—PROGRESSIVE COMPANY.—The report of the Emerald Dairy Co. now in the hands of the patrons, show an increase in the output of cheese over the preceding years. In the five months which the factory was in operation, 29,023 lbs. of cheese was manufactured, the average price realized being 14.40 cts per lb. and the patrons were paid at the rate of $1.15 per 100 lbs for the milk supplied. Many of the patrons supplied large quantities. Mr. James McKay leader, with 46,938 lbs., the value of which was $523.72; Ronald McDonald, 42,518 lbs., $507.81; W. H. Mayne, 32,081 lbs., $370.59; Mrs. John Hughes, 31,647 lbs., $370.76; Emmet Hughes, 29,873 lbs., $353.72; and a great many others close up to 30,000 lbs. The farmers of Emerald and vicinity appear to take a keen interest in the dairy industry, and the managers of the company and patrons alike deprecate a great deal of credit for making this one of the very best paying factories in the province.

—SCHOOL CLOSING.—The examination of the North Bedouque School took place Thursday, December 23rd. A number of rate payers and a goodly number of ladies graced the occasion with their presence. The school was examined by the teacher, Miss McLean, Mr. Jas. Carruthers and Miss McLean of Lot 16. Pains-taking on the part of the teacher and diligence on the part of the pupils were clearly in evidence particularly in the case of the junior classes, thus showing the superior work being done by the present teacher. The examination proper over, the entertainment came on in the shape of a lengthy programme, consisting of recitations, dialogues and choruses. The little ones acquitting themselves admirably, a flavor of Xmas came in the shape of well filled bags of candy and a liberal treat of chocolates to the visitors. Master Guy McCaul and Miss Esther Crozier came to the front and read a well worded address and presented to the teacher with a well filled box of stationery, who made a suitable reply. Singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

GOOD FOX STORY.

Don't you wish you lived in the Peace River district or thereabouts? At least, I think High Prairie and Peace River have something to do with each other, and it is a High Prairie story I have just heard. In that land there is a high-hearted woman of the name of Mrs. La Farange, who desired to visit her relatives in Ontario. However, her husband, like many other good husbands, in the year of stress 1915, (or is it 1916 by this time?) did not possess the money for a ticket eastward, and so the lady put her western wits to work. Feminine-like, she set a trap—not for any human victim—but for something that would really pay, with the result that she caught a silver fox. This, at least, is the story my Edmonton friend tells me—and she is a lady given to relating furry tales. Of course, you know that silver foxes are just about worth their weight in gold—and so Mrs. La Farange has several hundred dollars to the good, enough for her return ticket and for a pussy willow tresses, trimmed with lace, afternoon gown, and one of those new visor hats which make you look like a knight of the olden time. She is in Ontario by this time, and, perhaps, at this very moment she is down town turning some of that silver fox money into a gold-colored crepe de Chene blouse.

TWO SIMPLETONS

(Youth's Companion)

Side by side with anecdotes of its wits and great folk, the town with a history, British or American, rarely fails to preserve and cherish traditions of its simpletons. In a recent volume D. Macleod Malloch has given several such from the annals of Glasgow.

A Scotch gentleman of that city had in his employ at one time a simple-minded groom, faithful, but far from intelligent, who was frequently dependent over the omissions and mistakes that he too often committed. One day, going unexpectedly into the stables, the master was amazed to discover him dangling in midair at the end of a trace, the other end of which was buckled round a beam. The spectacle was mystifying but no more, since the end attached to the pendant body was not about the neck, but firmly buckled about the waist.

"What on earth are you up to now?" demanded the master.

"I'm trying to hang myself, sir," said the man wearily but respectfully.

"Then why didn't you tie the trace round your neck?" inquired his employer curiously.

"I did try that way once, sir," responded the groom in discouraged tones, "but I couldna breathe."

He was unbuckled, scolded and diverted from his suicidal intent even more easily than another Glasgow simpleton, one Jock, assisted cook in the house of Sir John Maxwell, was diverted from a much more vigorous attempt at murderous assault. In a dispute with the cook on some point of duty, that high-spirited personage had so far forgotten himself as to hit him with a shovel. Jock's good nature suddenly forsook him at the affront; also his chivalry. Snatching up a long, three-pronged fork, Jock launched himself with a howl of rage in the cook's direction, and she fled before the onset. Outdoors she dashed with Jock at her heels, and round and round the lawn went the chase, pursuer and pursued, leaping madly over flower beds as they ran. But Jock was lean and agile, and the cook as is the wont of cooks, was fat and scant of breath. She felt that her end was near; she could run no longer, and the faithful prongs were at her back, when a flash of native wit came to her rescue. Whirling about to face the frantic avenger, she put her arms akimbo and with her hands on her hips called to him with a laugh as he came up:—"Man, Jock, that's been a race!"
