 WEDNESDAY MORNING NOVEMBER 16, 1904.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

To-morrow is set apart as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God by the people of Canada. As a Christian people living in a highly favored land, we have much indeed to be thankful for, and it is well that for at least one day in each year we should pause in our pleasures and our employments to recount the favors and mercies which have been bestowed upon us by the Giver of all good. We truly have a goodly heritage, a possession vast and rich. It is not too much to say that no other community of like members on the face of the earth has so much to be thankful for in the land given to them for a possession as have the people of Canada. Vast and rich, in fertile, well-watered soil, in wealth of forest, mine and sea, is this fair Dominion. There is no healthier land under the sun, none more exempt from disease, from the pestilence that walketh in darkness, from cyclones, from earthquakes, from deadly reptiles, even to few pauses to think of them!

Ours is a land of freedom, of civil and religious liberty, a land where gift by friends or foes a man may speak the thing he will, a land where every man may worship according to the dictates of his own conscience, none daring to make him afraid. It is, with a Christian land, a land of Bibles and of churches. It is a land of schools and colleges, where the fountain of knowledge is set, like a spring of water by the wayside, within the reach of all. It is a land of just and fair laws, a land of just and fair judges, a land where in successive reigns Queen and King have ruled in righteousness and wisdom. It is a land today at peace with all the world. It is a land which has rested so long beneath the olive branch of peace that not the oldest grand sire in our midst can remember the day when a foreign foe had set his foot upon Canadian soil. These conditions are many of them rare to the happiest lands on earth. They are not of our ordering, but are ours by the behest of Him by whom kings reign and princes decree justice.

For the blessings of the past year Canada has abundant reason to render hearty thanksgiving to God. If in our own little Island the harvest has been less beautiful than usual, we must recall that throughout the Dominion as a whole the labors of the husbandman have seldom been more abundantly blessed. There is bread enough and to spare this year, and it has been in the days of our fathers and of our grandfathers. Ours is a land of plenty, where famines such as visit other lands are quite unknown. And the year has been one of prosperity on the farm, in the workshop, the factory, the bank, in the merchant's store, in the mine and on the fertile prairie. Nationally Canada has prospered and is prospering as never before. The national treasury is full to overflowing. The national credit is unexceptionally good. And with the outlook for peace and plenty on every side in the years to come our people are full of heart and hope. Truly we have much to be thankful for. Our one great danger lies in this that we are prone to forget Him from Whom all these benefits have come. "Lest we forget, lest we forget."

At such a time, in the day of national thanksgiving, it is fitting that every devout heart should recall the personal and family mercies of the year. For the Providence that has watched over us and our loved ones, for life, health, strength, for good and rainment, and shelter, for home and friends and the comforts that make life enjoyable—surely it is but a thankful and natural thing to be thankful for these. And with our gratitude it will be but fitting to remember in real sympathy and helpful kindness those less fortunate than ourselves, the poor, the maimed, the halt and the blind and all whose way in life is hard. And it will be well also to recall that of the evils that are in the land—if there be corruption, disorder or drunkenness—these are not of the divine ordering but exist because of our own supineness or our permission. All who are truly thankful will realize that the goodness we enjoy carries with it the responsibility of better living in the future, and greater effort to remove the evils we see about us and to make the world better and happier in the years to come.

CORNER LOAFING.
 For years past corner loafing has been prevalent in Charlottetown to an extent beyond anything known or tolerated in any other city. The orderly citizen taking an evening walk for business or pleasure could hardly turn a corner without being compelled to practically force his way through or walk around a gang of loafers from five to twenty in number, while ladies had to gather up their skirts to avoid the copious expectoration which always overspread the sidewalks at the corners. Again and again orderly citizens were forced to abandon the sidewalks altogether to avoid these groups of spitting idlers, knowing that to ask them to make way was to invite insult. And some were insulted even when making their way modestly around them. These conditions had become intolerable and were a standing reproach to the city when an effort was made by the Stipendiary, the Marshal and police to abate the nuisance, and with remarkably good effect.

At this stage His Worship the Mayor and Councillor Brown take a hand in the game. Mayor Kelly finds the clergymen and citizens at fault for not taking more pains to improve the morality of the people, and Councillor Brown finds that the fault does not all lie with the loafers but to some extent with the police. More ill-timed and pernicious remarks in this connection could not have been made by persons holding official positions in civic affairs. It is the first time that we have yet found the Mayor of a Canadian city either express or imply his sympathy with corner loafing, or blame the clergy for the existence of such a practice. Placed in any fair light the words of the Mayor and Councillor Brown can only be construed as lending aid and comfort to the corner loafers, restoring them to their old-time self-asserted right to occupy the corners, and discouraging the police from interfering in any manner with them. This attitude will doubtless win the applause of the loafers, but what must orderly, self-respecting citizens think of it?

Tomorrow, Thanksgiving Day, being a public holiday, no paper will be issued from this office.

 Not only attack the passages of the head and throat but finally reach the lungs and cause consumption. Catarrhine will fail to cure if it's guaranteed. Two months treatment $1.00. Trial size 25c.
