Special Services Kensington And Summerfield

Sunday, Oct. 27th, there was a general exchange of pulpits in the United Church and in the interests of the Missionary and Maintenance fund a presentation of the serious situation confronting the United Church in regard to missions was plainly laid before the people. In Kensington large crowds gathered to hear the Rev. George Somers of the Margate circuit, who occupied the pulpit both morning and evening, and by his earnestness of purpose and singleness of heart, convinced his hearers of the crying need of mankind and his faith in the power of God.

In the morning at Kensington and in the afternoon at Summerfield Mr. Somers told something of the responsibility and the cost of missions.

We who sit at home in ease and comfort have no real share in the discomforts and sacrifices the missionaries in foreign lands have to contend with.

Most of us have money to spend on luxuries and pleasures for ourselves, yet we have made the depression the excuse for reducing our givings, thus keeping a number of those noble workers who have dedicated their lives to Christ's services—at home where they are not needed, and so curtailing the work in the foreign field.

And what is our responsibility to the work in our land?

To those new Canadians a conglomeration of many of non Anglo-Saxon races who have settled here?

The United Church is preaching the Gospel in twenty-five languages to these people. In Canada we have three forms of functioning, educational, evangelical and medical.

In the northlands of Quebec and Ontario, in the Great Lakes area and away beyond, there are widely scattered and sparsely settled sections, isolated groups of human beings, many of them of our own blood and bringing up, who depend on the medical missionary for their only attention.

The speaker knew of a case of some people who lived in a shack. Their child was sick in a bed made of boards of an old table. There was a tumble down stove—minus cooking utensils. The father decided, in order to save the life of his child, to try to get him to a hospital—miles away. The mother wanted to go along, but she had no shoes or decent clothes. A neighbor woman came who lived two miles away, and she took off her shoes and stockings and coat and loaned them to the mother to wear, and she herself drove the two miles home—in her bare feet and scant clothing—in sub zero weather!

Many cases like this prevail, cases of real privation and want.

The Roman Catholic Church is doing her share in this great work, but the need is great and the labourers are few.

The fine spirit of these people who help one another in their poverty and need must surely stir our hearts to pity and help, in their brave struggle for existence on the frontiers of our own land. "Say ye not there are yet four months and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, lift up your eyes and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

In the evening service Rev. Mr. Somers took for his text "The God of Our Lord Jesus Christ."

Is not the great urge of the human heart today to find God?

Jesus Christ when He was here on earth told us that prayer was the vital contact between our souls and God. He stresses the need of "continuing instant in prayer."

He Himself often felt the necessity of going apart, alone, to "rest awhile" to commune with His Father; and He tells us to go into our closets, alone, and "shut the door, and pray to our Father which is in secret," and we are not to bother over vain repetition, "for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask Him!"

This quiet thinking, communing, letting our minds dwell on the things of God, will bring us the solution of all our problems.

Everyone that asketh, receiveth; he that seeketh, findeth, and to him that knocks, it shall be opened!"

If the individuals and the nations of the earth today would believe and accept these principles what an era of peace and happiness and prosperity we would have!

In the afternoon the choir of the United Church at Kensington went to Summerfield and assisted with the music at their thankoffering service. It was suitable and well rendered throughout all the services and under the capable direction of Mrs. J. Edward Warren. B.

forceful attitude at Geneva of Anthony Eden, British Minister for League Affairs.

Reason for Visit

"Eden particularly asked me to go to Geneva with him," the Foreign Secretary declared. "I say this because, although it has been perfectly clear that he and I have been in the fullest possible agreement during all these weeks and that we have been working together, some spiteful people have concocted the story that he was more go-ahead than I.

"This story is absolutey untrue. We have always been in complete agreement."

Accusing political opponents of "trying to make ignorant people believe there is some disreputable intrigue behind this visit, that it means some sinister change of policy," the Foreign Secretary asserted.

"As to a change of policy, let them once and for all get it out of their heads that there has ever been a change of policy in the British attitude toward the Ethiopian controversy or that there will be a change of policy."

Any settlement, he reiterated, must be "within the framework of the League and would have to be satisfactory to the three parties—the League, Italy and Ethiopia."

Elsewhere, authoritative sources said Sir Samuel would deliver a speech at Geneva bringing the League fully up-to-date on the Anglo-French peace conversations which so far have been unsuccessful. This step, it was explained, will be taken to quash rumors that the British are working "behind the backs" of the League.

Mussolini Heeds Pope's Remarks

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

ROME, Oct. 30.—The government today took care that blackshirt Italy will not offend Pope Pius next Sunday as it did last.

Prefects throughout the regime have been ordered to see that officials and people observe the religious day. The order followed closely upon the Pope's remarks of last Sunday vigorously deploring the "profanation" of the Lord's Day.

Premier Mussolini decreed last Sunday a full working day so the busy nation might lose no time from the working week in the enjoyment of a full holiday on Monday—anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

This week the Fascists were expecting to repeat the procedure of last Sunday and so enjoy a full holiday on "Victory Day", on the ensuing Monday. This holiday celebrates the anniversary of peace with Austria after the Great War.

Hapsburgs Take Action Against Starhemberg

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

VIENNA, Oct. 30—Hapsburg legitimists struck back tonight at the movement to make Vice-Chancellor Ernst Von Starhemberg the King of Austria by sending a petition to the Vienna municipal government to name Archduke Otto of Hapsburg an honorary citizen.

Legitimists believed that if the capital, with its nearly 2,000,000 population, gave such a distinction to the young Archduke, he would achieve a great moral advantage over the Vice-Chancellor, the latter's supporters wish to make him regent and eventually King.

52 Nations Ready To Impose Sanctions.

DATES DISCUSSED

Salvador, Guetemala, the Dominican Republic and Paraguay—did not participate in this year's assembly deliberations and hence are not represented on the plenary committee of 52 which meets tomorrow.

As to the states which have not yet replied, League officials point out that of the 19 who have not officially accepted economic sanctions, 13 are Latin American states, most with comparatively small purchasing power.

Even those countries close to Italy which declined to participate in sanctions—Austria, Hungary and Albania—have a purchasing power too small to weigh the balance of the loss of the British and other important markets when the "buy nothing" boycott goes into effect.

Dates Proposed For Action

Nov. 11 and Nov. 15 have been mentioned as dates on which the economic siege will actually begin, with opinion in League lobbies generally favoring the latter date.

Other questions facing the plenary committee include:

1. What to do about sanctions smuggling likely to arise.
2. What to do about states which have not replied on sanctions.
3. The advisability of adding such items as coal, cotton, copper, steel and oil to the list of "key products" banned to Italy.
4. Perfection of League machinery to watch the enforcement of sanctions.

Another question, officially tabooed but recurring nevertheless in informal discussions is how long an economic siege of Italy can remain purely on an economic and non-military basis.

It was recalled that history furnishes enough examples of besieged cities finally taking the offensive against their besiegers out of sheer necessity of breaking the economic blockade.

In this connection Canada's stand is interesting.

Considerations such as this lead to interest in recurrent but official reports of Italo-Ethiopian peace proposals. Diplomatic circles heard that Sir Samuel Hoare, Premier Laval and other leaders will seriously examine the newest peace suggestions while in Geneva, but it was not generally expected that these suggestions will reach the stage where they can be presented to the League soon.

ADIGRAT, Ethiopia, Oct. 29—(Delayed)—Two columns of Italian troops moved forward toward Makale in northern Ethiopia today without encountering resistance, but Ethiopian warriors tried to push back another Italian force southeast of the Setit River.

Bands of native troops under General Rugero Santini advanced along a small caravan route from Adigrat toward the Italians' next goal, Makale, 50 miles south. Officers of the Italian high command expressed hopes they would enter Makale without engaging in the major battle which had been predicted.

Fierce Engagements

Fierce daily engagements have been going on in the Setit River Valley, where the Ethiopians were estimated by Italian military authorities to have 13,000 men, of whom 3,000 were said to be in the front trying to dislodge Premier Mussolini's soldiers from their position along the river.

The Ethiopians lost many men in attempts to drive back the Italians, whose casualties were smaller. The Fascist troops poured machinegun fire on the black warriors as they tried to gain possession of the river in that sector, in order to get water for their cattle. Even night raids by the Ethiopians have been frustrated by the Italians' rapid fire from machinegun nests.

Nevertheless, the Ethiopian forces in the Setit River region were considered a threat to the Italian right column. When it presses on from Aduwa and Aksum, it might be forced to resist a flank attack from Haile Selassie's fighters.

Reconnaissance Operations

The advance of the natives from the left and central columns toward Makale was said to be largely a reconnaissance operation. The Italians continued their program of peaceful penetration which is the keystone of their claim that they are making a crusade of "liberation" of the Ethiopians, and not a war. They consider that the Ethiopian population can be won over better by the native soldiers which led the advance than by Italians.

Reports from Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, said the advance on the southern front continued, and Italian troops were near Gerlogubi. The road from Gorrahei to Gerlogubi was said to be passable for trucks, after a period during which it was made sodden by heavy rains.

WOULD CURB TRADE WITH BELLIGERENTS

Roosevelt And Hull Act to Further Neutrality Of The United States.

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull aimed sharp and almost simultaneous blows today at United States dealings of any description with either Italy or Ethiopia.

Advancing beyond any previous point the efforts to bulwark the government's neutrality policy by discouraging trade with the belligerents, the pronouncements by the President and Secretary of State carried unspoken hints that still further action might be taken.

The President, after hitting at commercial profits gained from war, declared: "Accordingly the American government is keeping informed as to all shipments consigned for export to both belligerents."

Hull, employing stronger language than at any time past, asserted that the neutrality policy was intended to "discourage dealings" with both of the warring countries and added: "I again repeat that an early peace with the restoration of normal business and normal business profits is far sounder and far preferable to temporary and risky war profits."

The pronouncements stirred considerable speculation. Some observers were of the opinion they possibly were intended to pave the way for some definite action should heavy war exports be shown. Officials concededly have had under study the question of whether the existing embargo against arms shipments should be extended to include such "key" raw materials for wartime use as copper, cotton, oil and scrap iron.

while war industries are taking over their share of the supply.

The wholesale price of coal recently went from 134 lire a ton (about $10.90) to 200 lire. The retail price is now 255 lire (about $20.65) a ton. For anthracite British and German coal it is 310 lire a ton.

Gasoline, because of heavy taxation, sells at 85 cents a gallon and if there appears to be difficulty in importing it pleasure cars may be restricted.

Plenty of Wheat

No bread or spaghetti restrictions are in sight because Il Duce's "battle of grain" raised Italy in 10 years to a self-supporting wheat country.

Meat and fish are imported but fruit and vegetables are exported. Fascist authorities said the Italian diet can be changed with benefit to health.

Bitterness against sanctions from former allies who proposed them was strong today in the usually inspired editorial of Virginio Gayda in the Giornale d'Italia.

Wrote Gayda, a friend of Mussolini: "The spirit of Italy rises in defence. Woman stands beside the man. Her constant, daily family control creates a gigantic bloc of national will and national resistance.

"Sanctions seek to starve Italy, weaken her strength and humble her national pride. That calculation has already proved wrong. Italy endures sacrifice. She cannot be starved because her labor produces her bread. She will not be humbled but rises, more than ever united and decided."
