LUNCHEON AT HOUSE OF LORDS RESTAURANT

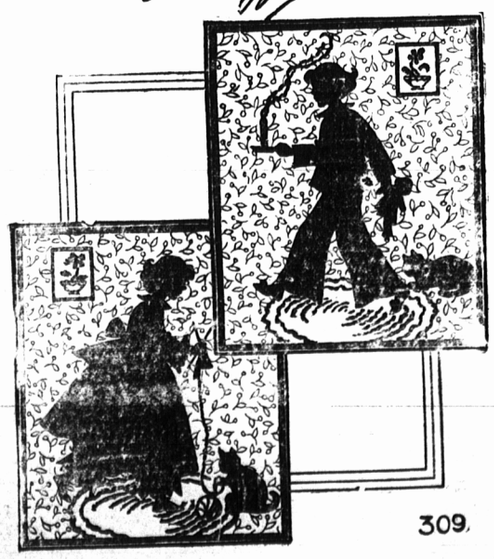
Perhaps you have wondered, as I have, what a member of the House of Lords eats for lunch, writes Mrs. Gaynar Maddox. I found out on a recent trip to England, when a member of the Lords and his wife took me to luncheon in the Lords' private restaurant.

The dining room was not gay, but rather sedate, comfortable, and hung with portraits of some of England's illustrious soldiers and statesmen.

This was the menu on that impressive yet hospitable occasion; green pea soup, potted shrimp, braised sweetbreads and peas, hot apple tart, Stilton cheese, coffee.

As for the sweetbreads and peas, they were excellent; and the crisp tarts seemed to be made of hot apple sauce with cinnamon in good English pastry.

'NIGHT AND 'DAY' SILHOUETTE PICTURES
by Mayfair



MAYFAIR NO. 309

A story-book child has stepped out of a story-book world to make these delightfully young and decorative pictures — companion silhouettes. By day, the young lady is an appealing little busy body indeed. When day is done, she goes to bed obediently as any modern child. The pictures are very easy to make. The work is simple to do and very entertaining. The little girl and her cat are cut out of silk, black paper or wool, then mounted on a square of old-fashioned calico. The "pictures" on the wall are applique, the smoke and the wool are embroidered while the rug is first embroidered on plain chambray then appliqued to the quaint background. A most effective wall decoration for modern living rooms, hallways, and, of course, ideal for "Her" very own room.

The pattern includes transfers of the two pictures 8 x 10 inches, complete instructions for making and finishing the pictures as well as details for embroidery stitches.

For complete pattern and instructions for all of these designs, send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Charlottetown Guardian Needlework Department.

THE COOK'S CORNER

CHICKEN LOAF (Serves 8)
1 cup rice
1 quart chicken stock
1 quart water
2 teaspoons salt
1 stewed fowl (about 4 pounds)
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cup cooked mushrooms
1-2 cup blanched almonds
1-2 cup chicken stock

Wash the rice and add slowly to the salted, briskly boiling stock and water. Cook for about 15 to 25 minutes, or until a kernel pressed between the fingers leaves no hard centre.

Remove meat from fowl and cut in small pieces. Add chopped parsley, mushrooms cut in small pieces and the almonds cut fine.

Grease a large glass loaf pan, 2 quart size, and put in a half inch layer of rice. If rice is excessively moist, drain before putting it in the baking dish.

Then add a layer of chicken mixture, another layer of rice; and continue until all the ingredients have been packed into the baking dish. The top layer should be rice.

Pour 1-2 cup chicken stock over all. Place loaf in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. Serve hot with chicken gravy made from the remaining stock and garnish with parsley and, if desired, with slices of hard cooked eggs.

CHICKEN A LA KING
(Serves 6)

6 tablespoons butter or chicken fat
1-2 cup flour
1 1-2 cups stock
1 1-2 cups top milk
3-4 teaspoon salt
3-4 teaspoon celery salt
1 1-2 teaspoons lemon juice
3 cups diced cooked chicken
3 egg yolks
3 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Melt the fat in saucepan, 1 1-2 quart size, add flour and blend thoroughly. Stir in stock and milk, and cook for 5 minutes over a very low flame, or until sauce is thickened. Season. Then add lemon juice, chicken and egg yolks beaten with water. Add primiento. Cook slowly for a minute or two.

HAM LOAF
(Serves 10)

1-2 cup quickcooking tapioca
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-4 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 pound lean ham, ground
1 pound lean pork, ground
2 cups milk

Combine tapioca with remaining ingredients in order given. Bake in loaf pan in hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 15 minutes. Then decrease heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and bake 45 minutes longer, or until done. Rub mixing bowl with garlic before mixing, if desired. Serve hot or cold.

How Can I ??
(By ANNE ASHLEY)

Q. How can I launder silk handkerchiefs successfully?

A. Use lukewarm water and borax, instead of using soap. Dry the handkerchiefs by wrapping them in a cloth; then iron while they are still slightly damp.

Q. How can I remove dampness from a closet or cupboard?

A. Place a saucerful of quicklime in the closet or cupboard. This not only absorbs all dampness, but also acts as a disinfectant.

Q. How can I prevent an omelet from falling?

A. Beat a little powdered sugar and cornstarch into the yolks of the eggs.

How to Treat Your Husband | Dorothy Dix | Laugh And Be Gay at Home

Your Husband Does Not Want to Come Home to a Funeral Parlor — He Has Had Enough Trouble All Day at His Work— and Finally, Don't Forget He is Like a Little Boy

Husbands like to be treated cheerfully, if you get what I mean. They want their wives to look upon them as jolly companions instead of just bill-payers and meal tickets, and to act as if they enjoyed being married to them instead of assuming the martyr pose. So we will discuss this feature in this third and final article in the series on "How to Treat Your Husband."

If the average married man could put up one prayer more fervent than the rest it would be this: 'Good Lord, send me a wife who laughs and a home that isn't an understudy to a funeral parlor."

But his prayer isn't often answered. There are not many homes that radiate sunshine instead of gloom, nor are there many wives who are gay and cheery pals, and that is why a very large number of husbands are driven away from their own firesides and to the society of others when they want to give themselves a good time.

When a man marries he wants a wife who will be a little playmate, one who will grab her hat and go when he wants to step out—one who laughs at his jokes and has a keen line of chatter of her own. He is simply sunk when he finds he has drawn a wet blanket in the matrimonial lottery, and that his wife can never leave the baby for fear something would happen to it if she went to a show; that her conversational repertoire consists of moans and groans and complaints; that she considers it her sacred duty to tell him they can't afford whatever they are doing and that she has a gift for taking fun out of every situation.

People often wonder why men who are penurious to their families and who never pay a household bill without grumbling are so lavish about spending money on their vices. The answer is easy. The man's home is dull and the money that his family costs him gives him no fillip of pleasure. His home has been made to mean to him nothing but hard work, ungilded by any joy. The opening of champagne for chorus girls is to the tune of gayety and laughter. Therefore, he is willing to pay for one and begrudges paying for the other.

Husbands want their wives to treat them like pals. They want their wives to enjoy the things they do; to like the people they like; to amuse themselves with the things that divert them. A man wants to hear his wife laugh, to see her eyes sparkle and for her to treat him generally as if they were on a par, as if they were joyous fellow sinners together, instead of her being a living reproof to him as a poor, low-browed creature with radio tastes that make her shudder, or as a subject for reformation.

A man would like his wife to be interested in his business and to be able to talk shop to her by the hour. If he is a golf fiend he would like her to play with him, or at least know enough about the game to listen to his post mortems intelligently. He would like her to be fond of his old cronies and make them welcome when they come to see him.

It is the disappointment of his life when the woman to whom he is married yawns in his face when he tries to tell her his plan for enlarging the store, and when she serves poor old Tom or Sam such a slice of cold shoulder when they come to dinner that they never return.

Think of how few married couples you know who have anything to say to each other when they are alone, and you weep for the man as well as the woman. He is just as lonesome as she is. Many men have wives who are saints, but there are precious few who are lucky enough to have a wife who is a confidential friend.

Husbands want their wives to treat them with understanding, but not one man in a thousand gets his heart's desire in this respect. For it is a curious thing that women's boasted intuition rarely gets in its fine work when it comes to dealing with a husband. That is what bewilders men about women more than anything else and makes them sorest.

A man would like his wife to understand that because he doesn't go about shouting from the housetops that she is the most wonderful creature in the world that he doesn't think she is; that because he doesn't assure her of his undying devotion every day is no indication that he has ceased to olve her; that because he is immersed in his business is no reason for her thinking that he is neglecting her. It is just that he is saying it with beefsteaks instead of orchids and working himself to death to keep her soft and comfortable.

And, most of all, he would like her to understand that generally, even when he sidesteps a little, it is not because he is the least unfaithful to her in his heart, but just has the little boy instinct in him that makes him bound to play hooky now and then.

All of which sums up into saying to treat your husband as you do your littlest boy. Love him and play with him. Chuck him under the chin when he is good; spank him and forgive him and forget all about it when he is bad. And you will never lose him. He will always come back to Mother.

SONNET

Say it with flowers while you may,
God's messengers in truth are they.
Wait not until a life is spent,
When all their beauty and their scent
Are wasted on the desert air—
Though there be still the ones who care,
Who cherish them for what they bring
Of comfort to the sorrowing
The birds still sing, though clouds are grey,
The stars still twinkle, come what may;
The frailest flower in a room
Will chase away the deepest gloom
And, like the sun beyond the hill,
Proclaim God's in His heaven still!

WAY TO MAKE CROUTONS

Cut half inch slices of bread into cubes, arrange the cubes in a shallow pan and brown them well, stirring several times with a fork. Then add a tablespoon of butter, and an eighth of a teaspoon each of salt, paprika and celery salt for each cupful of croutons, and heat five minutes in a slow oven.

MAKES THEM TIGHT.

When furniture knobs or handles become loose, remove the bolts from the knobs and insert rubber washers similar to those used on water faucets. Replace the bolts. The knobs then will be firm.

BAKE SOUFFLES IN GLASS

Bake souffles in glass pie dishes, then cut them in wedge shaped pieces and serve directly from baking dish. Fill the glass dish only half full of the uncooked souffle to allow for rising.

TRAVELLING JEWEL CASE.

A travelling jewel case is a handy little thing to have in one's luggage. It is useful whether to safeguard expensive jewelry, or simply a collection of costume jewelry, which needs more care than precious jewelry.

Wax flowers may be cleaned by placing them one at a time in a pint of tepid water to which 1 tablespoon of baking soda has been added.

The secret of very thin bread for sandwiches is a very sharp knife. No matter how fresh the bread a very sharp knife can slice it thinly.

Put the rubbers on the jars before filling them with hot preserves. Then screw down the tops onto the rubbers. It will save burned fingers.

If the home does not boast a long-nosed watering can, use the tea kettle for the purpose of watering the house plants. It pours without spilling.

A HOLDER FOR STAMPS

Have a definite place to keep your postage stamps. Then you will not have a frantic search for them when someone is waiting to mail your letter.

AS YOUR HOSTESS WISHES

If your hostess does not keep a maid it is perfectly permissible to ask if you can be of any assistance to her in the kitchen before serving dinner, but if she says "No", stay in the living room where you belong until dinner is served. Many women get very nervous if people watch them prepare their meals and would greatly prefer doing it alone.

MAKING PALMOLIVE 3000 YEARS AGO

Slaves made Palmolive 3,000 years ago. In precious metal urns they blended the natural oils of Olive and Palm. And 3,000 years ago, beautiful women used this costly, soothing mixture, crude though it was, to keep their skins smooth, clean ... soft and youthful.

Since then, millions of dollars have been spent to develop countless beauty recipes. But none can equal in quality the gentle, beautifying effects of these two wonderful oriental oils.

In today's Palmolive, it is these same precious beauty aids, blended as carefully as science permits, that are responsible for Palmolive's wholesome purity; its gentle, healthful, soothing lather; its natural colouring.

Why not give your delicate complexion the benefits of this age-old, time-proven, beauty recipe. Let the new, modern Palmolive bring to all your skin a new, wholesome loveliness ... a soft refreshing youthfulness.

"I've never found another soap at any price that's as good for my skin as the new improved Palmolive. It cleanses perfectly, without the slightest irritation." (Signed) PHYLLIS CARTER, 2159 Tupper Street, Montreal, Que.

"Palmolive is the only soap used in the daily baths of the Dionne quintuplets. Their skin is clear, normal and healthy." (Signed) ALLAN ROY DAFOE

A Morning Smile
IN LIGHTER VEIN

The local pro had undertaken to give lessons to the new member of the golf club. The member had never played before in his life and had to start right from the beginning.

The pro placed a ball on the first tee and, pointing to the flag on the green, remarked:

"The idea of this game is to place the ball as near to that flag as you can."

The novice drove off—and the ball stopped within six inches of the hole.

The pro was amazed, but his pupil merely inquired:

"And what do I do now?"

"You knock the ball into the hole,' replied the expert.

"Into the hole!" exclaimed the new member. "Why the dickens didn't you tell me that before I drove?"

The Dog

Be sure not to give your dog ice cold food during the hot weather. If taken from the refrigerator, it should be set aside until it has had time to lose its chill.

Crisp Cucumbers

Keep the cucumbers in a bath of water in the refrigerator until about an hour before they are to be served. Then pare, slice, sprinkle each layer with salt, and return to the refrigerator. Just before serving, drain off the liquid that has collected in the dish, and the cucumbers will be crisper and better flavored than when prepared in the usual manner.
