the mother.

Answer: Certainly not nor do I believe that any court would make such an unjust decision. When this mother deserted her children in their infancy she forfeited all claim upon them.

An invitation has been extended by the committee in charge, through the provincial Government and proper official channels, to H. R. H. Princess Mary and the Earl of Harewood to attend the celebration of the diamond jubilee of British Columbia's entry into confederation.

The two outstanding social events of the week were the Gyr dinner dance at the Canadian National Hotel on Tuesday evening and the official dinner given to the members of the Legislature in the new hotel by Lieut. Governor Dalton on Thursday evening.

Mrs. A. B. Warburton is being welcomed home after her serious illness in Fredericton, N. B. Mrs. Warburton has as her guest at Cavendish Apartments, Mrs. George Warburton of Victoria, B. C. who is renewing old friendships here.

It is understood Miss Helen Grant has taken up the pleasant duties of Social Secretary to the Lieut. Governor and Mrs. Dalton.

Mrs. F. R. Newsom entertained the Weekly Bridge Club, very delightfully at her pretty home 12 Ambrose Street last evening.

Miss Jeannette Macphall, after visiting her brothers, Sir Andrew Macphall, in Montreal, and Colonel Alexander Macphall, in Kingston, has returned to her home in Saint John, N. B.

A bracelet which is even more unusual than many of the fascinating pieces of jewelry that Chanel has done before now is being sponsored by her. It's a wide cork bangle bracelet saturated with various perfumes.

Miss Doris Gill and Miss Avila Mathieson are enjoying a short holiday visit in Halifax.

A very nice reception and Bridge was held at Mrs. Hooper Horne's lovely home on Elm Avenue Thursday in honor of Mrs. C. F. Bousfield who is sailing very shortly on a visit to her old home in England.

Among the visitors enjoying a delightful holiday in Atlantic City are Mr. and Mrs. George DeBols, and Mr. and Mrs. George Dykes.

Mrs. R. A. Wootton, formerly Miss May Goff, recently received for the first time since her marriage at her home on Monterey Avenue, Victoria, B. C. The rooms looked charming with Spring flowers and the tea table was centered with a silver bowl of daffodils, freesia and forget-me-nots.

PARIS, April 17.—(U. P.)—More time, energy and material is spent in creating new kinds of necklaces than in any other one field of adornment for women.

For the big houses, the grand couturiers, to show something "different" means that they have to sit up nights to produce the goods. Whether it was Jean Patou's light that was stronger than the others, or whether he just has an unlimited number of hidden treasures in his brain or not, the fact remains that he toed the line of originality in a broad jump when he picked glass in green and white for beads of several sizes and cuts and strung them on gold and silver metal threads and chains and colored threads that show through the "windows."

It is a foregone conclusion that women nowadays feel that something is very lacking if they do not wear a necklace to complete the effect of a dress, whether it is a sports ensemble, tea gown or evening outfit.

FASHION HINT

"How to make my old short skirts conform to the new length was a problem to me until I hit on this plan. I dropped the hem; and as the part that had been turned under was darker than the rest, I redyed the entire dress, after having bleached the goods, following directions in the Diamond Dyes package."

who wished her a pleasant journey and safe return. The guest of honor also won the Bridge prize and exquisite box of roses.

Mrs. J. W. P. McMillan, accompanied by her little niece Miss Ruthie Stone, has gone on a visit to her mother and other relatives in Boston and New York. They will stop off at other American cities before returning.

The Thursday afternoon Bridge Club was entertained pleasantly on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. A. E. Morrison.

Mrs. Stewart, wife of the Hon. J. D. Stewart is leaving Monday morning on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Goodwin in Montreal, and friends in Ottawa.

"Home Duties" will be the Queen's occupation described by King George in the census which will be taken in Great Britain on Sunday, April 26, and his Majesty will describe his own occupation as "Head," according to The News Chronicle, which says the King will fill in the same kind of form as any other householder in that land.

A Morning Smile

It was Sunday morning in a men's class in a famous church school.

"Will you please tell me," said a member to the teacher, "how far in actual miles Dan is from Beersheba? All my life I have heard the familiar phrase "From Dan to Beersheba," but I have never known the distance."

Before the answer could be given, another member arose in the back of the room, and inquired: "Do I understand that Dan and Beersheba are the names of places?" "Yes."

"That is one on me. I always thought they were husband and wife, like Sodom and Gomorrhah."

mother-in-law, Mrs. E. E. Wootton, Mrs. R. L. Orr, of Seattle, and Mrs. H. C. Carey poured tea and coffee, and assisting in serving were Mrs. Sydney Barker, Mrs. Arthur Wootton, Miss T. L. Paddon, Miss Ines Coffey, Miss Ruth Jones, Miss Alice Goff and Miss Jean McLean.

The many friends of Mrs. S. Kennedy deeply regret her illness in the P. E. I. Hospital and are looking forward to her early and complete recovery.

Chief Justice J. A. Mathieson, was a distinguished visitor to the court of King's Bench in Montreal on Wednesday when the trial of Sam Besan, Jack Miller, Leopold Warren and Morris Weinbaugh was continued. The Chief Justice received a warm welcome on behalf of the court and the bar of Montreal.

"Diamond ears," consisting of ornaments in precious stones, fastened with an invisible screw behind the lobe and then following the entire line of the ear, are the latest fashion in Paris. The first pair was worn at a theatre by a young woman in a long black velvet gown. Her dark hair was drawn back from her face, revealing her tiny ears, outlined in diamonds. The sensation she created was immense. Most of the women present wanted to inspect the new fashion more closely, and her train was trodden on several times as she walked in the foyer.

Eczema Formed Tiny Water Blisters. Healed by Cuticura. "Eczema broke out on my neck. It started with an itchy feeling under the skin and then broke out in a rash. It formed tiny water blisters which were very itchy and sore. After a while the blisters would break and a watery substance would come from them. The itching grew worse at night when my body got warm, and sometimes I was awake half the night with it."

Well now, if misfortune has been heaped upon misfortune, until you've been forced to admit that you're not the little half-pint size you used to be, and in your final stage of complete irritation, you're going in for some new scales, get those which carry with them a guarantee to keep the home fires burning.

While anyone's manners are pretty comic when standing on a scale, the new ones I've found at $5.99 will keep a few smirks from the audience away, for there is practically no danger of tipping off of them, they're so marvelously low.

Furthermore, the umerals are sufficiently well caged to prevent your little secret from becoming too well bulletined by the gallery. These come in all the accepted bathroom colors.
