RELIGIOUS SERVICES

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

The morning sermon at the Baptist Church, preached by the Rev. H. L. Denton, B. D., was "The Order of Discipleship". From the first chapter of the Gospel of St. John come three significant words supplying the text of the day, "come follow, find." The first in the order of discipleship is come. See, experience, test for yourself, in the manner of Newton as he accepted his hypothesis, gathered and observed the evidences, and you shall see discipleship of Jesus is not based on hearsay or hopeful imagination as St. John in one of his letters describes as "that which we have seen." Exercise "follow me." On the Jordan road of open confession, on the Galilean road of personal service, on the Calvary road of heroic sacrifice, you shall find the way of discipleship. "Find" ours to find our children, our brothers and sisters, our friends, for the Master, as St. Andrew brought his greater brother.

The morning anthem was St. John Stainer's "What are these?"

Continuing the interesting series of sermons suggested by some of the great hymns of the Church, Mr. Denton preached a sermon on the thought of "When I survey the wondrous cross," with this hymn sung at the close of the sermon, as part of the evening worship. The choir rendered a hymn anthem "The Old Rugged Cross" and the male quartette, Messrs. Quigley, Calder, Dingwell, Sterns, sang very expressively "The Wayside Cross." It was intimated that on Wednesday evening, instead of the usual mid week service of prayer, there would be a public meeting in Zion Church, to be addressed by the Rev. J. B. M. Armour, M. A., the eloquent General Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

ST. JAMES KIRK

The minister, the Rev. R. Moorhead-Legate, D. D., preached at both services yesterday in St. James Presbyterian Church.

The text for the morning sermon was taken from the Gospel according to St. John, Chapter XIII, verses 12-14. "So after He had washed their feet, and had taken his garments and was set down again, He said unto them Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord; and ye say well; for so I am. If I then pour Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet." Jesus stopped to perform those duties only done by servants, in order to imprint upon the minds and hearts of the disciples the religion of service. He showed them in such a way that they would not forget—by washing the feet of the very one who later betrayed Him.

A solo "The King of Love" by Mr. Shepherd Le-Watkins was sung by Mr. Arthur Bruce.

At the evening service, Dr. Legate preached from II Corinthians IV, verse 18. "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

The message that Jesus Christ brought to the world is one of hope, assurance, buoyancy, optimism. It is a Gospel of Good Cheer. Jesus can give us new eyes to discern the things that are eternal. The greatest hour in any man's or woman's history, is the hour when he or she has acquired this "second sight" He can never rise to the heights that God would have us rise to, until we come to know the meaning of this text.

The peace, the comfort, the full joy of this text can only be realized by those who have personally experienced the new light, the new vision of an unseen world, the power to look upon eternal things. Our prayer should be "Lord open thou mine eyes, that I may behold these things."

The Choir sang "My Task" A hymn as a special anthem.

Dr. Legate announced that there is to be no mid-week service in the Kirk on Wednesday on account of the joint meeting in Zion Church in the interests of the Bible Society.
