A Girl's Honor is the Most Precious Thing She Has and Under no Circumstances Should She Ever Allow it to Become Tarnished

Dear Miss Dix—Do you think that a boy who really loves a girl would want her to become his mistress? I have been brought up with high standards of morality, yet when I definitely refused to lower myself and my reputation, I have lost his attentions.

Answer: I do not believe that any man who really loves a girl would ask her to do a thing that would degrade her in her own eyes, and in his eyes, if he intended to marry her.

No matter what liberal ideas as to conduct a man has about other women, he wants the one he marries and who is to be the mother of his children to be above reproach. He doesn't want damaged goods.

Men seldom marry their mistresses, and there are several reasons for this. One is that their mother favored her husband for another man and she would yield to any other man.

When a man does marry his mistress, the marriage is seldom happy because he never trusts her. He always thinks that if she were not his wife, she would yield to any other man.

Stand by your colors and you will never regret it. When any boy asks you to give yourself to him as a proof of love, consider the proof of love that he is giving you in asking you to give up your honor and make yourself the target for gossiping tongues, to please him.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am married to a man who has several children, all over 10 years of age. Their mother favored my husband for another man and she would yield to any other man.

Answer: I don't think that the prospect of your having any peace and happiness in a home which there are several adolescent stepchildren is very good, especially if you have to combat the influence of your mother.

For you to try to correct these children will simply be love's labor lost. They will not take either advice or criticism from you, and you will only antagonize them and their parents.

So my advice to you is to meet the situation with whatever patience you can. Bear with the children with fortitude. Handle them with tact and assert no authority over them.

The lot of the stepmother is so often a martyrdom that I wonder that any woman ever has the courage to enter it.

Dear Miss Dix—I have worked all my life since I was quite a young girl. Now I am getting on in years and am retired on a small pension.

Answer: Of course you should go away from your family and live the balance of your life in peace and comfort. Nothing else has brought me misery to more people than the silly old fallacy that all the members of a family should live together, no matter how unconvivial they were nor how much they got on each other's nerves.

We always talk about the breaking up of a home as if it were a tragedy, but in the great majority of cases it is a godsend. It separates brothers and sisters who are always at each other's throats and parents who are always in a row with their children.

Modern Etiquette (By ROBERTA LEE) Q. Who is present when the wedding rehearsal takes place? A. Only those who take part in the rehearsal. Any one else may cause confusion by offering unasked-for suggestions.

How Can I? (By ANNE ASHLEY) Q. How can I make woolen blankets softer and hold their shape when laundering them? A. Hang them on a line dripping wet, instead of wringing them. Whip lightly several times while drying and after thoroughly dry, with a wire carpet beater.

Q. When driving at night, shouldn't a motorist dim his lights when another car is approaching? A. Yes, always. Every courteous driver will do so.

Q. Has a house guest permission to monopolize the radio? A. No; he should allow the members of the family to select the programs.

Q. How can I clean and shine wicker furniture? A. Try scouring them with a slice of lemon, after the juice has been extracted. Then wash and polish with a soft cloth.

Q. How can I improve the flavor of the tomato juice cocktail? A. Try adding a few drops of lemon juice.

BOOKS/ART/MUSIC

(By F. R. H.)

With the approach of the various Drama Festivals, an interesting and timely little book to read is "The Theatre of My Heart" by Geoffrey Whitworth.

Readers of newspaper comments of the recent purchase of a site in South Kensington, London for the National Theatre must be surprised to learn that the project was mooted as far back as 1908.

The theatre founded in the name of Shakespeare and to be called the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre, will not be exclusively a Shakespeare theatre.

The theatre will have a seating capacity of approximately 1,100, one of the largest and best equipped stages in London, and a permanent company of twenty-five or thirty players engaged on year contracts.

But its aims are wider still. When once established the theatre's duty will be to provide for the touring of the most successful productions of new and original English plays or translations of contemporary foreign drama.

An American millionaire was being shown by an agent over a Highland estate he intended to buy. When they reached the house, the millionaire noticed over the entrance hall the motto, "East, West, Home's Best."

"Turning to the agent and pointing to the motto, he remarked, 'That fellow Hame may be the best, but he's got to take down his advertisement.'"

A young man gave a graphic description of a narrow escape he had had from an enraged bull. "I seized him by the tail," he exclaimed, "and there I was! I was ready to hold on, and I dare not let go!"

"Between the horns of a dilemma, as it were," ventured his pretty companion. "No," replied the young man, "I wasn't between the horns at all, and, besides, he wasn't a dilemma, he was a Jersey!"
