Your stomach if not in good condition causes constipation

IF your Stomach and Liver are weak, your food is not digested. This causes food to be held up in your body. The usual result is constipation, which causes bad breath, headache and severe gas pains. CHAPTER XXXVII

Myra's Reaction

Myra was more than a little bit interested in John Rigby.

He wasn't so colossally rich as Richard, but he had money, and no entangling alliances. Furthermore he said things to her. Things like "darling—dearest in all the world." Such things mattered terribly.

Under Myra's blase exterior she was just as romantic as Sally. She wanted love more than anything else. Not that she was ever ready to admit it, because she wasn't. And certainly not to Sally, who in her estimation was a child.

Why had Bill withheld endearments from her? Even from the time of their honeymoon she couldn't remember when he had called her by endearing names. Bill, to her, was a quiet, self-contained man. A man who had given her everything, but then, why not? She was his wife. Bill was successful, but he was dull. He could make money, but he knew nothing about love.

Myra often comforted herself with this thought.

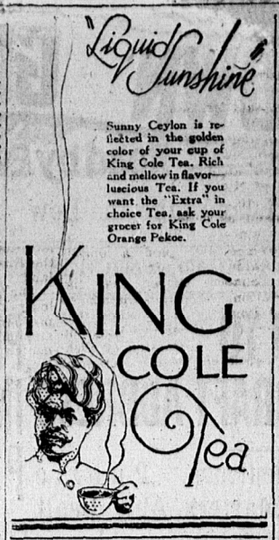
When she was in the midst of a furious flirtation, she often told herself that if Bill had given her the love and romance that she craved, she wouldn't look to other men for it.

John Rigby spelled romance to her. He had the self-confidence that Bill lacked. He wasn't inhibited either, which meant that he paid her charming compliments. And yet there were times when she looked into Sally's eyes and heard her own remarks in Sally's words and felt ashamed.

She hadn't, after all, meant to influence Sally. And who could tell whether she would be happy if she married Richard Alden?

Liquid Sunshine

Sunny Ceylon is reflected in the golden color of your cup of King Cole Tea. Rich and mellow in flavor—luscious Tea. If you want the "Extra" in choice Tea, ask your grocer for King Cole Orange Pekoe.



Such things were so uncertain. And in spite of her worldliness Myra believed in fate. If Sally deserted a man who loved her, and not only that, but a little girl, had she any chance for lasting happiness?

"What I do, and what Sally does, are, after all, two very different things." She told herself that again and again.

And yet she had advised Sally to marry Richard.

"If I hadn't believed that she loved him, I shouldn't have interfered," she told herself in extenuation. And yet, in her heart of hearts she was not sure that Sally loved him. Sally had come up against life since she had left the States. There had been that experience in Paris with Mr. Britton, and not only that, but for a longer period than she had ever known since childhood, the two of them had been together. Myra knew that she was worldly and that Sally was inexperienced. Would Sally have reacted in the same way without outside influence of any kind?

Myra's feeling for John Rigby was largely superficial. If she had stopped to weigh it she would have realized the truth. Any attractive man with a sense of appreciation—always supposing, of course, that he appealed to her—would have done as well. She longed for the things she didn't get from Bill. She was literally starved for them and ready to get them wherever she could grab them.

John Rigby was ready to give them to her. Not only that, but he had money. Myra wouldn't have been Myra if she hadn't stopped to think of that. She would have gone ahead recklessly with her own affair if it hadn't been for Sally, but Sally worried her.

At that moment John Rigby came along the deck, and Myra turned to him with a sense of relief

Her feeling for Richard Alden was so deep that it was terrifying.

Myra realized as only another woman can Sally's attitude as she had caught a glimpse of them from the deck chair. She had caught her own flippancy in Sally's tones.

"Hello, you people." It wasn't like Sally. Had Richard hurt her in some way?

She stole a glance at him from under her lashes. How little his face betrayed. It was so proud—so arrogant! Did he love Sally?

At that moment John Rigby came along the deck, and Myra turned to him with a sense of relief. Why should she be compelled to fight Sally's problems as well as her own? It was foolish.

She turned to him eagerly, leaving Richard bending over Sally's chair. After all, Sally was 28!

"CHRIST IS A SPIRIT"

FRIDAY

"It Means He is Present With Us"

SCRIPTURE: Read—John 16: 1-24.

"Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world" (Mt. 28:20). "It is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I go I will send Him unto you" (Jn. 16:7). "I can do all things in him that strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13.)

See—Matthew 18:20; John 14.18, 19.

MEDITATION: Jesus of Nazareth could be with only a few people, and that for a short time. But Christ as the living Spirit can be with everyone everywhere, and always. Is it not good therefore that Jesus exchanged physical presence for spiritual? Now the Holy Spirit, who "shows us the things of Christ," deals with us directly in our hearts. In these inner experiences Jesus Christ is with us. May my contemplations open the door for His presence and make me a self-sacrificing servant of mankind.

"The heaven of heavens cannot contain Thee, but the broken and the contrite heart can; it is there Thou delightest most to dwell."

HYMN:

O Master, let me walk with thee
In lowly paths of service free,
Tell me Thy secret, help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care.

Teach me Thy patience; still with Thee
In closer, dearer company,
In work that keeps faith sweet and strong,
In trust that triumphs over wrong.

In hope that sends a shining ray
Far down the future's broadening way,—
In peace that only Thou canst give,—
With Thee, O Master, let me live.
—Washington Gladden, 1879.

PRAYER: Thanks for the gospel record.

Pray for—presence of Holy Spirit; travelers on land and sea.

Collect—O God who dwellest in the beauty of holiness, we praise Thee for the beauty of the earth, for loveliness embodied in noble men and for the revelation of Thyself in Jesus Christ the incarnation of Thy conquering love. We are covered with shame at thought of Thy faithfulness we have not been ever true to Thee. Keep us from infidelity to Thy friendship. Save us from treachery of soul. From the choice of evil and from the enthronement of the lesser things deliver us. Awaken in us a living sense of Thy Spirit. Give us hunger and thirst for righteousness. May our hearts burn with the presence of Christ in us. So would be enthrone Thee, trust Thee, love Thee, obey Thee; all by the grace of Christ: Amen.

WOULD OPERATE ON DEMPSEY'S SPINE FOR FIGHT ACCIDENT SIX YEARS AGO

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Dr. Warren Clark, personal physician to Jack Dempsey, today said an operation, intended to correct an infection at the base of the former heavyweight champion's spine, was being considered, following a recent consultation.

Dempsey suffered an infection of a number of lower vertebrae as a result of a heavy fall during one of his fights about 6 years ago. This is believed to have been responsible for several outbreaks of blood poisoning during the last year. Recently he underwent operations to prevent the spread of poisoning in his left hand and arm.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

Put yourself in the place of the earliest disciples of Jesus at this hour. He was the Captain of their souls, their only Rock, Fortress and Defense. But he was now about to be taken from them by a violent and shameful death brough about by the foul treachery of one of their own number. They were a small band of peasants, without prestege, social or political. They could easily be wiped out of existence by the same tyranny which was to destroy their leader. Impenetrable and hopeless gloom settled upon them. But in the midst of it Jesus sounded one clear high note of courage as he said "Don't be troubled! You still believe in the God of wisdom and love and power. You believe in me as his accredited messenger. Then lifting his eyes to that bright region separated as it is from the chill fog of earth, he said "My Father's Palace! I see it! In it there is a resting place for you also, homes of love and peace which can never be invaded by the perils incident to this life. Remember I have always been frank with you. If there were no such place I would certainly have told you. But there is such a place and I am just going to put the finishing to its preparation. There I'll receive you. In the very place where I live you shall live also, so that we shall always be together!" Comfort! Supreme! Divine! The full import and power of it was to increase in exact proportion that danger increased!

St. Paul's words are an echo, commentary and amplification of these words of hisMaster. He says to his Corinthian converts and through them to all Christian believers to the end of time, "We know beyond all doubt, question or contradiction that when the tent in which we live this earthly life is folded up by death God will give us a building in exchange for our tent in which we will live forever in heaven. The cataclysm on death can never fall upon this new residence of the soul. Sometimes we are wistful for the exchange in which we will never again be dispossessed. Yet we should keep our courage, and whether present or absent from the Lord make it our single aim to live the life that shall be pleasing to him."

To these words of St. Paul, St. John the Divine adds that when the exchange is made, the earthly for the heavenly body the latter will resemble that of the Master, be in fact a replica of his. This is the glorious incentive to a life of purity.

UNDER THE STUDY LAMP

"The dead Hottentot knows more than the living Plato" Yes, but he only knows from experience what Plato cannot know in that way while still living and that is that the soul survives the incident of death. But Plato carries with him into the other world a "five talent" mind which by thought has doubled its capacities. He will fill a sphere to which the Hottentot can never aspire. As stars differ so will souls differ in the immortal life. Degrees in heaven are the corollary of degrees on earth. Every soul should "covet earnestly" the best gifts, the highest degrees possible.....The last words of Jesus to his disciples make a dearer, more intimate revelation of heaven than any other portion of Scripture affords. They are in striking contrast to the dazzling moving picture of St. John the Divine:.... "Where I am there ye also' that is the blissful assurance of recognition and reunion for all the bereaved.....Just the assurance of continuity of life does not satisfy. The question persists "What kind of a life will it be?" Jesus and the apostles answer not in minute detail but in such terms as satisfy and inspire to the evolution of the greatest purity possible.....Ruskin says he never yet saw a palace that he coveted but that all the lattice—windowed cottages of old England did appeal to him. Heaven is a place of latticed windowed homes....."If I go" is not an expression of doubt but rather of strengthened affirmation, "Since I am going to prepare a place"... Vision of heaven is the antedote to fear and trouble.....Clothed up on" The same body only wrapped in a new glory like that of Jesus at his transfiguration.....Clothed with the new body assures re-union with Jesus. Remaining clothes with the old body means absence from him....St. Paul was a wanderer on earth In heaven he has a home, a resting place. He trades his tent for a house..... "Walking by faith" is a persistent attitude of mind.....A life that pleases God will never fail to hear his "Well done!"

HOW TO IMPROVE OUR MINDS

John Burroughs once called the world God's revolving showcase. It is crammed with objects curious and beautiful, calculated to arrest attention, provoke thought, inquiry and admiration. Not only objects but processes actually in progress, subtle and marvelous. A natural world better formed to lead the mental faculties in healthful and delightful exercise could not be conceived of. It is God's own kindergarten.

MANY DRAW BLANKS IN LATEST DIAMOND RUSH

LONDON, March 17.—The Daily Mail's Johannesburg, South Africa correspondent, sends a discouraging account of the new Grasfontein Farm diamond field. He says that although there are some rich patches of ground, many of the diggers have drawn blanks. Hundreds of them already have left the diggings. Many farmers who sold their farms and bought worthless claims are destitute.

He hopes that Canada will not injure British sentiment by raising the tariff on British products. Fresh killed Canadian meats from Canada would be preferred in England he says, and also that nine out of ten young men leaving the old land now consider Canada first as a new home.
