EDISON'S TROUBLES

Son of the Great Electrician in Grief.

FATHER WAS OPPOSED

To the Match but Young Edison Married and now he looks for Divorce.

(New York Telegraph Aug 4.)

Thomas A. Edison, Jr., who married a Casino girl against the advice and wishes of his father, the famous wizard of electricity, has been deserted by his bride and had a consultation yesterday with a lawyer relative to bringing suit against a man named Fairfax for $50,000 on the charge of alienation of her affections. Footsore and weary, young Edison early yesterday morning walked into a saloon near the Lyceum Theatre at Fourth avenue and Twenty-fourth street. He was bedraggled and dirty, unkempt and unshaved, and, after sobbing a whole lot, asked the privilege of taking a nap on a chair in one of the little side rooms of the place. He drifted into that place because he knew a bartender employed there, and thought that from this man he would get better treatment than would be accorded him by relatives, or in his home. He said he had walked all the way from Yonkers, having been thrown from a train at that point because he had no money and nothing in his pockets by which to identify himself as the son of Thomas A. Edison. He said that his wife had deserted him at Lake George, where they had gone for the Summer, and that she had not only taken all his money, but every scrap of clothing he possessed, even to collars and handkerchiefs.

ELOPED TWO YEARS AGO.

Nearly two years ago Edison, who is not yet of age, and who has become one of the regulars of the rather fast set of youngsters hanging around the Casino corner, eloped with and married Marie Tuohy, a fluff-haired blonde, who was one of the most vivacious and popular girls of the Casino chorus. Marie Tuohy is the daughter of a drygoods merchant who has a store on North Clark street, in Chicago. Her desire to show her blond beauty and shapeliness on the stage led her to desert her Chicago home and find her way to New York, Broadway and the Casino. When young Edison met her he had already patented several electric devices and had all kinds of money to spend. They were almost inseparable from that moment.

Edison's parents tried in various ways to cure him of his infatuation for the girl, but without avail. They ran away and were married, Mrs. Edison retired from the stage and they settled down in a flat in Sixty-third street, near Central Park West. It was not long until the young bride had her mother and sister on from Chicago, and presently Edison's troubles began in earnest.

He could not make enough money to keep the establishment going at the pace his wife and her relatives set, and he began to sell his name of Edison to various corporations in electrical lines. This caused much trouble to his father, who finally agreed to give his son an allowance of $50 a week on condition that he never again lend his name to any business firm or corporation.

HOME FROM DAWSON

Messrs. D. Nicholson and J. B. Dawson

ARRIVE IN THE CITY

Mr. Nicholson Meets old Island Friends and Refers to his Trip.

Ex-Councillor Nicholson and Mr. J. B. Dawson arrived in the city last night from Dawson City. It is understood that Mr. Dawson will spend the winter in this Province but will probably return in the spring to look after his interest in a valuable claim. Messrs. Nicholson and Dawson were heartily welcomed as they stepped off the train last night and were besieged by people desirous to learn of their friends and the country in general. Mr. Nicholson left Charlottetown some four months ago and since his departure shops have been opened, new industries started and the hotel system of Charlottetown has been greatly extended.

When seen for a moment by a GUARDIAN representative last night Mr. Nicholson said he never felt better in his life notwithstanding his 12,000 mile journey. He left Dawson on July 12th and has practically been on the road ever since with the exception of three or four days spent at Seattle and Vancouver. It is apparent from Mr. Nicholson's conversation that he is not favorably impressed with the hotel system of Dawson. When asked about the rates he said that they charge from $8 to $10 a day and serve plenty of canned goods at that. He spent three weeks in Dawson and while there enjoyed 22 hours of sunshine in the 24. A short time before leaving he was shown a photograph taken at midnight upon a mountain peak. After leaving Vancouver he went to Skagway by scow and steamer, from Skagway to the White Pass.

There was plenty of snow on the passes and mountain peaks as he passed along. He says that of course Dawson is only new and is largely made up of huts and shanties, but it is the headquarters for the Mounted Police, etc. While there he met Mr. W. D. McKay who runs a retail shop and works a mining claim. Mr. McKay was not well after arriving in Dawson but his health has much improved since locating there.

On the way to Dawson Mr. McKay lost his goods and barely saved his life. When Mr. Nicholson saw him he hardly knew him as he had turned quite grey. When asked if he encountered any difficulty in reaching Dawson Mr. Nicholson replied that it is as easy to get to Dawson to-day, as it is to get to New York. Good steamers and railroads are provided and there is no difficulty in the world. All P. E. Islanders are doing fine. Among those whom he met were Alex. McRae, who is doing remarkably well and possesses a valuable claim. He also met Ernest Joy, Fred Kennedy, Capt Joseph McLeod, Theo. Stewart, Peter Ferguson and numerous others all doing well.

Mr. Nicholson took a quantity of goods to Dawson and although the market was dull when he arrived he made a good sale before he left for home.
