IN WAR, WHERE DO THE PEOPLE COME IN?

There has been much talk of international arbitration and world-peace of late, but the dream has been rather rudely dispelled by the sudden outbreak of war between Italy and Turkey. There had been fear of an outbreak of hostilities between Germany and France over the Morocco affair, but that was just being composed by an agreement reached after prolonged negotiations, when at the shortest notice—a word and a blow—Italy and Turkey are at each other's throats.

And no one knows what the end may be, what other powers may be come involved. But if the war shall be confined to the two powers now immediately embroiled, the chances would seem to favor Italy—the aggressor. We have become so accustomed to think of the Turk as "un-speakable" that it comes almost a second nature to think he must be in the wrong in any conflict with a Christian power. But he is at least a sturdy fighter and could the Turkish and Italian armies, both at full strength, meet to settle the dispute on land, Italy would be in danger of defeat.

But the war cannot be decided in that fashion. The Turkish army while of approximately one-third greater strength than that of Italy may not be able to display its prowess. Turkey and Italy are separated from each other by the Adriatic Sea, and both are separated from Tripoli by the Mediterranean, while the Italian navy has threefold the fighting strength of Turkey at sea. Therefore the coming conflict has been compared to that between a bull and a whale. Italy, with absolute superiority at sea, is fairly master of the situation if the duel is not to be interfered with.

But where do the people of the two countries come in? Their advice is not asked and very few of them knew what was going on until the war had actually been declared. It would have been the same had the German Emperor decided to make war with France over the Morocco affair. It is so in most wars. The issues of peace and war are decided by secret diplomacy, behind the backs of the people. The people are neither informed nor consulted until a time when information and consultation are alike superfluous.

There is frequent talk of war likely to occur between Great Britain and Germany, although it is admitted on all hands that neither the British nor the German people desire it, or are likely to desire it, or would permit such a war to occur if it were in their power to prevent it. The greed and ambition of rulers, and the secret scheming of diplomats bring about wars which the people do not desire. Next to general and compulsory arbitration, in usefulness as a preventive of war would be a referendum to the people of the disputing nations. If this could be brought about it might be hoped that the rational democracies would decide that it would be better to settle the trouble amicably rather than to rise up and slay each other, and pay heavy taxes ever after to make good the cost.

AN APPEAL THAT FAILED.

On the eve of the election the Ottawa Free Press made a strong appeal to the members of the civil service there to vote for the Government candidates, because the Government had much increased their salaries. It was pointed out that whereas in 1895 there were but 478, or 20 per cent. of the whole number, who were receiving salaries of $1500 and over, in 1911 there were 987 men who were receiving that sum and over. That is, there the number of large and comfortable salaries had been more than doubled.

Again, it was pointed out by the Free Press that Mr. Foster had said the civil service was over-manned by at least 1,000, that the service was not as strong as it had been in efficiency or as high in morals as it had been. Also that other prominent members of the Opposition had stated in Parliament at the time when increases were made that the civil servants were already generously paid and many of them overpaid.

vote for McGovern and Pinard (the Government candidates) will be a vote for continued fair play to the civil service," said the Free Press. "A vote against them may open the door for the return of G. E. Foster, the insulter of every man and woman in the service," was added in conclusion.

What our readers may think of such an appeal we do not know. But outside of Ottawa there is a widely prevalent opinion that the civil service is over-manned, as Mr. Foster had said, and generously paid also, as Mr. Crothers and others had intimated. And they were paid, not with Mr. McGovern's or Mr. Pinard's money, but with the money of the people of Canada. It seems therefore to be a fallacy that the men of civil service were bound to vote for the Government candidates because the Government had increased their pay.

What is of more consequence is the fact that the appeal made by the Free Press to the civil servants seems not to have been particularly effective. It cannot be told except in a general way how the officials and employees of the departments voted, as the vote was by ballot and in a large city like Ottawa the civil service staff, large as it is, is but a portion of the entire body of voters. But the result shows that the majority of 400 to 500 votes in favor of the Government candidates at the election of 1908 was quite reversed, and the two Opposition candidates were this time returned by majorities equally as large.

'FRUIT-A-TIVES' CURED HER

MOUNTAIN, ONT., March 9th.
"I have taken 'Fruit-a-tives' with great benefit. I was troubled with biliousness for years and after taking 'Fruit-a-tives', am entirely well again. I have been treated by physicians and took many kinds of medicine, but nothing cured until I used 'Fruit-a-tives'.
Mrs. R. M. BEGGS.
No other medicine in the world will cure biliousness as quickly and pleasantly as 'Fruit-a-tives'. This famous fruit medicine acts directly on the liver, relieves the congestion, enables the liver to pour out more bile, and corrects constipation and indigestion.

the importance of the general and larger Fair, but it affords what seem to be necessary facilities for showing the products of various sections east and west, which would not be equally available if all the Exhibitions were concentrated in one. The incidence of an exciting election so near the date of the Fair was not favorable to its success.

A great variety of excellent products of the farm, the stock-yard, the dairy, the orchard and of domestic industry was shown at the several fairs, but there were some things to be desired. There was a falling off in the stock display, which some stock men attribute to the inadequate provision made for watering stock at this and previous fairs. As all those in care of stock at the show require to feed and water their animals at the same time, the best possible facilities should be afforded them, so as to save labor and avoid waiting.

No Exhibition has yet been held at which there was not some occasion for fault-finding, and that just held was no exception.

The most serious objection we have heard was that just noted, and along with it some complaint that the Exhibition was perhaps not sufficiently advertised. These are mentioned in no critical spirit but with a view to improvement in the future, as we feel assured that the Directors, and the experienced and capable Secretary desire to meet the wishes of intending or possible exhibitors in every way in their power. They have not found the business of holding Exhibitions a lucrative one in the matter of dividends, and have expended much energy, thought and labor in gratuitous service to promote the welfare and advance the reputation of the farmers of this Province.

High protection is now apparently more firmly established in Canada than ever before. This is largely the result of the Liberal Government's action in continuing the protective duties of 25 to 37 1/2 per cent on various classes of cotton, woolen, iron and steel and other goods established by their predecessors in office. This action was defended by the Liberal press during fifteen years past, and in that way the people were educated into becoming protectionists. It seems idle now for them to complain that the people have accepted their teachings. The consistent advocates among the newspapers of Canada for a revenue tariff can be counted on one hand. One of them is located in Montreal and another in Charlottetown.

Objection is now taken in certain quarters to the too "solid" vote of Ontario, but after all, the big Province is not quite so solid in its support of the Conservative party as Quebec has sometimes been in support of the Liberal party. There are 12 or 13 Liberals now elected in Ontario. Prince Edward Island on two
