TAGANROG FALLS; NAZI LINE CRUMBLES

At Least 25 Are Killed In Train Wreck In New York

Crack Train Collides With Freight Engine

WAYLAND, N.Y., Aug. 30—(AP)—At least 25 persons were killed and an undetermined number injured today when the Lackawanna Limited, crack passenger train on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, was derailed here. A.H. McLaughlin, chief dispatcher in the Buffalo office of the railroad, said.

Frank Wagner, chief dispatcher at the Buffalo office of the railroad, said the wreck occurred when a local freight engine, pulling out of a station switch at Wayland, struck the engine of Lackawanna Limited, crack passenger train, tipping over both engines, Wagner said four cars of the Limited were derailed in addition to the engine.

The chief dispatcher stated that all of the injured were being removed to hospitals in Dansville, Hornell and Wayland.

The Limited was en route from New York to Buffalo when the wreck occurred, Wagner said. He added that James E. Leroy of Buffalo, engineer, and F.L. Cooper, conductor, were not injured. He said all of the dead were passengers.

Churchill To Speak Today

QUEBEC, Aug. 30—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill after a week in a Laurentian Mountains fishing resort, will speak to the world in a radio broadcast at one o'clock E.D.T. tomorrow, presumably from the Quebec citadel.

However, holding on would have left the way open for a Russian swing to the southward from recently recaptured Kharkov in an encircling movement. Such a successful drive would have cut the Taganrog but conceivably could have pinched off the entire salient along the sea of Azov as far west as the Crimea.

Germany wants to hang on to the Caucasus and presumably the advantages of retaining that sector outweigh those of a costly fight for Taganrog.

One reason the Germans are likely to fight for the Crimea is that it provides their bulwark of defence against flanking movements if they lose roughly the entire southern front.

Also the Crimea is the only escape route for a large body of German troops in the Kuban area. There, in that last salient, the Germans may be forced to retreat westward through Kerch on to the Crimean peninsula, possibly a hundred miles to the west. Presumably they will follow the Dnieper River at Dnieperpetrovsk south and slightly eastward through Melitopol to the shores of the sea of Azov.

Such a withdrawal would have several advantages for the Germans, including retention of the escape route for the Kuban sector, and a shortening of German front lines, which usually results in stronger defence.

On the other hand, the Russians are determined to get the Crimea back. This is certain because of their long and bitter fight to hold Sevastopol, the big Black Sea port on the southern tip of the Crimea.

War Situation Last Night

When the Russians chased German troops out of Taganrog they demonstrated again the tremendous red driving power. They now seem likely to push Hitler's forces still farther back on the southern front.

There would be little military reason for the Nazis to pull out of Taganrog, their southern anchor post on the sea of Azov, unless additional retreats were contemplated.

This is apparent because the Germans heavily-fortified Taganrog during the many months it was in their hands; if they had poured enough men and guns into the city they probably could have resisted an assault, at least for a time.

Well Known Newsman Dies Suddenly

TORONTO, Aug. 30—(CP)—John W. Tibbs, 63, feature service editor of the Canadian Press and widely known throughout the newspaper profession in Canada, died suddenly early tonight of a heart attack.

Mr. Tibbs left his office at the Canadian Press apparently in good health and had just reached his home at the north end of the city when he collapsed and died.

Mr. Tibbs, a veteran of the Boer War, joined the Canadian Press September 1, 1917. He served in many capacities, as news manager, as assistant to former general manager J. F. Livesey, son of the nationalization of the C. P. service, and as Ontario superintendent.

Before his association with the Canadian Press he worked for four years with the old Toronto News and for 11 years with the Toronto Star.

Primarily a desk-man and news organizer, Mr. Tibbs still found time to get out on the street for an occasional story. Most recent of these he covered were the Royal Visit to Canada in 1939 and the Labatt kidnapping case in 1934.

He laid the foundation for the election coverage organization by which the Canadian Press compiles results in national voting.

In the early days of the Canadian election coverage Tibbs was in development of service to daily newspapers, especially in Ontario. He was particularly known for his generous help he gave young men entering newspaper work.

Mr. Tibbs was an active worker in the United Church.

John William Tibbs was born Sept. 22, 1879, at Leckmore, Toronto, Ontario, and came to Toronto as a child with his parents.

Sixth Major Milestone in Summer Drive

LONDON, Aug. 30—(AP)—Taganrog fell today to a surprise Cossack cavalry and mechanized drive which carried almost half way along the Azov sea coast from that Nazi anchor city of Mariupol in a 28-mile advance, Moscow announced tonight.

More than 150 villages were overrun in this drive and remnants of the Nazi troops defending Taganrog have been surrounded "and are being wiped out," said the Soviet communique recorded here by the Soviet Monitor.

This smash, which left the entire southern German line crumbling, was one of the two setbacks for the invaders during the day.

About 400 miles to the north, another Soviet column hitting into the German defences south of Bryansk advanced to 13 miles and captured more than 50 other villages, the Russians said.

Test Flight of Helldiver Plane

OTTAWA, Aug. 30—(CP)—The munitions department announced today the successful flight of the first Helldiver plane built by Fairchild Aircraft Corporation for the United States Navy.

The 40-minute flight was made by Hon. G. M. J. H. Lymburn, chief test pilot for Fairchild, and was witnessed by the entire personnel of the munitions department, R.C.A.F. and U.S. Navy.

The first scheduled date for the Helldiver flight was August 29, but it was postponed because of a breakdown in the Fairchild Company carried out one of the quickest tool changovers in the history of the Canadian Aircraft Industry, munitions department officials said.

The company's Bollingbroke bombers production remained unimpeded while the tooling-up for the Helldiver was in progress. When the Bollingbroke contract is completed next month the entire Fairchild factory will concentrate on Helldivers.

The Taj Mahal at Agra, India, was begun in 1632 and completed in 1650.

Italian Navy Divided By Capture of Sicily

And despite losses, the Italian fleet remains an important prize which the Allies could turn to good account.

In Allied hands the Italian warships might prove exceptionally useful in any offensive on Japan.

Five of Italy's capital ships are said to be in operation. Her losses in light and heavy cruisers, destroyers and submarines are believed to be more than 50 per cent, and weaknesses in these draft, especially destroyers, make it difficult for her to operate as a fleet.

Before the war, Italy's navy was known as the world's fastest. All her newer ships can steam 30 knots. It is doubted here that Italy will be able to take a loss of punishment.

The Italian merchant marine has suffered more than the Italian Navy. Since the battle of North Africa began, Italian merchant ships have been sunk in large numbers. The Italian merchant marine has lost more than a year's worth of tonnage.

As long as the Italians keep the sea lanes open, the Allies will have a considerable naval strength in the Mediterranean which otherwise might be shifted to the Pacific or some other theatre.

10,000 Halifaxians May Find it Tough to Obtain Ration Book

HALIFAX, Aug. 30—(CP)—About 10,000 Halifaxians who failed to apply for ration book No. 3 during the four-day distribution period may have difficulty getting their books now, the prices here are being raised in a press release tonight.

The local ration board is to consider the matter Friday, the release said, adding "board officials say that these applicants who take advantage of the freely-given efforts of a small army of women workers and count on emergency measures to save them from the deadline may find themselves disappointed."

In the distribution period here, 50 persons claimed books. This is more than 6,000 short of the total for book No. 2, and the board estimated it was about 10,000 less than the total eligible for book No. 3.
