THE EAST INDIAN WOMAN
TORONTO, Ont., June 28.—(By The Canadian Press)—"No matter how beautiful the girl, no matter how well dressed, if she can write, she is not for me!" This old East Indian proverb was quoted by Dr. Trevor Davies in his address to the students of Branksome Hall as signifying the old attitude in regard to the education of women, which today was entirely changed. An unusual feature in the prize-giving was the winning of the General Proficiency Prize by five girls. This prize is given by Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Caven in memory of their daughter Ruth. The usual medal given was this year represented by five books, one for each of the winners.

International Nickel
As a result of a visit made by Mr. Robert C. Stanley, President of International Nickel Company of Canada to Montreal this week, several points in connection with the company's plans and future are probably clearer now than they were before. One of these is the removal of any doubt that was beginning to exist in some quarters as to the maintenance of the dividend rate of $1 a share that has been paid since August, 1929. It is understood that there is not the slightest doubt in regard to this: the company is in a position to maintain this dividend and will do so. At the present market level the stock on the basis of dividends gives a return of over 4 percent.

Nor is the question as to the piling up of inventories one that is causing the management any concern. It will be recalled that last year business was operating on all fours in the United States. International Nickel Company was not able to keep abreast of the demand, and at times was two or three months behind in deliveries that would have been gladly accepted. At the present time, supplies of nickel are not greater than a single month's consumption, and although in the United States this total may be somewhat exceeded, it is not believed that it will reach a volume such as to cause any concern. The Frood Mine is now operating as a production rate of about 3,400 tons a day, and as soon as the demand increases, as it is expected, to do on a considerable scale in the near future, this rate of output can be practically doubled with the present equipment of the mine.

Loblaws Groceries
Issuance of the annual report of Loblaws Groceries Company, Ltd., covering the fiscal year ended May 31, 1930, draws attention once more to the excellent rate of progress being established by this company from year to year. There were several particularly constructive features of the latest statement, of which probably the most prominent was the fact that although the period covered by the report included approximately six months of trade depression and declining commodity prices, dollar values of sales increased by nearly $2,000,000. Further, in spite of the fact that the company's policy of expansion was continued and a number of new stores opened, the ratio of net profits to sales (6.48 percent) was higher than in years. This point was illustrated in another manner: profits increased 27.72 percent during 1930-1929 as compared with 1929-1928 although the gain in sales was only 11.31 percent.

FAINT, DIZZY SPELLS Had To Sleep Propped Up In Bed
Mrs. Norman Bishop, Sallabury, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with faint and dizzy spells and when I would sit down I would suffer terribly with smothering spells. I got so bad I had to sleep propped up in bed. My doctor said it was my heart and nerves, and that I needed a good heart tonic. I was advised to take

For the first five months this year output was 1,000,000 kilowatt hours, a gain of 31 percent over last year and more than 100 percent above the 1929 total. For the 12 months ended May there was a gain of 35 percent over the previous year.

DROWSING AROUND THE NURSERIES

(By L. B. Birdsall, in Toronto Saturday night)
Persons who are interested in gardening and the beautification of their home surroundings should avail themselves of opportunities to visit the larger nurseries where thousands of plants and shrubs are being propagated and grown for stock. There is no better way of getting acquainted with the new things in horticulture.

A nurseryman, if he is enterprising, will have trial plots in which the novelties and recent discoveries will be tested for hardiness and soil adaptability. Visits to well-stocked nurseries also enable one to increase his working knowledge in the best cultural methods for the older or more or less standard varieties of plants and shrubs. It is reasonable to expect that a professional horticulturist will endeavor to produce his stock under conditions as nearly ideal as possible.

Unless a person makes himself a downright nuisance, the average nurseryman is not likely to object to such "browsing around" excursions, for in the majority of cases they lead to sales. The nurseryman may ever conduct his visitors around, if he is not too busy.

Many nurserymen have come to appreciate the value from a business standpoint of encouraging flower lovers to visit their establishments

KING GEORGE

Old Age Pensions

To provide for that rainy day—old age—is matured wisdom. To many who have fought privation, with limited income, to raise and educate and establish their children in the world, to finish life's greatest work in poverty—an old age pension is an earned and needed God-send. Some, with healthy earnings, live in plenty and do not need it. But to many it is an imperative demand of our higher civilization.

The big hearted people of Canada, in Church and in state, of all political connections, recognize it as a need which cannot be dispensed with. As in many other projects the question of ways and means has been the stumbling block. Provinces with impoverished treasuries are as helpless to provide relief, as the poverty stricken person is himself to lay aside for his advanced years.

Prince Edward Island wanted it, but because the larger percentage of our young men had to seek a living in other lands, leaving the older men at home, we have a larger ratio of old age dependents than any other Province. And, because we have not been fairly dealt with Dominion subsidies and Federal assistance, we haven't a dollar in our treasury to meet this extra obligation which might cost up into millions.

The Mackenzie King Government adopted an Old Age Pension scheme. It said to the provinces "you pay half, and we will pay the other half." Favoured and wealthy provinces having the money adopted the measure.

Prince Edward Island for want of funds could not. But, out of the taxes paid into the Federal Treasury by the people of this Province, we are compelled to pay our portion of what the Dominion is paying for old age pensions in all other provinces. Isn't it grossly unfair to thus tax the poor to help the rich?

This half-a-loaf policy was denounced by Conservatives. Their claim was that it was in principle a Federal obligation. Dominion revenues were equally contributed by the whole Canadian people. Therefore it was the logic of reason that the whole amount should be paid out of the wealthier treasury belonging to all the people.

Adhering to this principle our next Prime Minister—the Hon. R. B. Bennett—has given an unequivocal pledge to provide the whole cost of the Old Age Pension out of the Federal revenues.

This will put Prince Edward Island upon an equality with all the wealthy provinces, having our aged dependents provided for, without having to tax our people to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Of course, now that an election is on, and they want votes, they will promise to do the same thing. They were always good in making election promises—but always slow to perform. They refused to do it during the four years of urging—can you trust them now?

YOUR VOTE FOR THE BENNETT CANDIDATES, McLURE AND MYERS, ARNETT AND McDONALD, WILL GIVE OLD AGE PENSIONS TO OUR PROVINCE, AND SAVE OUR TAXPAYERS HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS OF TAXES, WHICH THE PRESENT LIBERAL SCHEME WOULD FORCE UPON US.

and have regular visiting hours or days. If a person is permitted to do so and is conveniently situated, he should visit a complete nursery several times a year, or several times during the outdoor growing season, arranging the visits to correspond with the blooming periods of what are known as the dominant garden flowers. Tulip time should merit a visit to a nursery or a commercial florist's stock grounds. Some of the leading bulb importers from Holland have established trial plots. A visit to one of these plots or little bulb farms when the tulips and other Spring bulbs are in flower undoubtedly will assist a person in preparing his list of favored varieties for Fall planting.

The irises, peonies, delphiniums and roses are dominant flowers that should cause flower lovers to make several more trips to nurseries during the Spring and early Summer, and then come the gladiolus, the dahlias, the Autumn or garden chrysanthemum, which will extend the visits into October and early November.

Don't overlook the garden chrysanthemums. Try to visit a nursery that makes a specialty of these lovely flowers. They are the last perennials to blossom. They end the season of outdoor flowers, and they end it in a blaze of colors that reflect the rich tones of Autumn. The development of the garden chrysanthemums within recent years has made it, without question, one of the most desirable flowers for outdoor blooming.

The shrubbery plots in the nurseries are usually filled with a wide variety of interesting specimens. There one may find many of the new shrubs that he has read and heard about. He sees these newcomers growing with the older subjects and he may make comparisons and decide whether or not he desires specimens for his own garden or grounds. Take a note-book with you when you visit a nursery and don't be afraid to use it.

Illustrated catalogues of nursery stock are valuable to a garden maker but a few visits to the nursery itself are many times more entertaining and informative. Another educational medium is the flower shows, particularly those in the larger cities where commercial competition is keen and many elaborate garden designs and ensembles are featured.

If a garden maker is observant he may garner many valuable and practical tips from a visit to a horticultural exhibition. He may learn much about the proper use of stones in a garden. He may see examples of good rock gardening, which has a distinct vogue at the present time—a vogue which has produced not a few rather horrible efforts on the part of inexperienced amateurs.

One of the features advertised by the International Aero Exhibition in London this year, was that all who desired would be given air pilot's tests.
