

SAW MOTHER SLAY FATHER A DRAMATIC COURT SCENE

Mother's Interest Became Absorbingly Fixed Upon the Incriminating Words that Fell From the Lips of Her Little Girls.

New York, July 17.—While Mrs. Lizzie Madaus was on trial before Recorder Goff yesterday for the murder of her husband, her attention was divided between two of her children, who were testifying against her, and the wailing of her baby, born in the Tombs, and kept from her arms, lest the jury be moved to pity.

The piteous cries inside the courtroom as Assistant District-Attorney Clarke was endeavoring to show by the testimony of eleven-year-old Alice Madaus that on the evening of March 15th last, her mother stabbed her father to death with absolute impunity, and when they wept her face softened with maternal pity and love for her little girls.

But when the court-room door opened, and the baby's wailing reached her ears, she sprang from her chair as though to rush to her offspring. The solemn attendant was obliged to place a restraining hand upon her shoulder before she would resume her seat. She had forgotten completely her own danger in the fierce, maternal promptings awakened by the cry of her three-months-old babe. She wore deep mourning and constantly fingered the plain gold band her husband had placed upon her finger nineteen years ago.

A TASK HE SHRANK FROM.

Assistant District-Attorney Clarke outlined the evidence against Mrs. Madaus, and expressed his regret that he must rely largely upon the defendant's children to prove wilful murder. Recorder Goff questioned Evelyn and Alice about God and Sunday school and what they knew about an oath.

"These little girls realize what an oath is," he said gravely, "and are therefore competent to testify here."

On the day of the murder, so Evelyn testified her father and mother had quarrelled before the children were sent to school and again at noon. Her father had "soiled around the house" Evelyn said.

At supper time papa came in with Alice and testified the witness. "She was holding his hand, Mamma was at the kitchen table cutting bacon for supper. Papa went into the bed-room and came out with a bottle of whiskey and I saw mamma ought not to drink that stuff. Mamma took the bottle and poured what was in it into the sink. I was sitting at the table washing some lettuce." Here the little witness could not restrain her sobbing.

"Well what happened then?" asked Mr. Clark soothingly. The little girl resumed: "Papa said something to mamma, and then I looked up and saw my mamma standing up and a knife sticking in papa's breast. There was blood on his shirt. I did not hear what papa said to mamma just before."

"Did your papa strike or kick your mamma?" asked Mr. Clark.

"Not that day," answered Evelyn. "They only said angry words to each other."

CHILD REHEARSED TRAGEDY.

At the suggestion of Mr. Clarke Evelyn stood up on the platform before the witness chair and rehearsed before judge and jury the terribly act by which her mother before the eyes of her children had struck her husband and their father dead. She clutched her little fist as though she held knife hilt in her palm and struck forward as she had seen her mother do at the breast of the quarrelsome husband.

Some of the details of Evelyn's testimony became confused when the child was cross-examined by Mrs. Madaus's counsel, Moses A. Sachs. The little witness could not clearly distinguish between what she had seen and heard, and what she inferred necessarily accompanied what she witnessed.

Nine-year-old Alice was dressed in white and smiled with childish cheerfulness and incomprehension at her mother when called to corroborate her sister's testimony. The two little girls have been in the care of the children's society since their mother's crime and arrest.

"Tell me what you were doing that last day you were at home?" said Mr. Clarke as gently and re-assuringly as possible.

"I had home from school den 'cos Evelyn an' I played too long in our yard an' we was late to get in school," lisped the little witness. "I was makin' the bed, 'cos I just learned how an' I looked out the bedroom door an' den I saw my mamma cut papa right into his shirt. She didn't mean to do it."

Here the lisping little witness was overcome with the terror of the scene she told of and burst into tears. She had a "good mama" and a "good papa," she said between her sobs.

Other witnesses were policemen who testified that Mrs. Madaus told them she had been abused by her husband and did not know what she was doing.

At the end of the day's proceedings Mrs. Madaus kissed Evelyn, Alice and Paul, and, taking the sleeping baby from her daughter Mable, she went slowly over the Bridge of St. Johns, weeping quietly to herself.

EDGE OF THE WEDGE

LONDON, July 19.—The Daily News says Canada does not propose the general immunity of colonial grain from registration duty, but will use its bread tax as the thin edge of the wedge to secure preference, saying: "Canada gives you preference in this as in everything; give us an immunity on corn and other grains."

A Time of Anxiety and Fear for Thousands Around Us.

Paine's Celery Compound

Will Banish the Summer Blues and Other Distresses That Make Life Miserable and Unhappy.

This is the season when we hear men and women complaining about their unhappy and half-cold condition. They find that physical and mental energy has deserted them, and they are sinking deeply in the pit of despondency.

The hot summer weather always produces thousands of miserable feeling mortals. They lack nerve force, strength and true vitality. They cannot rest day or night, and life becomes a burden.

The great recuperator, builder and strength giver for all weary, worn-out and suffering people is Paine's Celery Compound, now so universally prescribed by medical men. When the great medicine is used at this season, languor, despondency, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia and digestive troubles are permanently banished, and men and women go about their duties and work with a vim, will and energy that indicate health and physical strength. Mrs. Anna Dawson, Wilkesport, Ont., says: "I consider it a pleasure to put on record what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I have been afflicted with nervousness and sleeplessness. All ordinary medicines failed, and nothing met my case until I used Paine's Celery Compound. Now I never miss a night's sleep. I strongly recommend your medicine to all nervous sufferers."

Messrs C. C. RICHARDS & Co.

Dear Sirs.—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes—so badly that I thought I would be disfigured for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected—a few applications completely curing the irritation, preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

Yours truly,
